

KEYES PLEADS FOR ACQUITTAL IN BRIBE CASE

Former Prosecutor Fights 'Most Important' Court Battle of Career.

By United Press
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 7.—The voice of Asa Keyes resounded throughout a little courtroom in the old Los Angeles county courthouse today as the former district attorney resumed his plea for acquittal on bribery conspiracy charges.

The courtroom was filled with throngs eager to hear Keyes in what he termed "the most important case to me in twenty-nine years of practice."

Keyes was fighting to clear his name and his honor, he said, and asked the jury of ten women and two men if, in view of his long experience, they thought he would be such a fool to accept "hush money" in Ben Getzoff's tailor shop with employees crowding the shop and customers coming in and out.

Strong Language Used
His old role of prosecutor in criminal cases overshadowed his plea for acquittal. He characterized Milton Pike, Joseph Sherman and John Rettinger as "damned liars" in referring to the testimony of the three journeymen tailors whose diary of what took place in the little Spring street tailor shop led to the present trial of Keyes, Getzoff and Ed Rosenberg.

When he asserted that "people attempted to lynch Jack Bennett for the $35,000,000 stock overissue in the Julian cases," he was challenged by Special Prosecutor William J. Clark, who held that there never was such evidence in the case and "that Keyes is the damnedest liar I ever saw."

Just Friendly Gifts
Bennett, alias Jacob Berman, was indicted with Keyes, but turned state's evidence. Although the court ordered the remarks stricken out Keyes urged that they be left in the record, adding that "Mr. Clark probably has his opinion of me and I have mine of him."

The former district attorney said that any money or gifts that Getzoff tendered him were considered in the nature of presents "from a wealthy friend."

The state contends Getzoff received a total of $165,000 from Jacob Berman and Ed Rosenberg which he in turn paid over to Keyes, then Pretty Dolly Scott of Los Angeles was taken prisoner by an armed man as she was leaving a beauty parlor. district attorney, for pointed prosecution of the Julian Petroleum Corporation defendants.

Cites Long Record
Keyes emphasized his long years of "public service in an effort to refute charges that he was false to his trust."

"It takes years and years to build a character," he said. "I have been in office for twenty-six years now acting fairly and openly before the people of the county and I believe I have built a character."

"I want to tell you that this indictment came as a thunder clap from the sky, and it has crushed me down, but I'm not out—and they will never put me out. My heart, mind and conscience are clear."

District Attorney Buron Pitts and Special Prosecutor Clark will close for the state. The case probably will go to the jury late Friday or early Saturday.

HOOVER USES 'BUFFER'; KEEPS OFF POLITICIANS

Colonel Horace Mann Sees Most of Office Seekers in Florida.

By United Press
MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 7.—President-Elect Hoover, as well as being secluded from the public gaze, is being protected here from a stream of politicians by the simple device of a buffer.

That buffer is Colonel Horace Mann, director of Hoover's southern campaign, who admits the role frankly.

Mann has an office and a small office force in a local hotel, which he says is paid for by the Florida Republican organization. Many who come here to see the President-elect are told to see Mann. Most of them are office seekers such as usually swarm about a man in Hoover's position.

Mann, who has disclaimed any ambition to be dispenser of southern patronage and says he will play no such role, says he talks to these people—but promises them nothing.

He is here to keep these people from taking up the time of the next chief executive, who has more important concerns, he explains.

The colonel keeps in the background here, as he did during the campaign. He has appeared at the Hoover executive offices, but once.

But Mann keeps in daily touch with the President-elect by telephone and by messenger, giving rise to the belief that he still occupies an important part in the Hoover scheme of things; but just what has not been disclosed.

He will not be the "Colonel House" of the Hoover administration, though he, like President Wilson's right hand man, is from the south, Tennessee.

An Indiana mother tells this: "We find nothing to compare with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs and colds. My little lad had trouble with his bronchial tubes from his third year, but since we started giving him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound we have been able to control it. BOY MISSING AFTER REPROOF RETURNS

Joseph Parker, Said to Have Been Kidnaped, Is Home.

Joseph Parker, 15, of 1223 East Sixteenth street, returned home at about 4 a. m. today from "playing hooky" from Technical high school Wednesday afternoon.

Police and detectives were searching for the boy Wednesday afternoon after it was believed he had been kidnaped by a "beautiful woman." Miss Mabel Goddard, Tech English teacher, later was identified as "the beautiful woman," who called the boy from class to reprimand him.

After getting some sleep this morning at his home, Joseph nonchalantly walked out and refused to tell his mother, Mrs. Charles B. Parker, where he was going.

"But it won't be Tech," he said.

Rehearing Denied in Attempted Killing of School Teacher.

By United Press
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 7.—The Illinois supreme court today denied a rehearing to Hiram Reed convicted of the love bombing of Iola Bradford, La Salle county school teacher.

Reed was found guilty of placing dynamite in the stove of the school in which Miss Bradford taught.

Refusal of the state tribunal to reconsider its decision leaves Reed only one recourse—the Governor—and clemency there is unlikely.

ITALY AND POPE SETTLE DISPUTE OF 59 YEARS

Treaty Between Holy See, Government to Be Signed Sunday.

By THOMAS B. MORGAN, United Press Staff Correspondent

ROME, Feb. 7.—Diplomats of twenty-five nations gathered in the red hall of the Vatican palace today and heard Pietro Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, announce that the Holy See and the Italian government had settled their differences after a dispute lasting since 1870.

It was a solemn occasion. Cardinal Gasparri, with great dignity, made the announcement in a few simple words. The entire ceremony occupied less than fifteen minutes.

The agreement will be signed on Sunday in the historic church of St. John Lateran. Cardinal Gasparri will sign the treaty in behalf of the pope and Premier Benito Mussolini for the Italian government.

The reconciliation restores the pope to status as a temporal sovereign, of which he was deprived when Italy seized the papal state in 1870.

Its terms, in brief, provide for slight enlargement of the present Vatican grounds and its establishment as a sovereign state; payment of an indemnity for church property taken over by the government in 1870, and exchange of diplomatic representatives between the Vatican and Italy.

The entire diplomatic corps in Rome was present when Gasparri made the announcement, with the exception of Ambassador Blancas of Argentina, who is in poor health and sent a letter of regret.

red hall to make his announcement, picked an atmosphere that corresponded strikingly with papal pomp. The walls are covered with deep red damask panels, with lines of gold. The furniture is heavy and massive, with triangular marble-topped tables here and there against the walls.

Cardinal Gasparri wore a black soutane piped with red and partly covered with a red mantle. He spoke in emotional tones in making his announcement, evidently feeling deeply the importance of his task.

When Gasparri signs the treaty on Sunday it will be the first time he and Mussolini have met.

The setting of the ceremony will be in an historic background. The Lateran Basilica is on the site of a palace presented to the bishop of Rome by Constantine the Great. It is in the southeast corner of the city. The ceremony will be in the strictest privacy, with only the necessary functionaries admitted to witness the event.

"I sure was right — I lit a Lucky"

"So many people have made a fuss over me because in rowing back to the 'America,' after we had picked up the 'Florida' survivors, I was smoking a Lucky Strike. I can't see why there should be any excitement about this—it was the natural thing for me to do. Before we started out from the 'America' I made sure that my pack of Luckies was with me—I wanted the comfort and pleasure of Luckies no matter what happened. I sure was right. I'll have to admit that after we picked up the 'Florida' crew and started back, my nerves were completely let down. So I did the thing I always do at such times—I lit a Lucky. As long as I live, I'll never get another kick as I did from the sweet old toasted flavor of that Lucky as we were tossing about on the old Atlantic. I'm a hundred percent when it comes to 'reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.' I lay off the things that would make me flabby and light up a Lucky instead. There's too much action going on in my life to have me moving around with a lot of excess weight which I don't need. There's another thing about Luckies. The toasting process, in removing the impurities, is a blessing to us who follow the sea. It prevents throat irritation which is a constant nuisance to those who are regularly exposed to salt air."
