STATE BUDGET OF $55,478,945 RUSHED ACROSS

Steam Roller Works Like Clock; Taxpayers to Carry Big Load.

With Senator Bruce E. Cooper (Rep.), Stewartsville, whistling noisily, and Senator Thurman A. Gottschalk (Dem.), Berne, acting as conductor, the biennial budget bill was "steam rolled" through the senate Friday afternoon, emerging with a total of $55,478,945 and the probability of a 10-cent increase in the state rate for the taxpayer.

Attempts of three or four senators to amend the measure and strike nearly a million dollars from it failed miserably. The majority of the members of the senate assumed a circus day attitude and refused to take any reduction seriously.

They did approve increases totaling $440,500. The largest of these was the boosting of the Governor's emergency fund from $80,000 to $250,000 a year.

Prepare for Emergency
Senator Earl Rowley, La Porte, urged this increase, on the grounds that there might be a cyclone or flood or some other "act of God." The fund can be used for any expenditure which the chief executive considers an emergency, but Rowley assured the senators it will not go for "a house, automobile or new watch."

Governor Harry G. Leslie was allowed funds for a car by the budget committee, but members did not approve appropriations for a new mansion, suggested informally by the Governor.

The next raise was the addition of $100,000 for two armories, each to cost $50,000, and to be built in succeeding years when appropriations are available. This amendment was introduced by Senator Robert L. Moorhead, Indianapolis, member of the army board.

It is to provide for new buildings with the "closed corporation" plan abolished, he declared. He said twelve more are needed and such appropriation should be continued for the next twelve years.

No Slash of Rentals
No attempt was made to slash, check or abolish the $250,000 annual appropriation for lease-rentals, to pay holding companies for armories built during the last four years.

A $500 increase was made in the appropriation for expenses of this session. Lieutenant-Governor Edgar Bush said that he had to maintain an office at the English hotel until his quarters at the statehouse were prepared, the cost being a little more than $200, the difference going into the treasury to the account for which it was appropriated.

Heads of educational and other state institutions were on hand to see the senators pass their bill. Led by Senator James J. Nejd and William A. Hodges, Gary, an attempt was made to adopt it without any discussion, but after some wrangling the senate finally resolved into committee of the whole.

Advices Against Delay
No sooner had this occurred than Nejd again tried to "put it over." The motion was out of order, but was ruled by the speaker, suggested by Bush, Senator Denver C. Harlan, president pro tem, presiding, and other regular party leaders of the G. O. P.

Harlan advised against delay and said that since it was necessary to increase the tax rate it might as well be done speedily.

Senator Alonzo H. Lindley, Kingman, leader of the opposition to such speedy action as occurred in the house, then took the floor. "I do not propose to stand by and see this thing railroaded through," he shouted. "We are sent here for the prime purpose of curbing unnecessary expenditures. But I admit that in all the political conventions I ever attended I never have seen the steam roller better oiled than it is for this budget bill."

Heads of every educational institution in the state are on hand to watch us perform and carry out their desires. If there is anything in this bill that should not be seen, let's get into it and see it."

Put State in Debt
He pointed out that the budget committee membership was the same as the one which put the state into debt for $1,700,000 worth of armories and the building appropriations which proved insufficient.

Gottschalk, although the Democrat member of the committee, became its spokesman, and Senator Luther O. Draper, Spiceland, the Republican member, seldom took the floor.

Senator Joseph M. Cravens, Madison, Democratic floor leader, urged the budget adoption on the fly and the final vote in the senate was 39 ayes and 3 noes.

Senator John L. Niblack, Indianapolis, introduced an amendment saving $294,000 by abolishing the state police. He pointed out that now they are used for political purposes and have limited police powers. He cited the instance of their placing posters for Frederick E. Schortemeyer, then secretary of state and candidate for Governor.

Asks for Reductions
Lindley offered amendments cutting $240,000 from the board of health, $100,000 from the state conservation department, $70,000 from the Indiana University extension, and $80,000 for a power plant at the medical unit.

He pointed out that when the special building levy was made, all building was supposed to be provided for and that health board, conservation and extension increases were unnecessary or provided for in other portions of the bill.

The Democrats made their usual attempt to abolish all inspection of food and carry $181,200 and Senator I. Floyd Garrett, Battleground, tried to knock out $100,000 for the state attendance officer.

Each reduction amendment was tabled. The committee resolved into the senate and swallowed the whole pill.

HOOVER PICKS EX-GOVERNOR OF MISSOURI

Arthur Hyde Will Be New Agriculture Secretary in Cabinet.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES
United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—President-Elect Hoover spent his last regular day as a private citizen today, for some time at least.

He devoted himself to resting, with his family about him, and clearing up a few last-minute matters while official Washington sought to learn the identity of the only member of the cabinet not hitherto revealed, secretary of commerce, the post he filled for seven and a half years.

One Aid Still Unknown

The other "surprise" cabinet member is former Governor Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri, who will be secretary of agriculture. His selection was revealed Friday night, checking for the moment a frenzy of speculation here unequalled even in similar circumstances and with humorous aspects. The speculation was resumed over the commerce post.

Hoover draws from the camp of his leading pre-convention foe, former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, in bringing Hyde into his official family. Hyde supported Lowden for the presidential nomination.

Hyde, who is 51, has participated in farm relief movements. Lowden was champion of the McNary-Lawden bill which Hoover refused to sign. The selection came as a distinct surprise to official Washington. Hyde had not been mentioned in the wealth of speculative gossip.

Native of Missouri

He is a native of Missouri, having been born in Princeton July 12, 1877. He graduated from the University of Michigan, took a law degree at Iowa State university, and entered politics as mayor of Princeton, 1900-1915, in that city. He was Governor from 1921 to 1925. His home now is in Trenton, Mo.

Missouri, always a doubtful state, thus retains the representation in the new cabinet which she had in the retiring cabinet in the person of Dwight F. Davis, secretary of war.

Hoover Earning Capacity Limited While in Office

He Can Only Receive $6,250 Each Month During Presidency.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, March 2.—When Herbert Hoover becomes President of the United States Monday his earning capacity will be limited to $6,500 a year granted by Act of Congress.

In civil life, Mr. Hoover could earn at least four times this amount as he is regarded one of the best organizers and mining engineers in the world.

But the last of every month a special messenger will come from the treasury department to the White House and present the chief executive with a check or voucher for $6,250, payable to Herbert Hoover, President of the United States.

This check must be indorsed by the President and then deposited in his bank.

Twelve times each year, Mr. Hoover will be handed his pay check and at the end of the twelve-month period he will have received his $75,000.

Besides this salary, Mr. Hoover will be allowed $25,000 a year for traveling expenses. He does not have to account for this sum and can draw from it at will until it is exhausted. Any amount unexpended at the end of the fiscal year, however, reverts to the treasury.

ABYSSINIANS RELATED TO ANCIENT EGYPTIANS

Scientists Say Grain Friend in Tombs Is Identical.

By Science Service
LENINGRAD, March 2.—The hints of Herodotus that the ancient Egyptians and the Abyssinians were somehow connected has received unexpected corroboration from botany.

According to investigations of the well-known Russian botanist, K. A. Flaxenburg, a striking likeness is now established between the old Egyptian emmer found in the sarcophagus of the priests of the Twelfth Dynasty, and the Abyssinian samples collected by the Vaviloff expedition in 1927. These Egyptian specimens differ strongly from other forms of emmer and especially from the Persian form, in which some scientists found some likeness with the Egyptian grain.

From Abyssinia the emmer is believed to have spread to Arabia, India and Egypt. In Persia form arose which are allied to the Abyssinian ones. In Serbia other forms differentiated which approach the Abyssinian types. The Russian emmer originated from these Serbian forms.

GLIDER GIVEN BUTLER U. BY STRAUSS & CO.

German Experts Coming to Teach Operation of New Aircraft.

With presentation by L. Strauss & Co. of a training glider to Butler university, the school becomes the second college in the United States to take up this form of sport.

The glider is an immense affair, having a wing spread of thirty-four feet, and all the appearance of an engineless airplane.

The new glider will arrive here Tuesday and will be on exhibition Wednesday at the Butler fieldhouse when the Butler-Wabash basketball game is played.

Accompanying the glider here will be one of two German glider experts, either Paul T. Roehre or Peter Hesselbach, assisted by Lieutenant F. M. Blunk, who will remain here a week, giving instructions to Coach "Potsy" Clark, Ralph Hitch, graduate athletics manager, and charter members of the newly-formed Butler Glider Club, composed of faculty members, representatives from each fraternity, and non-fraternity men.

Demonstration March 16

The public will have its first opportunity to see a demonstration of the glider in flight March 16 at 4 p. m.

The motorless glider is launched on the catapult, or "slingshot," principles. Eight men pull taut a pair of heavy rubber cables and when they release their hold on the cable, the glider is shot off into space and rides the wind.

While Germany has more than 200,000 glider club members, there are but few such clubs in the United States. The University of Michigan is the only other school having a glider club. German gliders have established an altitude record of 2,500 feet and an endurance record of 15 1/2 hours.

Members Are Listed

Butler Club members include: Faculty, Russell Weber, Milton D. Baumgartner, E. N. Johnson, Herbert Rahe, Dr. Forest O'Dell, Chester Camp, Lee Garber, Paul Hawthorn, A. E. Officials of L. Strauss & Co. have taken an active interest in aviation, opening a travel bureau, where information on all phases of aviation is available to the public.

The company also plans an airplane-building contest for boys to be announced in the near future.

UTILITY BILL REPORT TO BE MADE MONDAY

Act Will Hamper Sales of Stocks, Say Opponents at Hearing Friday.

No report on the Moorhead utility holding company bill will be made by judiciary A committee until after conference Monday.

Opponents and proponents of the bill have had two public hearings at which they had an opportunity to present their respective sides of the argument.

The bill which passed the senate provides that whenever a holding company has more than 50 per cent of the stock of a utility operating in Indiana, it shall come under the purview of the public service commission as do other utilities.

Opponents of the bill who spoke Friday night include Glenn Van Alden of Indianapolis, representing the Insull property, the Indiana Electric Company; William Taylor, Indianapolis attorney and utility reorganizer; Charles D. Kelo, New Albany attorney, and John S. Powell and John T. Detchan, Indianapolis Telephone Company operators.

All concurred in saying that passage of the bill would seriously hamper the stock sales of holding companies holding Indiana utility stocks and bonds.

Need for control of the holding companies which charge excessive rates for service to the utilities they own was stressed by Taylor "Groninger, former corporation counsel of Indianapolis, and Harold J. Bachelder, attorney.

Both pointed out that holding companies control a varied type of industry, and that they issue stock upon all of their holdings, and that when one doesn't pay, it is necessary in some manner to make the others pay more in order to meet the deficit and keep up the payment of dividends.

This throws too great a burden upon the utility.

In order that rates may be fairly fixed, it is necessary to know of all contracts between the utilities and the holding companies. The Moorhead bill would permit obtaining such information.

RIPS BRITISH POLICY

Blundering in Dealings With U. S. Charged by Press.

By United Press
LONDON, March 2.—"The British foreign office under Lord Chamberlain has blundered repeatedly in its relations with the United States," Lord Rothermere, publisher of the London Daily Mail, declared in a front page article published in his paper today.

The article was cabled to the Daily Mail from New York, where Lord Rothermere spent some time after a tour of South America.

Lord Rothermere said that a naval competition between Great Britain and the United States was impossible, because the latter now possessed more than half the wealth of the world.

SENATE KEEPS UP ITS BATTLE WITH COOLIDGE

More Than 20 Nominations to Important Offices to Be Shelved.

BY PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Staff Correspondent.
WASHINGTON, March 2.—For six years President Coolidge has been unable to get along with the senate in the matter of appointments and now with congress peacefully dying and Coolidge quietly returning to private life, they are still at odds.

More than twenty Coolidge nominations to important offices are to be shelved according to the plans of senate leaders.

The names submitted by the President will die with the congress at noon Monday.

"They include eight judgeships and numerous lesser offices and such personages as Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of navy, offered as judge of the Ninth California district and former Senator Irvin L. Lenroot, Wisconsin, named to be judge of the United States court of customs appeals.

Fail to Act on Judges

Groups of senators have been aroused at the haste of the chief executive in naming six new federal judges under the bill which finally passed congress only a few hours before the names were submitted by Coolidge.

In the ordinary course of events, the names might not be submitted by the President for weeks.

The leaders carry out their plan of ignoring the nominations. President-Elect Hoover may do out these offices to other parties after he takes the oath.

The judges who thus are slated for senate inaction include, besides Wilbur, Lloyd Striker and Francis Caffey, New York; Archibald Gardner, South Dakota; George McDermott, Kansas, and O. L. Phillips, New Mexico.

Radio Bill Forced Through

The bill continuing the life of the radio commission was forced through the senate Friday night after a nine hour filibuster by Senator Royal S. Copeland (Dem., N. Y.). Copeland secured adoption of a amendment which provides the commission will function only until Dec. 31.

The senate also adopted house amendments to the Edge resolution authorizing a $150,000 survey of the Nicaragua canal.
