COURT DELAYS SENTENCING IN HAMMER CASE

Muncie Judge Considers 'Human Side' with Man, 84, Accused.

MUNCIE, Ind., April 4.—The "human side" is being considered here by City Judge Harry S. Redkey to guide him in sentencing Charles Gable, 84, accused of striking Mrs. Ella Hughes with a hammer.

Although Judge Redkey, after hearing evidence, said there was little doubt of Gable's guilt, he remarked: "Still, there is the human side to be considered."

For half of his life Gable had made his home in the house of which Mrs. Hughes is now mistress. He went there after his marriage and remained after death of his wife.

Deeded Home Away
Fifteen years ago Gable, feeling time's incursions on his strength, told Judge Redkey that he deeded the house to Mrs. Hughes, a relative by marriage, upon condition that he be permitted to stay as long as he lived. A week ago Mrs. Hughes told the old man times were getting hard and that she wanted him to move. Gable in court described the incidents which caused filing of a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill against him. He said he used a hammer in repairing a suitcase in his room and was on his way to return it to a tool shed when Mrs. Hughes, seated at the breakfast table, repeated her request that he leave. Gable says he turned suddenly, and in doing so the hammer came in contact with Mrs. Hughes' head.

Offers Bloody Exhibit
But Mrs. Hughes testified that Gable came up behind her and beat her with the hammer. She exhibited an apron she wore the day of the alleged attack. There were bloodstains upon it. Gable too bears bruises on his face. Police Captain William Vaughn and City Clerk Mayne Dabry testified they saw the bruises when Gable gave bond pending trial. In the meantime, Gable has filed a suit in circuit court to set aside the deed under which Mrs. Hughes holds possession of the home.

SENATOR DEFENDS 'VOTE DRY, DRINK WET'

But Jim Reed Denies 'Confession' Justifies Blease Stand

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Senator Cole Blease (Dem., S. C.) who admits he drinks, voted for prohibition "because I represent people who believe in it" and supported the Jones law "because I think it is the best way to end prohibition."

That seemingly contradictory viewpoint, combining support of laws which he personally would like to see repealed off the statute books, was explained by Senator Blease.

"There is no inconsistency in my position," he said. "This is a representative government. I do not presume to place my own

'By Mother'

Forgotten Bible, Bearing Loving Inscription, Awaits Owner.

A LITTLE leather bound Bible, probably a family heirloom, is awaiting the claim of its owner today in the municipal court of Judge Clifford R. Cameron.

The Bible was found in September, 1928, when the court room was remodeled. No one knew who owned the book, how it got there, or how long it had been in the court room.

On the fly leaf is written: "Levi S. Knotts, New Lebanon, Ind. By my mother. Nov. 17, 1863. Eleventh Indiana infantry, Company G."

On another leaf the age of Knotts is given as 18. The Bible evidently was carried through the Civil war by Knotts, Judge Cameron said.

SENATOR DEFENDS 'VOTE DRY, DRINK WET'

But Jim Reed Denies 'Confession' Justifies Blease Stand

Accusations that two "dry" congressmen brought liquor illegally into the United States have re-opened the question of lawmakers who drink but yet vote "dry" on prohibition issues. In interviews with the United Press, Senator Cole Blease of South Carolina and former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri take divergent attitudes on the subject.

views above the views of the people I represent. "Any public man should obey the laws as an example to private citizens. It is not a violation of the law to take a drink."

"I voted for the Jones law," he added. "I did it because I think it is the best way to end prohibition. "If we pass enough drastic laws to enforce prohibition the whole thing will be repealed."

RECORD CROWD PREPARED FOR BY REALTORS

Expect 150,000 to Attend During Ten Days of Exposition.

With the last exhibit in place and final decorations hung, all was in readiness today for the opening of the eighth annual realtors' home show in the Manufacturers' building at the state fairground at 6 tonight.

Heralding it as the most elaborate and comprehensive exposition of home building and furnishing materials ever staged, show officials confidently predicted a record attendance.

With the show scheduled to run ten days, exclusive of Sunday, instead of seven as heretofore, and with transportation lines through the state preparing to bring in large groups of out-of-town visitors, a total attendance of 150,000, a 50 per cent increase over the largest previous record was set as the goal. Tonight was designated as realtors' night, and a big attendance of Indianapolis Real Estate Board members sponsoring the show, was expected.

Mayor to Preside
A brief ceremony, in which Mayor L. E. Slack will formally open the exposition, will be held.

In addition to approximately 150 exhibits, there will be a number of new feature attractions.

Among them will be the life-size, centerpiece model home, a modern bungalow-type dwelling; a tiny town exhibit, featuring nearly 200 miniature model cardboard houses made by Marion county grade and high school pupils, and a free building consultation bureau, where visitors may obtain without charge expert advice on building, remodeling and landscaping.

While there have been life-sized model homes featured in the exposition prior to this year, the 1929 house, erected by J. L. Holway for the Indianapolis Home Builders' Association, differs considerably from those of previous years.

To Sell for $11,000

It will be of greater interest to the average prospective home-builder, because it was designed to sell for $11,000, exclusive of lot. Previous model homes have sold for between $20,000 and $25,000.

The home is modern, with three bedrooms, a commodious breakfast nook, a tiled bath and vaulted ceiling living room among its features. Plans also call for a large attic space, providing room for expansion in a growing family, and a large social room in the basement.

The house is modernized English in architecture, expressed in mellowed hues of brick. Undoubtedly one of the greatest centers of attraction in the entire exposition will be the "Tiny Town" exhibit. Although all of the entries were made on uniform plans provided by the real estate board, every conceivable type of construction, frame, brick, stucco and stone is represented.

The building consultation bureau will be conducted by Dan W. Le Gore under auspices of the Home Builders' Association. Experts in building, landscaping, heating, plumbing, wiring and other department of building will be on hand at all times to give advice.

Must Show Sketches

Persons planning to modernize old homes are invited by Le Gore to bring a photograph or sketch of the building as at present. Those seeking landscape advice must prepare a sketch or drawing of their lot, with the location of house and garage, and present planting indicated.

Another outstanding feature of this year's show will be the decorations, carried out along modernistic lines.

On the exterior of the building, covering the front entrance, a walled-in garden in Mediterranean style has been constructed. Further carrying out the garden scheme, a line of evergreens has been erected from the garden gate to the Thirty-eighth street entrance to the fairground.

CITY OF GUNS WINS Cowboy Athlete Too Realistic

CHICAGO, April 4.—Chicago, the land of machine guns, automatic pistols and Kollege Kut Klothes has met and vanquished Nevada, habitat of Winchester rifles, six-shooters and chaps.

Here are the details:
Last Sunday the Winnemucca (Nev.) basketball team arrived to compete in the national high school tournament. Both players and manager, Art Lyon, had been somewhat apprehensive about entering the city where machine gunners mowed their victims down by sevens, so they arranged through Governors, congressmen and mayors for a motorcycle police squad to convey them safely to the University of Chicago.

Of course, all that ceremony entailed some publicity, but the westerners didn't seem to mind it in the least. They were arrayed in five-gallon hats, woolly chaps, red shirts and brightly stitched boots that boasted spurs long and sharp. Their costumes were complete except for six-shooters.

Monday night the Winnemucca basketballers were defeated by the Wheeler (Miss.) team, thereby eliminating slight interruptions in sightseeing trips.

THEN Bob Gingery, one of the Winnemucca athletes who has a flair for the realistic, sauntered from his hotel to gaze at the tall buildings.

He was decked out in his western regalia, adding as a realistic touch, a six-shooter which dangled on his right hip in a silver mounted holster.

He hadn't gone more than two or three blocks when he became lost in the roaring canyons of the loop.

He naively accosted a policeman, who took one look at the but of the six-shooter peeping out, and called the wagon.

As Judge Freeman Fairbank was pondering over Gingery's case, two telegrams arrived. They were from the Governor of Nevada and H. M. Adams, president of the Western Pacific railroad.

The judge wouldn't say what the wires contained, but he discharged Gingery with the admonition to watch his canyons hereafter and not try to intimidate the gangsters.

All Julietta Jobe, former waiter at the Claretta Hospital for the Insane, needs to carry on his wedded life is to receive judgment from Criminal Judge James A. Collins on the charge of aiding in the escape of a person detained in the institution and to get his wife out of the institution.

He has pleaded not guilty before Collins on the former and Friday afternoon Superior Judge Joseph M. Milner will consider Jobe's habeas corpus action asking for the freedom of his wife, formerly Miss Ida Mae Willard, Julietta inmate.

The habeas corpus suit alleged that Benjamin Morgan, institution superintendent, unlawfully is restraining her since her marriage to Jobe in Louisville two weeks ago. Jobe and the girl ran away after a "courtship" in the institution dining-room. After their flight they were traced throughout the southern part of the state and arrested in Louisville following the marriage.

Quick Success
Few girls in pictures have made such rapid strides toward success as this charming New Yorker. Just a few months ago she was given her first job, shadowing a star. Within three hours, she had a real part in the picture—"The Loves of Sunya."

Miss Bayard says: "I am told my selection was largely due to my perfect skin and lovely hair. I've really never taken much trouble with either. For my hair I use the simple method that most of the girls I know here in New York are so enthusiastic about. It's so easy. All you do is put a little Danderine on your brush each time you use it."

"This method is just what a busy girl needs. It's so easy, and it keeps your hair and scalp so clean you don't need to shampoo half so often. I am letting my hair grow and I find Danderine helps make it soft and easily manageable. I can arrange it any way I want and it stays that way. All my friends are complimenting me on the appearance of my hair, nowadays because Danderine has brought out all its natural color and made it so soft and lustrous."

Danderine removes the oily film from each strand and makes dull, stringy hair gleamy, soft, easy to dress. It tones and refreshes the scalp; helps overcome dandruff. It is delicately fragrant; isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35¢ bottles. Advertisement.

MAIN MEXICO REBEL ARMY IS DEFEATED

'Hundreds Slaughtered by Federals,' Says Victorious General.

EL PASO, April 4.—The Escobar revolt in Mexico was crushed late Wednesday with the capture of the main infantry troop trains of the rebel forces at Reforma, Chihuahua, fifteen miles north of Jimenez, Consul-General Enrique Lieken announced early today after receipt of an official report from General Juan Andreu Almazan, federal division commander.

General Almazan's report said General Jose Gonzales Escobar and other rebel chieftains deserted their troop trains, after federal forces surrounded them, and fled northward toward Chihuahua City.

The federal commander requested hospital supplies be rushed to Reforma to care for rebel wounded.

General Almazan said the victory at Reforma was the culmination of a series of clashes that began at 1 a. m. Sunday at Corralitos, about twenty miles south of Jimenez.

Federal troops occupied Jimenez Tuesday, with the exception of the railway station and yards, Almazan's report said.

Escobar's troops retreated in their trains to the north, but were cut off by a destroyed bridge, Almazan messaged.

Almazan attacked the surrounded trains from the rear, he said. "The rebels valiantly defended themselves after their leaders deserted them," Almazan wired. "Hundreds were slaughtered and finally the entire rebel force surrendered."

Rebels Report Victory

NOGALES, Sonora, Mexico, April 4.—Revolutionary telegrams from the Jimenez battle section said today that 700 federals had been destroyed so far and that only six rebels had been killed.

General Gonzalo Escobar was preparing to pursue retreating federals under General Andreu Almazan, the reports said.
