

of her husband, Joseph De King, knocked there by the butt of Smith's gun.

"That point in itself proves to my satisfaction that Smith's self-defense plea is a hasty alibi," Milroy said. "The wound in Mrs. De King's stomach ranged downward. Smith is a tall man and she was but five feet two inches tall. It is obvious that she was shot as she started to the aid of her husband."

"From my own knowledge I can testify that I heard the shot and a scream over the phone. An instant before she had been talking to me. She couldn't have got as far as her husband and left that blood stain on the table cloth," Milroy added.

Legality of the search warrant also was under fire of the De King attorneys.

According to the story told by Magistrate John J. Weber, who signed the document, it was made out in the name of "Mr. and Mrs. John Doe" at the address of the De King home, but described the house as a two-story dwelling, whereas the De King home is a story and a half.

The warrant, Weber said, was sworn out on the testimony of Fairchild that he had bought a drink at the house on Jan. 19, nine weeks prior to the raids.

Another point of doubt concerning the warrant is whether it was valid the second time it was used Monday night at the De King home, two distinct raids having been made.

The deputies have admitted the warrant was not read to the De Kings or even shown to them.

Urge Law Repeal

By United Press
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 28.—After a scathing denunciation of the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King in Aurora by dry raiders, wets in the lower house of the state assembly today predicted the state prohibition law would be wiped off the statute books.

The predictions came after wets and dries had staged a spectacular battle of oratory in the lower house and the wets had forced consideration of a bill that repeals the state dry act.

Dryes had won in committee, but the wets, by a 72 to 70 vote, forced adoption of a minority report, thus assuring a vote on the measure.

Nearly the entire day Wednesday was taken up with the legislative battle, the wets terming the slaying of Mrs. De King "legalized murder." No dry legislator arose to defend the killer, although the prohibitionists fought hard to have the majority report adopted.

"The eighteenth amendment was conceived in fraud and thrives on corruption," Representative Leroy Green, one of the wets, said in opening the session. "There aren't a dozen members here who don't violate it."

DRYS FEARFUL WOMAN KILLING HURTS CAUSE

Tactics of Illinois Raiders Draw Ire of U. S. Prohibition Heads.

By RAY TUCKER
Times Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Despite their guarded comment, leading dries today showed concern lest the attack by Illinois dry agents on the De King home at Aurora would cause a revulsion of public sentiment toward prohibition.

In the face of widespread discussion of the shooting of Mrs. De King and the bombardment of the home with tear bombs, figures prominent in prohibition enforcement circle reserved direct comment until more facts were forthcoming.

Seldom have Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Senator Wesley Jones, sponsor of the jail-sentence bill, and Senator Morris Sheppard, author of the eighteenth amendment, displayed such reticence in discussing prohibition enforcement.

Against Such Tactics

Though Mrs. Willebrandt declined to "censor" a sovereign state, she indicated that the war-time tactics used by the Illinois raiders did not meet her approval.

"That is so completely out of the federal jurisdiction," she said, "that it would be inappropriate for me to comment on it. It is not up to the government to censor the action of state officials, and I prefer to avoid making any comment."

Pointing out that there were conflicting versions of the attack and the killing of Mrs. De King, Senator Jones was another who preferred to withhold comment.

"I don't believe that anybody would deliberately shoot a woman except in self-defense," he said regarding the report that the sheriff had killed the mother in the affray. Asked if he approved the use of tear bombs to gain entrance, he replied: "Well, it is my understanding that they are not harmful, although I do not know about that for certain."

Seymour W. Lowman, federal dry czar, adopted Mrs. Willebrandt's tactics of saying nothing in view of the fact that his men were not involved. But he made clear that the methods employed were repugnant to him.

"I'm glad they were state officers," he said.

Doran Is Outspoken

Dr. J. M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, who actually frames enforcement policies, was outspoken in his criticism.

"Anybody in my organization using such methods," he said, "will hear from me. I won't stand for anything like that. I have ordered that nothing of that sort go on in federal enforcement. My men know we won't listen to any proposition to use tear bombs."

He also recalled that instructions against the use of firearms have been distributed repeatedly through his organization. No justification for resort to violence, according to these warnings, can be presented except that of self-defense.

Senator Sheppard preferred to await more detailed information before commenting. When a newspaper report of the methods used to gain entrance was read to him, he replied:

"That is just hearsay to me, and I cannot comment until I assure myself of the truth of that report."

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, saw no reason for condemning the state dry agents.

"I don't think any ado would be made about this if it were an ordinary policeman making an arrest for any other crime," he said.

"I think we must give prohibition officers every right policemen have in the enforcement of other laws, and that when we go into a thing like this, we must finish the job."

SALARIES INCREASED

Adjustments Made for State Employees.

Salary adjustments for several department employees were worked out Wednesday by the state budget committee, Lawrence P. Orr, chief examiner of the state board of accounts, announced today.

Special tax board representatives were reduced in number from five to four and will receive $3,000 rather than $2,800 annually.

A $150-a-month revolving fund auditorship was authorized in the office of Archie N. Bobbitt, state auditor.

Three clerks to carry out new corporation laws in the office of Secretary of State Otto G. Fife were approved with salaries from $1,600 to $1,800.

Salaries of two traveling auditors in the automobile license bureau were increased from $1,920 to $2,220. A painter at $150 a month was added to the statehouse maintenance force.

Indiana Mother Knew Answer

"Yes, sir, I am certainly proud of my little boy," says Mrs. Geo. D. Reese, 925 Woodlawn Ave., Indianapolis. "He's the picture of health as you can see, and I feel like he'll always be that way as long as I can get California Fig Syrup. I have used it with him ever since he was a year old. I knew what to give him for his colds and his feverish, upset spells because I had used California Fig Syrup with all of my older children. I have used it freely with my baby and he loves it. It always fixes him up, quick."

In many homes, like this, the third and fourth generations are using pure, wholesome California Fig Syrup because it has never failed to do what is expected of it. Nothing so quickly and thoroughly purges a child's system of the souring waste which keeps him cross, feverish, headachy, bilious, half-sick, with coated tongue, bad breath and no appetite or energy as long as it is allowed to remain in the little stomach and bowels. Fig Syrup gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act as Nature intends them to do, and helps build up and strengthen weak, pale and underweight children. Over four million bottles used a year shows its popularity. The genuine, endorsed by physicians for fifty years, always bears the word "California."—Advertisement.

CONFERENCE ON HOSPITAL TO BE SECRET SESSION

Public Will Not Be Represented at Meeting With Mayor.

The public will be denied representation at the conference at which the city hospital building program, involving expenditure of millions, will be discussed Friday afternoon, Mayor L. Ert Slack had decided today. He announced his conference with health officials and city councilmen will be secret.

"I never have public conferences in my office," said the mayor.

The conference is to be one of the most important in the series of negotiations, extending over the last three years, which health officials hope will result in city hospital being enlarged and equipped to a point where it will adequately serve the present population and form a foundation for an even greater institution as the city grows.

The health board, upon advice of Dr. Christopher W. Parnell, hospital consultant, favors the eventual construction of a new power plant, out-patient and laboratory building and two six-story ward units to serve 220 additional patients.

The board would be willing to undertake the program in one piece, but the council is not expected to authorize so large an expenditure at this time.

The health board is particularly anxious to get the out-patient department, developed. This department served 50,000 cases in 1928. Dr. Frederick E. Jackson, president, said "There are many persons of small means who need periodic treatment or examination without being institutionalized. For such classes the out-patient department furnishes a most satisfactory solution."

RATS ATE RABBITS; HE GETS $300 IN CLAIM

Poultry Dealer Wins in Suit Against Storage Firm.

Rabbits and rats just can't get along.

Since this is true, Calvin A. Smulvan, local poultry dealer, 1051 South Capitol avenue, was awarded $300 judgment against the West Street Cold Storage Company, 1242 South West street, Wednesday by a jury in Superior Judge Joseph M. Miller's court.

According to the complaint, which was emphatically denied by the company, Smulvan left twelve dozen barrels of rabbits in storage with the company for nine months during 1927. When he opened the barrels he found the rats had disposed of most of the rabbits.

Consequently the damage suit was filed.
