

U. S. MAY MAKE MORE WHISKY FOR MEDICINE

Dry Chief to Begin Survey to Determine Needs of Nation.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance
WASHINGTON, July 13.—A survey of the nation's medicinal liquor stores to determine whether the government should replenish the supply by reopening specified distilleries will be started by Dr. James M. Moran, prohibition commissioner, within a few days.

Regional reports on the amount of whisky in storage will reach him before the end of the month. Decision to distill or not to distill will be made upon the basis of the total amount of liquor found in government warehouses.

Estimates place the amount at around 15,000,000 gallons, but losses from evaporation, theft, or optimistic figuring on the part of administrators may reduce the total.

Should it approach 10,000,000 gallons, which is quite possible, treasury heads will begin formulation of a program for the first batch of legalized liquor made in this country since 1922.

Must Be Four Years

Yearly consumption now is about 1,500,000 gallons. A 10,000,000 reserve, with further evaporation or theft, might not be sufficient for more than six years. Since the United States pharmacopoeia sets up a standard of 4-year-old whisky, the day for opening the distilleries would not be far distant, on a basis of only 10,000,000 gallons.

Dr. Moran declines to make any estimate of the supply on hand. But in a report to congress last year he said that "the question of manufacturing new medicinal whisky will become a live one within the next six months or a year."

Authority for reopening distilleries is vested in Secretary Mellon, but the law provides for a report on the subject by the prohibition commissioner before any steps toward manufacture may be taken.

Drys Resist Move

Drys always have resisted demands for replenishing the supply when they have been made by the interests. Prohibition spokesmen have declared for greater restrictions on physicians' permits, and contended that the present supply could be preserved for a decade if the allowances for prescriptions were cut.

Lately, however, there has been a change. Demand from drug interests for manufacture of a new supply, and it is understood several distilleries have filed applications for the right to reopen.

RACES WILL CONTINUE AT KENNEL CLUB TRACK

Betting Books Will Remain Closed, Promoters Announce.

Despite the fact that betting booths will remain closed, promoters of the Indiana Kennel Club, Ltd., were preparing today to handle a crowd of several thousand persons at the track on the Allisonville road tonight.

John J. Darnold, one of the promoters, said races will be run each night except Sunday, starting at 8:30, but that betting booths will remain closed until the court case is settled.

No police and only two sheriff's deputies were at the track Friday night, when approximately 1,500 persons were on hand.

FIND DOCTORS LIVE LESS THAN LAYMEN

Insurance Survey Shows That Average Physician Dies at 68.

"Sad but true," commented Dr. Herman G. Morgan, city health board secretary, today on a Metropolitan Life Insurance Company survey showing that doctors' lives, in spite of their medical knowledge, are two years less than that of the average insurance policy holder. The doctors' average expectancy is 68 years, the survey shows.

An eight-year college grind, followed by a practice involving long and irregular hours, cuts down vitality and resistance, Morgan said. Danger of infection from disease is always present and often fatal in spite of precautions.

"Scrutiny of medical journal obituaries reveals heart disease as the thing that gets doctors. Sedentary lives and lack of exercise gets preachers, who live longer than any other profession," Morgan said.

Few Drug Addicts

"Contrary to popular belief, liquor and drugs do not bring disaster to many doctors," continued Morgan. "It gets a few, of course, but the average doctor knows too well the disastrous results to become a slave to stimulants."

"Most doctors 'die in service,' according to Morgan, only an occasional one retiring.

"It's a tremendous responsibility," he added, "to have the lives of hundreds of people entrusted to you. A failure of the doctor cuts deep; it means a human life. That load of responsibility eats into the nerves and cuts many years off a doctor's life."

Poison for Incurables

Referring to what doctors call "the ideal state," Dr. Morgan spoke of the "time when a doctor could morally and ethically administer an overdose of opiate to a patient suffering from an incurable disease."

"When that time comes," Morgan said, "the doctor can do his greatest service to the world and the world in turn will have relieved him of a heart-breaking and nerve-shattering responsibility."

CZAR DEAD 11 YEARS

Soviet Press Ignores Anniversary of Execution.

By United Press
MOSCOW, July 13.—Eleven years ago today, on July 13, 1918, the ill-fated imperial family was executed at Ekaterinburg by order of the soviet authorities. For all its fondness of anniversaries, the press allowed this occasion to go practically unnoticed.

In well-informed circles not the slightest doubt is entertained that the ex-Czar Nicholas II, his carina and their children were put to death. The rumor circulated from time to time that one or another member of the family has mysteriously survived are ridiculed here as absurd fantasy.

SCIENTISTS OF WORLD GATHER IN CAPE TOWN

Sessions Will Continue for Two Weeks in South African Cities.

By Science Service
CAPE TOWN, South Africa, July 13.—Famous scientists, not only from England, but from the United States as well, are beginning to gather here for what probably will be one of the most important of scientific meetings ever held south of the equator.

This will be the South African meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, which will open at Cape Town Monday night, July 22. Sessions will continue here until Saturday, July 27, when the members will travel to Johannesburg and Pretoria. There further sessions will be held until Monday, Aug. 5.

South African scientific bodies, especially the South African Association for the Advancement of Science, will hold joint sessions with the British association.

Meetings of the British association are held every year, usually in the British Isles in the late summer, but occasionally meetings are held in the British dominions. The first was in 1834, in Montreal. In 1897 a meeting was held in Toronto, in 1909 one in Winnipeg, and in 1924 another took place in Toronto. In 1905 the first meeting was held in South Africa, with Sir George Darwin as president.

An Australian meeting was in session in 1914 when the war broke out, which added to the thrills of returning to England for the members. It was at this meeting that the late H. G. J. Moseley announced his researches on the relation between the X-ray spectra and weights of atoms of elements. He was killed in the war the next year, but his method has led to the discovery of several new elements.

Sir Thomas Holland, famous British geologist and rector of the Imperial College of Science, will preside over the meeting. He succeeds Sir William Bragg, who was president last year at the Glasgow meeting. His address will deal with "The International Relationship of Minerals," and will be given at Johannesburg on Wednesday, July 31.

At the opening session in Cape Town the night of July 22, the Earl of Athlone, governor-general of the South African association, will speak on "Africa and Science."

OPERATE POWER PLANT WITH WOOD SHOE NAILS

Used as Fuel When Refused by Merchant in Hungary.

By United Press
BEKESCSABA, Hungary, July 13.—Steam in the boilers of the electricity plant of this little town for the past few days has been kept up with fuel composed of Russian wooden shoe-nails.

Some time ago a consignment of 700 cases wooden shoe-nails was sent from Russia to Bekescsaba. As the shoe-nails were sharp on four sides, according to Russian custom, and as those employed in Hungary are only sharp on two sides, the merchant refused to accept them.

Custom authorities sold them as fuel.

BLUE SUNDAY AID ASKED OF HOOVER

Reformers Want Stamp of Approval on Law From President.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance
WASHINGTON, July 13.—A delicate problem has been dropped on the White House doorstep as a result of the request of the Lord's Day Alliance that President Hoover issue a formal statement setting forth his view of the bill to establish a "blue law" Sunday in the District of Columbia.

Not content with delegating a committee to explain the purpose of the Lankford bill to the President, the chief sponsors, returned a day later to ask for a formal statement. It is understood the President eventually will find some means of making his attitude known.

Though the proposed legislation applies only to the national capital, barring all commercial activity, it is understood its sponsors hope it will serve as a model for the nation. Should congress enact the Lankford bill, it is predicted that a drive for similar laws will be launched in cities and states which have no Sunday prohibitory measures.

The predicament saddled on Hoover flows from the fact that some of his strongest campaign supporters, including many prohibition leaders, want to win him to their side. Among those who conferred with him on the subject this week were Bishop James Cannon Jr., of Virginia, Canon Chase of Brooklyn, the Rev. David G. Wylie and H. L. Bowley of the Lord's Day Alliance.

The Lankford bill would prohibit theaters, motion pictures and baseball, and its backers refer to it as a "Sunday rest law."

The President never has stated his view on the subject, but it is believed that he would not be disposed favorably to such legislation. He frequently has gone fishing on Sunday, for instance.

Auto for Gas

By United Press
COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., July 13.—Selling a horse to buy hay has been displaced by two Chicago youths who left their automobile as security for gasoline.

James Conachan and Jerry Moore, touring the country with a dilapidated flivver, purchased gasoline at a filling station near here and then found they were short on finances. They drove away without the formality of paying the attendant.

A little telephoning and the youths were apprehended.

"We are broke, or at least we've got 11 cents," said the youths. "Tell you what we'll do, we'll leave the car here for security."

The station attendant agreed and the youths continued their tour via the hitch-hiking route.

BOOZE BUYERS FOUND IN RAIDS TO GIVE BONDS

'Liquor Joint Loungers' Face Vagrancy Charges to Insure Testimony.

Liquor joint loungers, who don't mind telling raiding police how many drinks they've bought, are going to be held under $100 vagrancy bonds to insure the success of Sergeant Michael Morrissey's new "sworn statement" weapon against bootlegging.

Sergeant Morrissey's "memory fresher," invoked with only part success in two municipal court liquor cases this week, nevertheless was commended as "the best thing I've seen yet," by Judge Paul C. Wetter.

Raiding officers invariably quit the circle of "customers" for these willing to testify to liquor purchases. Strangely, they frequently are found, but when the trial comes up their memory has failed or they fail utterly to show up.

Statements Sworn

To remedy the situation, Sergeant Morrissey lately has been taking the witnesses to police headquarters where their statements are notarized by the turnkeys.

First attempt Thursday to introduce such a statement came to naught when the case against an alleged bootlegger fell through.

Friday, however, Miss Rena Cuthbertson, Negro, 326 East Walnut street, was on trial on a liquor charge which followed a raid on her home, July 9.

Deputy Prosecutor James Campbell introduced a sworn statement from William Jones, Negro, 2322 North Arsenal avenue, relating how he purchased a half pint of cut alcohol.

Wetter Praises Action

Albert L. Fishman, attorney for Miss Cuthbertson, objected to its introduction for he had no opportunity to cross-examine Jones, who did not show up.

Upholding this objection, Judge Wetter said, "the only thing I regret is that you didn't keep Jones after you got him."

Withholding judgment until Jones can be brought into court, Judge Wetter declared: "After this, place these people under arrest and put a $100 vagrancy bond on them. They'll be sure to have them here."
