Mrs. Harriet V. Rigdon, Wabash, and Mrs. Horace G. Murphy, Muncie, will be honor guests at a luncheon to be given Thursday at the Propylaeum by Mrs. James L. Gavin, national vice-president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Guests with the hostess and the honor guests will be Mrs. F. Ellis Hunter, regent of Caroline Scott Harrison chapter and members of the board of management.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Rigdon, a nominee for the office of national treasurer-general, will speak on "National Defense." She is vice-chairman of the national committee on defense and Mrs. Murphy is chairman of the committee for Indiana.

A program of songs will be given by Mrs. James H. Lowry. Hostesses for the social hour which will follow are Mesdames James H. Taylor and William L. Horne, assisted by Mesdames Roy Elder Adams, Gavin I. Payne, John J. Madden, Albert Gall, Ernest De Wolf Wales, Quincy A. Myers, Joel Whitaker, Charles F. Voyles, James B. Nelson, J. M. Loehhead, James M. Ogden, Merritt A. Potter, Pittsburgh, and Marlette Tweedy Vehr, Danbury, Conn. The annual New Year's day reception of the chapter was held from 3 to 5 Tuesday afternoon at the chapter house.

Family Menu

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Orange juice, cereal, cream, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Spinach with stuffed eggs, baking powder biscuits, pear preserves, rice pudding, lemonade.

DINNER—Roast chicken with celery stuffing, sweet potatoes, apples, baked corn, jelly, cabbage and pineapple salad, vanilla mousse with chocolate sauce, milk, coffee.

The dinner menu suggested is ideal for a small-family dinner to celebrate some festive occasion. A clear soup or fruit cocktail can be used before the meal if a more elaborate menu is wanted.

Celery Stuffing

Four cups stale bread crumbs, 1 cup boiling water, 1/2 cup melted butter, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 cup finely chopped celery, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon poultry seasoning, 1/2 teaspoon pepper.

The bread should be two days old and the crumbs made medium coarse. Put into a large mixing bowl and pour boiling water over them. Let stand 20 minutes and squeeze out excess moisture. Add melted butter and stir lightly with a fork. Mix onion, parsley and celery and add to crumb mixture. Season with salt, pepper and poultry seasoning and mix thoroughly.

Progressive Dinner

A New Year's eve progressive dinner party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Willis N. Covel, 3614 East Fall Creek boulevard. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Alexander, Bloomington; Captain and Mrs. J. C. Blizard, Captain and Mrs. Frank Barber, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Smith.

Scotch Plaid

Printed jersey now grows Scotch and appears in stunning Scotch plaid patterns. One in tans and browns, with a dash of orange and red, is made diagonally of the cloth, with pipings of orange.

Wed Fifty-one Years

Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Staver and Mr. and Mrs. Simon Frantz, both of Wabash county, celebrated their fifty-first wedding anniversaries New Year's day at their homes.

Famous Recipe For Stopping a Severe Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugstore. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, soothes away the inflammation, and loosens the germinant phlegm. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SPORTS CLOTHES SEEN AT RESORTS

A white, white and beige sports outfit has its hand-blocked overblouse striped diagonally with blue and white and its white skirt gathered. A gold-yellow sweater, embroidered in white silk, tops a white kasha skirt with box pleats. Unusual skirt pleats, novelty striping and a new tie effect distinguish a beige, yellow and green outfit.

Woman's Day

BY ALLENE SUMNER

The Rev. M. J. Binn and the Rev. Mrs. J. B. Binn, or however one manages those titles, preach in the same church. He holds forth in the pulpit of Markham Square church, London, Sunday mornings, and his good wife spreads the tidings in the same pulpit at the evening service. We are hearing more such stories all the time of husbands and wives working in harness together. And the participants are generally younger couples rather than middle-aged ones. Which means several things: first, that more professions are open to women than ever before; second, that men are becoming less scared, perhaps, of the capable, brainy woman, and that marriages are more apt to be based on similarity of interest than they once were.

"But I Won't Die"

Nobody ever really believes that he or she will really die. This unoriginal bit of philosophy is revived by the story of the five women who, facing certain death from radium poisoning incurred by painting luminous watch dials, were awarded $10,000 each and the blunt verdict that their days were numbered. But each of the five is continuing to live her more or less ordinary life much as anyone would live who, suddenly possessed of $10,000, expected to go on enjoying life indefinitely.

They have bought cars and radios, lifted mortgages from homes, taken trips, bought trust bonds and luxuries for their families.

A strange thing, this human nature! Powerful and beautiful, too!

T. N. T.

"I Don't Want to Be a Mother," writes Margery Lauder, a London Cosmopolitan, thereby shaking the red rag. She shakes it some more as she continues—

"I represent a type of woman increasingly common in the world of today—the frankly nonmaternal. I think I may stand as a specimen of all-round normal modern womanhood. And I bluntly declare there is nothing whatever wrong with me, mentally, morally, or physically, in not wanting a child.

"It is not remarkably clever to reproduce your kind, nor does it necessarily alter or improve a woman's character, though, to listen to some of these complacent mothers, one would think that the arrival of a baby must prove a palliative to every ill—an immediate solution to all life's problems!

No Cure-All

"The old idea that a baby was a sort of divine pomade that immediately would spread bland happiness and content over the sore places in life—and glue together two people who were drifting apart!—this idea, futile and stupid and untruthful as it is, still persists with nauseating longevity.

"The truth is that a baby is a wedge forcing two people apart fully as often as it knits them together, and it is a nuisance as often as a joy."

Trouble Brewing

Surely enough has been quoted to prove the trouble which this bold woman who does not even write anonymously, is storing up for herself. The very vehemence of it proves, too, that she knows she's on the defensive, striking back at those

Nine Rules About Boys by Sub-Deb

BY MARTHA LEE

Ever since the girls have been writing in to find out just what sort of a girl goes over bigger and longer with the boys, I have been wondering why no boy wrote in to find out what qualities girls like most in boys. Either they don't care and therefore are not worried about it, or else they already know. That's a peculiar thing about the way things work out. It seems like the more a person tries the less near the goal he gets, which goes to prove that, like a marcel, an attitude simply must at least appear natural or it's terrific.

And that seems to be the main trouble with girls. They go out with the boys. They want the girls to be gay and frivolous and carefree and modern. So what do the girls do but put on that disguise. When the affair wears off, they start going with other boys. These boys want them intellectual, well read, interesting. And the poor girls immediately dive from the make-up box down to the library and read so much in such a short time that they contract astigmatism.

What the boys want, of course, is to mold every girl they come in contact with, to their idea of what a girl should be. And the girls are foolish enough to fluctuate, first from this disguise to that, just to please a boy, and maybe, if they're lucky, land a husband.

But the boys? Do they worry about what a girl would like to be? Nine times out of ten and that's giving a small margin—they aren't even interested. Their attitude is just this: If you don't like me the way I am, it's just too bad, but what are you going to do about it? I'm me, just the way I am acting, and if I change I will be fooling you anyway, so what's the point? However, one girl, who has been studying up on what is the latest wrinkle in popularity, has written the points that a very sub-deb person likes best in a boy.

1. A boy who is a constant reader of your column and has found out what you are interested in. Of course, being a girl, I was interested in the letters about what qualities a boy likes most to have his best friend. No one has asked me to do this, but I have decided to tip the boys off to a few good points that they must acquire to improve their stock.

2. I am a girl 16 and as they say, it won't be long now until I'll be going around with boys. And while I have been waiting to get old enough to run around I have been looking around. Here's a set of rules that might be of advantage. Always be on time for a date. Never keep a girl waiting.

3. Do not scold her if she keeps you waiting. Always pay her a compliment when with her. Always introduce her to your friends.

4. Ask her where she wants to go, when you take her any place.

5. If she refuses to give her the benefit of the doubt, she probably really has another date.

6. Always be courteous.

7. Do not drink in her presence or ask her to smoke. Better still, do not drink at all, and she will think a great deal more of you.

8. Never let her know she has all of your affection. Let her think she has a wee bit to win yet.

9. These are from observing my elders.

ONE OF THE MOBS.

That's a pretty good set of rules, but it certainly gives the girl all the breaks. For instance, why should a boy always be on time for a date, but if the girl is late, say nothing about it? It doesn't seem to mean it would sever relationships if both be late, if you must, and neither say anything about it. A friendship should be understanding enough and strong enough to cope with such situations.

The way I feel about iron-bound rules is this: There are more exceptions to the rules in this world than there are rules. The rules are made to discriminate what would be nice. The exceptions are what really exist.

MERIDIAN HILLS CLUB HOLDS OPEN HOUSE

Members of Meridian Hills Country Club entertained with their second annual open house on New Year's day. The clubhouse was embellished throughout with holiday decorations. A tea table was centered with a bowl of red roses and lighted with red tapers in silver holders. The entire service was of silver.

Mrs. W. D. Gatch and Mrs. Ed W. Harris poured. They were assisted in the dining room by daughters of club members. The committee in charge of arrangements included Messrs. and Mesdames A. D. Hitz, Harold E. Sutherland, E. W. Harris and Dr. and Mrs. W. D. Gatch.

YOUR CHILD

How to Subdue Little Despot

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Often there will be one child in the family who will take the lead—usually the oldest—and become intolerably bossy over the rest.

This is probably more often the case where families are large and the oldest child has been a sort of mother's assistant.

One mother said to me recently, "I don't know what to do with Irene. She's getting absolutely beyond my control. I don't want to break her spirit, but I can't have her going on the way she is. She lords it over the other three children continually, until poor Louise can't call her soul her own."

She Was Right

I had an opportunity to observe both children. Irene was 10; Louise was 8.

It soon was very evident that what mother said was true. Both were charming children, but two entirely different spirits looked out of Irene's bright blue eyes and Louise's appealing brown ones.

I watched them playing. When Irene said come, Louise went. If she didn't snap out of it in a hurry, too, Irene called her a name or gave her a push.

Here was tyranny. The worst of it was that when Irene chose to be kind, her sister was pitifully grateful.

Everybody was quiet as long as the little despot was having her own way.

Just as the mother was afraid of breaking the older child's spirit, that young tyrant was doing her best to succeed in subjugating her sister.

"What would you do?" asked their mother. "Shall I take Irene in hand and punish her?"

Separate Them

"No, don't do that. It would be a long war and, after all, there is nothing gained by trying to rob a child of a strong will. Divert it, that's all. Keep her busy with other things. Get some outside interests for that will of hers to dig its teeth into."

"Keep them apart. Give Irene her own room, if possible. Hunt up outside friends for her, friends she can't bulldoze. And see that Louise has outside friends, too, different from Irene's. Don't have them take music from the same teacher. If it could be arranged, I'd send them to different schools. I'd leave as little room for comparison as possible and try to overcome that inferiority complex of Louise's."

And this is the advice I would give to all mothers, whenever they have boys or girls. Keep the dominating one very busy, and keep him apart, but don't try to "master" him or break his spirit.

Entertains for Son

Mrs. Ovid-Butler Jameson, 1035 North Pennsylvania street, entertained New Year's eve with a dinner party in honor of her son, Booth Tarkington Jameson, preceding the Princeton Triangle Club's musical comedy "Zonzo Zee." Covers were laid for twelve at a table decorated with a centerpiece of red roses and lighted with red tapers.

Woodstock New Year's Eve

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coleman, 706 West Tenth street, entertained Monday evening with a dinner party in honor of their grandson, Coleman Atkins, at the Woodstock Club. Covers were laid for fourteen guests. Among other dinner parties given at the club was one attended by Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Ritchey, Messrs. and Mesdames Emmet Hall, Thomas Harvey Cox, Walter Beiling, J. T. McDermott and Wendell Sherer.
