

FIGHT TO SAVE COAST FORESTS FROM FLAMES

State of Washington Hit Hardest: 1,000 Men Battle Fires.

By United Press
PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 9.—Nearly a thousand smoke-blackened men battled the greatest enemy of the Pacific northwest in three states today on a score of different fronts to save the world's last great stands of virgin timber.

The state of Washington was hardest hit. In addition to destroying thousands of acres of valuable timber, fires had today paralyzed highway traffic and electric power lines at one point and an irrigation system at another.

Springdale, a small town forty miles from Spokane, eastern Washington, still was without electric power today as the result of a fire which destroyed a high tension line and blocked the highway into Spokane.

MT. RAINIER THREATENED

The fir-clad foothills of Mt. Rainier were in danger of being stripped of more than a million acres of green timber and lush mountain meadowlands.

Wenatchee valley apples are in danger of shriveling and dropping from the trees before they reach maturity unless water reaches them soon. A fire near Lake Chelan, which destroyed five miles of large irrigation flume, is responsible.

In Oregon a fire on the Klamath Indian reservation and one in the Crater lake national forest are the most serious. Five or six other fires are burning in the state.

The situation in Idaho is similar with all fires of a comparatively minor nature or confined by lines of firefighters who have been able to bring them under control.

BLAZE OUT OF CONTROL

The brush fire raging in the Santa Lucia mountains in the Rinconada section of California still was out of control early today and additional men were arriving to take up the fight.

Reports to California authorities indicated at least twenty fires had been "set by hand" in the state within the last two days.

In Sonora county a fire, believed of incendiary origin, had destroyed approximately 9,000 acres of grazing and brush lands and was still blazing.

YOUNG FRIENDS TO MEET

By Times Special
RICHMOND, Ind., Aug. 9.—The annual Young Friends' conference will be held on the Earlham campus Aug. 26 to Sept. 1, it was announced today. W. O. Mendenhall, president of Friends' university, Wichita, Kas., will be the principal speaker.

TALKERS HAVE MADE FAZENDA FAMOUS

She Wears a Red Wig and Struts About in Fine Clothes in "On With the Show."

LOUISE FAZENDA, who plays the part of the lovelorn Sarah in "On With the Show," Warner Bros. first natural color, talking, singing, dancing Vitaphone picture, which opens Saturday at the Apollo, occupies a niche all her own in the realm of motion pictures. She is universally recognized as the screen's leading comedienne.

Entering motion pictures in 1918 as an extra, Miss Fazenda soon attracted attention through her droll characterizations, with the result that her engagement followed as a member of the famous group of Mack Sennett artists, which included Charlie Chaplin, Gloria Swanson, Ford Sterling, Charlie Murray, Marie Prevost and others.

In 1921 and the year following, Miss Fazenda went into vaudeville as a comedienne, creating a succession of roles that soon resulted in her elevation to stardom.

Among the Warner productions in which she has appeared are "Quincy Adams Sawyer," "Gold Diggers," "Main Street" and "Finger Prints." For other companies she has played featured roles in "Cradle Snatchers," "Ladies at Play," "A Texas Steer," "Heart to Heart" and many others.

In "On With the Show" Miss Fazenda appears in her fourth all-Vitaphone production, she having scored in an eccentric role in "The Terror," in "Stark Mad" and in "The Desert Song." Miss Fazenda is one screen artist with a following who has not only welcomed talking pictures, but has been welcomed in them, giving proof that she is even more popular on the audible screen than she was on the silent.

TWO HOMES ROBBED

Burglars Invade Residences on North Side.

Police today were seeking burglars who ransacked two north side homes Thursday night.

When Charles Murphy, 4602 Gullford avenue, drove into his garage Thursday night he noticed a small ladder against the house of James Brady, 816 East Forty-sixth street. Murphy called police who investigated and found clothing and silverware had been taken. Brady is out of the city on a vacation.

A diamond stick pin valued at $150 was stolen from the home of Harold Gold, 2724 North Talbot street, apartment 2, by a sneak thief who opened a rear window, reached in and took two drawers from a dressing table. Contents of the drawers were spilled on the ground.

POLICE ARREST 73

15 Speeders Slated Among Traffic Violators.

Arrests for alleged traffic law violations Thursday night and early today totaled seventy-three. Twenty-one persons were arrested for failure to stop at preferential streets, sixteen for improper lights and fifteen for speeding.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—The second marital venture of James Stanley Joyce, Chicago lumberman and one-time husband of Peggy Upton-Archer-Hopkins-Joyce-Morner, was on the rocks here today.

Joyce, who was divorced by his famous first wife on grounds of cruelty in 1921, was being sued by his second mate, Mrs. Nellie M. Joyce, on the same grounds.

The bill, filed Thursday, charged Joyce with having beaten, burned and abused his wife on numerous occasions.

While they were on their honeymoon in 1926, it says, he burned her lips with a match, pounded her between the shoulder blades and finally kicked her on the shins.

Mrs. Joyce admitted her husband was a good provider, saying that he spent $30,000 a year on living expenses and gave her a $1,000 monthly allowance besides gifts of jewelry.
