Burglars entered the apartment of Miss Ethyl Tisdale and Miss Nell Watson, Apartment 7, at 2735 North Meridian street, Sunday, and took a $100 for coat and a $75 diamond ring. Two purses, the property of Mrs. H. E. Crawford, 6047 Bellefontaine street, and Mrs. Earl Hanson, 3763 Broadway, were stolen from the Hanson home Sunday night. The purses contained $21 in cash and articles valued at more than $20.

The following oil stations were broken into: Shelby and Morris streets, where $10 was stolen from a cash register; Spruce and Prospect streets, where $1 in cash, a fountain pen and a gallon of oil were taken; and Fletcher avenue and Shelby street, from where $12 was stolen.

A pair of trousers were stolen from a tailor shop operated by Eli Gold, at 832 South Meridian street, Saturday night, according to police.

Hold Up Gas Station

Three bandits who held up a filling station at Fortville early Sunday and escaped with $50 in money, a number of watches and a revolver and badge belonging to Deputy Sheriff William F. Dunham, Hancock county, were sought by police here today.

They fled in a stolen car toward Indianapolis. Dunham was the only one of seven victims whose name was learned here.

Earl Robertson, 119 North Dearborn street, collector, was held up and robbed of $30 by two bandits while riding acycle on White river boulevard near West Tenth street early today.

Faces Gaming Charge

Art Deers, 26, and Earl Sears, 42, proprietors of a poolroom at 206 Indiana avenue, faced charges of keeping a gambling house, and operating a lottery, and eighteen others were arrested in a police raid on the poolroom Saturday night.

Twenty-four books of baseball pool tickets, eighty-two lottery tickets, two pairs of dice and $6 in cash were confiscated.

Captured After Chase

Ed Leland, 158 Douglas street, was under arrest today for crimes of operating a blind tiger, transportation of liquor, reckless driving, speeding and failure to have a certificate of title to his automobile, after police pursued his machine three miles, and overtook him in a footrace when the car crashed into a bridge wall Sunday.

Sixteen gallons of alcohol were found in the car, police say. The chase began at Indiana avenue and California street and ended at 1622 West Michigan street, where Leland attempted to get into the basement of the home of James Harrington. When his auto was demolished against the wall at Michigan street and White river Leland got out and ran.

Police raiding apartment 2, St. James court, 2102 North Meridian street, said to be the home of James E. Ryan, Saturday night confiscated a quantity of alleged bonded liquor, home brew and alcohol. Ryan was not at home. Police say claimant of a blind tiger was made by a neighbor.

Shooting Is Probed

Police today were investigating the shooting of Ernest Paul, 55 South Denny street, who was admitted to city hospital Sunday morning with gunshot wounds in his right arm.

Paul said he had put his auto in his garage and was walking out the door when he stumbled on an old shotgun which stood in a corner near the door. The gun was discharged, striking him in the arm, he said.

Police said they found blood on the garage wall and a .32-caliber bullet on the floor.

SENATE TO BE BATTLE GROUND OF TARIFF FOES

Protests Against Hikes to Come From Consumers
and Retailers.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance
WASHINGTON, June 3.—Consumers, retailers and other opponents of large tariff increases are expected to present a stronger front before the senate finance committee than they did when the bill was being drawn by the house.

The senate committee begins its hearings June 11, and protests are beginning to pile up in the offices of senators.

Complaints so far made show that the bitterest fights will come on the increase of the sugar tariff to 3 cents, the shingle, cement and glass increases, the tariff on hides, leather and shoes, and other schedules which would enter directly into the cost of living.

Center Fight on Sugar Hike

Soft drink manufacturers, candy makers, the United States Sugar Association and Housewives Leagues already have entered the fight against the sugar increase. The American bottlers of carbonated beverages figure the yearly increased cost of sugar to consumers at $150,000,000, with several millions of this in the price of soft drinks. The candy manufacturers compute the increase in the candy bill at $4,000,000 a year.

The National Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, with 30,000 members, has protested tariffs on shingles, birch, cedar and maple lumber, all on the free list under the present law, on the ground that the duties will benefit only a small group of manufacturers, will increase costs of consumers, particularly farmers, and will enhance antagonism in Canada against the United States.

Protest Letters Start

Even at this early stage of senate consideration, one senator from an eastern state has accumulated a file of protest letters two inches thick.

They include a letter from the largest shoe and leather manufacturer in his state, protesting the taking of hides, leather and shoes off the free list. No one will be benefited by the tax on all three products, and the only effect will be to increase the price to consumers, the letter contends.

Several housewives' organizations of a large city have wired and written him protests against the sugar duty; glass retailers and importers complained of the increased rates on that commodity, and many lumber dealers joined in a protest against the shingle and lumber increases.

Peruvians Hop for Mexico

By United Press
NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—The Peruvian good-will fliers, Captain Carlos Martinez di Pinillos and Lieutenant Carlos Zegarra, took off from Callender field at 5:05 a. m. today on a prospective non-stop flight to Mexico City.

The green and orange Bellanca monoplane carried 230 gallons of gasoline and got off to a perfect start. In view of prevailing good weather the fliers expected to arrive at Mexico City by a coastal route in from ten to twelve hours.

Rain Halts Flying

Rain practically suspended activities at local airports Sunday.

Cessation of the rain in the middle of the afternoon resulted, however, in a few passengers being carried for joy-hops.

H. A. Speer, who has been attending the air show, left Hoosier today for the Barling factory, Marshall, Mo., in a Barling monoplane. Les Brown, Los Angeles, left Hoosier for Cincinnati today in a Consolidated biplane.

Elsworth Ziegler landed at Hoosier Sunday in a Travelair biplane en route from Wichita, Kan., to Springfield, O., staying overnight.

Rain failed to halt Embry-Riddle air mail planes, which made both trips Sunday.

Gene Jones of the Embry-Riddle traffic department, who had been visiting the air show, left Hoosier today for the Barling factory, Marshall, Mo., in a Barling monoplane. Les Brown, Los Angeles, left Hoosier for Cincinnati today in a Consolidated biplane.

Rogers came here by train from Pittsburgh and was taken directly to the airport, where he boarded the huge plane, which had been flown here from Columbus, O., by Pilot John Collings, head of the T. A. T. eastern division operations.

The flight from here was made in a blinding rain. Rogers said he expected to spend the night at Amarillo, Tex., and to reach Los Angeles by tonight.

He was met at the train by W. R. Crawford Jr., T. A. T. director; J. V. Magee, vice-president and general manager; James A. Perry, Laura Upson of Charles F. Noyes & Co., New York, and H. Weir Cook, Indiana Curtiss company general manager.

Among those who witnessed the takeoff at the field were Major Jack Barry, Cleveland municipal airport manager; Earl W. Sweeney, Curtis instructor; C. F. Devoe, local T. A. T. field manager; William Kester, Standard Oil Company of Indiana; Adjutant-General and Mrs. William H. Kershner and others.

Those making the trip with Rogers and Pilot Collings were Magee, Crawford and Upson.

COLLEGE ROAD PAVING ORDERED BY TAX BOARD

State Group Also Hears
Lawrence School
Objection.

Proposed bond issues totaling $329,233, attracted nearly three hundred Marion county residents and officials to the state tax board for hearing today.

Quick action was taken by the board on the proposed $110,233 bond issue for paving College avenue from Seventy-first street to the county line. It had been appealed to the board by the Indiana Taxpayers' Association.

Phillip Zoercher, member of the board, told county officials and landowners present in behalf of the proposal, that appeal was taken merely to check construction costs and that there was no objection to the paving as such. He therefore ruled at once that the county commissioners advertise for bids.

Would Raise Taxes

Secretary Harry Miese of the tax-payers' body spoke against the board approving a holding company bond issue for $219,000 for construction of a township junior and senior high school in Lawrence township.

More than a hundred residents of the township appeared. Miese contended it would mean an addition to the present tax rate of $1.205 of more than 46 cents.

Attorney Emsley W. Johnson, who appeared for the trustees wanting the new school building, placed the tax increase at 24 cents and asserted that it is necessary to adequately provide school facilities.

An alternate plan was offered by H. E. Chilvers, Lawrence, who declared that an addition could be added to the comparatively new Lawrence school to provide for all township high school students. The school was built at a cost of $125,000 with that in mind, he asserted. This could be done within the bond limit without a holding company, there being $65,000 left to expend, he said.

Location Causes Fight

Principal Paul Anderson of the Lawrence school and Lee Harper of the Lawrence Parent-Teacher Association testified that the school is over-crowded now.

Much of the argument has risen out of location: the three school communities in the township, each wanted the new building at their location, it was said.

The board took the matter under advisement.

Razzed" From School

Two years ago the American flag and the intolerant youths born under it with their "razzing" at his attempts to say "dog" "cat" and other primer words, were odious.

Sunday the youths saluted him, the flag saluted him, and in the berast-parked of his first decent civilian suit, and over his heart was a red-white-and-blue kerchief with a small flag for its monogram.

For Gabriel graduated from the school that they don't play hookey from with highest honors, because of the discovery of his talent for sculpturing. He left Sunday night to visit his family in Chicago and will go from there to St. Thomas college, St. Paul, Minn., to study the art of making dead stones live and as he puts it, "to become great."

In the ceremonies Sunday from the time his inspiration for the statue the poem "The Barefoot Boy" was recited by an inmate, through the short oration of a bunch-pail of his on "The Spirit of Youth" the story of Gabriel's life was told.

Indian Parentage

Born of Aztec Indian parentage at Michiguan, Mexico—a race of sculptors and carvers—Gabriel came to the United States five years ago.

Two years ago he was brought to the reformatory. They placed him in the cement department.

Gabriel played with pebbles and stones. One day he found a nail and a large creek stone. He carved a medallion, a rabbit. A whole barnyard of fossils followed.

C. A. McGonagle, former superintendent of the school and one of the speakers Sunday, discovered his talent, replaced the nail with sculpturing tools. Busts of Lincoln, a statue of the Virgin Mary followed. State Senator C. Oliver Holmes of Gary became interested.

His new school life was planned. But Gabriel wanted to leave something behind him and so a 1,800-pound Bedford stone was secured for him and he chiseled out his conception of the American boy who plays "hookey" who goes ragged to get a "mess of fish."

Gives Praise to God

Gabriel is a devout Catholic. Following the unveiling of his statue he passed out penned cards to those who wished him well with these words, "Engrave God's word in the depths of your soul. If you want to succeed just to him you call."

A gold watch was given to him by his benefactor and teacher, McGonagle, and Gabriel reciprocated by giving him a promise to never do that which sent him to the reformatory, "play hookey from school."

The Methodist hospital building program will be outlined over WFBM, Indianapolis Power and Light Company station, tonight at 7:45 by Arthur R. Baxter, general campaign chairman. Baxter will tell the workings of the expansion fund.

The building at 116 South Pennsylvania street has been leased by Robert Hawkins & Co., distributors of woodenware and grocer sundries. The company was forced to move from 501 Madison avenue, where it has been located for three years, when a lease on the building was taken by the Mooney-Mueller-Ward Drug Company.

Three thousand employees, store managers and their families of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, were shown through the elaborate new warehouse, 1011 East St. Clair street Sunday. Refreshments and music were provided.
