

EDITORS HEAR 1930 KEYNOTE OF DEMOCRATS

Watson, Robinson Played at Indiana Publishers' Session.

By Times Special
LAKE JAMES, Ind., June 8.—Under injunction to carry on their party's battles undismayed by defeat, Indiana's Democratic editors, attending the annual outing of the Indiana Democratic Editorial Association, turned today from politics to play.

With their wives and families, editors and party leaders laid politics aside and took to the golf course, boats and autos for a full day's enjoyment of Indiana's playground region.

Frederick VanNuy, Indianapolis attorney and former district attorney, rounded the keynote Friday night at the banquet in Rotarian home here for the 1930 off-year election.

Encouraged by Defeat
VanNuy found encouragement rather than discouragement in the Democratic defeat in Indiana in 1928, for he pointed out that Frank C. Dailey lost the governorship by only 44,658 votes in the face of Hoover's tremendous majority.

He lauded Governor Alfred E. Smith for his sincerity, attributed his defeat to his religion and dealt harshly with Republicans who "connived" Smith's defeat, including United States Senators James E. Watson and Arthur R. Robinson.

"The day will come when the people of this state and nation will pay greater tribute to Al Smith and the Democratic party in their defeat than to certain officials now in office who contributed to their defeat through connivance with those who flouted the law and the time-honored covenants of the Constitution," Van Nuy declared.

Flays Watson, Robinson
He referred to the constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion and the provision that no religious test shall be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

"I refer, among others, to our present Republican United States senators from Indiana and particularly to the junior Republican senator from this state," Van Nuy continued.

"We have charged and now repeat the charge that our present Republican senators are the servile beneficiaries of that pernicious system in Indiana which for several years directed its poisonous and unholy attacks at the very citadels of constitutional liberty.

Called "Political Profiteer"
"The junior senator, especially is so situated that he knows better than you and I, the truth of the charge which we are now making against him. Yet not once during all the years when the good citizens of Indiana, irrespective of party affiliation, were trying to free the state from the throes of that system of debauchery and corruption, did either he or his more experienced and wily colleague raise his voice in support of those citizens who were making for a cleaner and better state.

"With crossed fingers and bated breath, these two senators from Indiana successfully wormed their way through two campaigns, political profiteers at a time when red-blooded men of courage and resolution were battling for the survival of principles which were near and dear to the American people."

STATE FACING INJURY CLAIM

Man Hurt While Aiding Road Patrolman.

By Times Special
ANDERSON, Ind., June 8.—Claiming that an attack of epilepsy suffered by Herschel Hawkins resulted from injuries received in April, 1927, while he was helping a state road patrolman, his relatives demand compensation from the state highway commission, alleging permanent disability. The case is pending before the Indiana industrial board.

Hawkins was walking along State Road 32, going no place in particular, when the patrolman asked him to help move a fence back from the road. Hawkins agreed to lend a hand and while thus engaged was struck by an automobile and injured.

The state paid compensation while Hawkins remained in a hospital, but is refusing to pay on the basis of permanent disability. He is an inmate of the state epileptic village at Newcastle.

MRS. CASSLER BOUND OVER IN MURDER CASE

Awaits Grand Jury Action After Preliminary Hearing.

By Times Special
VALPARAISO, Ind., June 8.—Mrs. Catherine Cassler today, for the second time, awaits trial on a charge of murder.

After a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace G. E. Bornholt, she was bound over for grand jury action, being held without bond on a first-degree murder charge resulting from the death of Miss Camille Souter, 24, alleged sweetheart of her husband, Truman Cassler.

A month ago Mrs. Cassler was released at Chicago after being a prisoner two years and once under sentence of death in the slaying of a man to obtain his insurance money. She was released, under death in prison of a co-defendant and refusal of another to testify made prosecution impossible.

Divorced, Remarried Wife Would Help Former Mate

By Times Special
ANDERSON, Ind., June 8.—An Anderson woman, divorced and remarried, has volunteered to testify in court in behalf of her former husband, but the law may bar her.

Eugene Mahan, the husband, brought suit in Madison circuit court to establish a claim against the estate of the late John Franklin for care of the deceased prior to his death in June, 1928.

While Franklin was living in the Mahan home, the Mahans separated and were divorced, she deeding back to Franklin a farm tract he had conveyed to her, subject to a life interest he held. Mahan asserts Franklin intended to remember him in a will, but died suddenly, leaving no will, and the $12,000 estate went to nephews and nieces.

Mahan believed he had his case won when his former wife consented to testify for him. Attorneys on the other side, however, objected because a part of the time the events in the suit transpired she was Mahan's wife and their confidential relation would not permit her to testify for her husband. Judge Carl P. Morrow will rule on the question of law.

RICHMOND WILL BE HOST WHEN QUAKERS MEET

Two Important Meetings Will Be Held During Summer.

By Times Special
RICHMOND, Ind., June 7.—Known as a Quaker center virtually for the last century, this city will live up to that designation this year when it will again entertain two important groups of Friends that have been meeting regularly here for many years. One of them, the Indiana Yearly Meeting, has conducted its annual conference in this city, with two exceptions, since it was first organized in a log cabin here in 1821. The other, the annual Young Friends conference, has met here for nearly twenty years, with two exceptions, when its sessions were held at Penn college, Oskaloosa, Ia. Both are scheduled to meet here late in the summer.

Besides these conferences, the city also has the headquarters of Five Year Meeting of Friends in America, a national organization. The executive staffs of the national boards are located in their own building here. The Five Year Meeting carries on comprehensive and growing work at home and abroad. Thirteen yearly meetings in this country are represented in the Five Year Meeting.

Earham college, a Quaker institution here, is owned and operated jointly by Indiana and Western Yearly Meetings, whose constituency largely resides in eastern and central Indiana.

Miss Elizabeth Marsh, executive secretary of the Young Friends board, announces that the annual conference, which will bring between 300 and 400 young Quakers to Richmond, will be held for a week, beginning Aug. 26. Summer Mills of Indianapolis is president of the board. Dr. W. O. Mendenhall, president of Friends university, Wichita, Kas., and Dr. Thomas E. Jones, president of Fiske university, are among educators of the church who will deliver addresses.

The full faculty has not been selected.

Social and religious topics are studied in the conference, which has for its principal purpose the development of leadership in young Friends. Miss Marsh said she had assurances of official representatives from sixteen yearly meetings, including those that are not officially affiliated with the Five Year Meeting.

Indiana Yearly Meeting, the largest body of Friends in the world, will meet for its 100th conference late in August. The Yearly Meeting has assembled here annually since its organization with the exception of a meeting each in Marion and Muncie. The conferences are conducted in the Timothy Nicholas church, which was erected a few years ago partly with a view of providing exceptional facilities for the sessions. The church is said to be the largest Quaker meeting house in the world.

Work Becomes Strong Habit

By Times Special
ALEXANDRIA, Ind., June 8.—George Imbler, engineer at the city water works, is on the market for a jack knife and some lumber for the purpose of whittling to pass time. The city council has voted him a vacation and he is inexperienced at pastime. After working day in and day out for many years without regard for Sundays or holidays, he has been granted one day's vacation each month.

CHAIR DEATH TO BE ASKED

Murder Trial Will Open at Brazil Monday.

By Times Special
BRAZIL, Ind., June 8.—Death in the electric chair will be asked by the state of Indiana as the punishment for John VanHook, Terre Haute, who will go on trial in Clay circuit court here Monday charged with the first degree murder of Austin Sweet, attorney in that town. This is an announcement of William Littlefield, Vigo county prosecuting attorney. The case was brought here on a change of venue.

Sweet was shot down in his office where VanHook, then a deputy constable, accompanied by two deputy constables, went to arrest him on a charge of fishing on Sunday.

One of the exhibits to be offered by the state in evidence is a drawing of the building in which Sweet had his office, prepared by George Roselle, assistant prosecutor. A red spot marks the place where the attorney laid as blood flowed from a bullet wound.

Since the tragedy, considerable discussion has occurred throughout the state as to the authority, if any, conferred upon deputy constables by the law.

BRICK THROWN BY SON OF SLAYER HITS THIEF

Intruder at Dunham Farm Home Makes Escape.

By Times Special
ANDERSON, Ind., June 8.—A chicken thief, who had perhaps read the account of the failure of Joseph Dunham, Madison county farmer, to obtain a parole from the Indiana state prison, forgot that Dunham has a son.

The son was aroused by a noise at the hen house, got out of bed and started to investigate. En route, he picked up a brick and threw it at the prowler. The brick struck the mark, but the thief was not seriously hurt. He escaped, abandoning a new hammer.

The elder Dunham is serving a two to twenty-one-year manslaughter sentence for the shooting in October, 1926, of a youth caught stealing apples in his orchard.
