

POLISHED TIPS OF SHOES GUIDE AL AS AUTHOR

Smith Gets His Inspiration
Gazing at 'Brogans' on Way to Office.

By G. B. WINSTEAD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Alfred E. Smith, "the author," gets his writing inspiration for gazing at the polished tips of his shoes as he rides to his office in an automobile.

He jots down a word or two on the back of an old envelope and once at the office dictates his writings.

"How do you prepare your articles?" Smith was asked.

"All by dictation," he answered. "I think them out beforehand and then dictate 'when I feel like it and have the time.'

Dictates All Articles

The former Governor then described the method preparing his current articles.

"I have made a practice for many years to save newspaper clippings. The two bottom drawers of my desk always have been devoted exclusively to newspaper clippings.

"I see something interesting—something somebody else has said. I cut it out and put it in the drawer. Then when I go away for a trip I leave orders for a clerk to empty the drawers and file the clippings in envelopes according to subject matter.

"When I am asked to speak on 'water power' I merely go to the files and look for an envelope marked 'water power articles' and I have my speech all cut out for me. This has been a habit with me ever since entering public life."

"In writing my articles I use references only in the matter of exact dates. I have trained myself to remember events by the years in which they occurred. The exact dates within the various years are obtained by searching through notes and files."

Checks All of Dates

"In my first few articles there were a lot of dates and places mentioned. Names of various bills and the days they were introduced and finally became laws, all were found in my private files. I recalled from memory the circumstances surrounding them, and in many cases the actual words spoken for and against them."

"The Curtis Publishing Company assured me they had experts to check all dates and places in stories printed by them. When the galley proofs came to me they had checked every one and had found not one single error in my writing."

DEBT DEMANDS OF BRITAIN MET BY BIG POWERS

Latest Move Shifts Fate of Conference on Shoulders of Germany.

By FREDERICK KUH
United Press Staff Correspondent
THE HAGUE, Aug. 22.—France, Italy, Belgium and Japan completed a new proposal today largely fulfilling Great Britain's three demands for modification of the Young plan, which almost wrecked the reparations conference here.

The proposal, however, was partly at the expense of Germany, so that Germany at the afternoon meeting of the four powers was invited to hear the new proposal.

The proposal was understood to include an increase of 100,000,000 marks ($23,820,000) annually in Germany's unconditional annuities, which Britain would receive. The 100,000,000 marks would be deducted from Germany's condition reparations.

The proposal shifts the fate of the conference to Germany's shoulders.

The "Big Six" powers agreed to undertake the gigantic last minute effort to fulfill the three British financial demands entailing the revision of the Young plan. The meetings heard both Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, and German foreign minister Gustav Stresemann suggest that in case the conference fails to reach an agreement it shall hold a public session to which the press will be admitted and at which both Stresemann and Snowden will describe the needs of their respective countries as regard to the reparations problem.

At the outset of the morning conference of the "big six" powers, England, France, Belgium, Germany, Italy and Japan, the nations which arranged the conference—it was agreed that the German demand for application of the Young plan reparations annuities instead of the larger Dawes plan annuities after Sept. 1 had become an acute question, only if the conference fails to reach an agreement.

Aristide Briand, premier of France, declared the German demand will become an acute question only in case an emergency arises.

HEIRS TO FILE BILLION-DOLLAR SUIT ON ESTATE

Montreal City Property Is Claimed by Descendants of British Officer.

By United Press
MONTREAL, Quebec, Aug. 22.—Preliminary steps were taken today in the attempt of heirs of Lieutenant Tessier Dit Lavigne to obtain Montreal city property which is valued at $1,000,000,000.

A notice was filed in the superior court notifying officials of the Seminary of St. Sulpice that an action for damages of one billion dollars would be filed shortly in local courts.

The case is an outgrowth of the action of two Chicago women who came here a couple of years ago and started investigating the estate of Lieutenant Tessier Dit Lavigne.

Since then heirs of the early British naval lieutenant have been found all over the United States and Canada and they now total 300. They will meet in Windsor, Ontario, Sunday to discuss the legal action.

The property involved includes the site on which Notre Dame Cathedral and several banks and office buildings stand.
