

NEW $3,000,000 HIGHWAY TO BE OPENED IN UTAH

Road Brings Together Five
Scenic Attractions: Route
Shortened.

SALT LAKE CITY, June 28.—A new automobile highway, which in spectacular qualities will rank with any in the world, is to be opened for use this summer between Zion National Park and Mount Carmel in southern Utah.

The road, only twenty-four miles long, costs $3,000,000 and includes the longest nonurban automobile tunnel in the world. Already five major attractions of the colorful regions, Grand Canyon, Bryce Canyon and Zion National Parks, the Kaibab Forest and Cedar Breaks are so close together as to form a unique opportunity for travelers.

The effect of the new highway is to bring them even closer through a reduction of mileage and a reduction in driving time out of proportion to the miles saved.

Zion and Bryce, up to now 149 miles apart by road, are eighty-eight miles apart and the driving time is reduced to one-half. From Zion to Grand Canyon, the distance is reduced from 142 to 26 miles and the driving time cut one-third.

But in addition to shortening the route, the highway itself becomes a major point of interest to tourists.

Its outstanding feature is its tunnel, a little over a mile and an eighth long. The tunnel has five "galleries" cut through the sides of the rock where one may stop and look out from a height of several hundred feet up a sheer cliff on the giant colorful formations of Zion National park.

In order to build an approach to the opening of the tunnel, it was necessary to make six switchbacks, three and one-half miles of road, to cover an air-line distance of less than a mile.

The tunnel involved many new problems in engineering and credit for solving them goes to the state engineers of Utah and the government highway engineers who joined forces to tunnel through the mountain of rock.
