

— Aviation — PLANE TO GET ENDURANCE HOP TESTS TODAY

Refueling Flights Planned
Before Start of Long Grind Here.

Holding hopes of starting the Indianapolis Flamingo's air endurance test within the next few days, final arrangements for the trip were made today by Major H. LeRoy Muller, flight commander.

A large crowd gathered at Hoosier airport, flight base, Sunday to see the big all-metal Flamingo monoplane with which Lieutenant Walter R. Peck, Schoen field commander, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, and Lieutenant Lawrence Genaro, air reserve corps, will seek to shatter the St. Louis Robin's 420-hour mark. Peck and Genaro planned to make practice refueling flights today and Tuesday, flying to Cincinnati Tuesday for minor adjustments to the propeller at the Metal Aircraft Corporation factory.

Complete personnel for the flight was announced today by Major Muller.

Refueling Crew Chosen
Lieutenant C. A. Perry, Dayton, air corps reserve, will be refueling pilot, and Sergeant G. A. Kessler, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, will be chief refueler, using Hoosier airport's big Travel Air monoplane.

Captain Roy E. Whitehead, M. D., air corps reserve flight surgeon, will be flight surgeon, and will have charge of food, diet, recreation and medical examinations of the fliers.

Colonel Bowman Elder, coast artillery reserve, is trustee in charge of receiving and disbursing flight funds. Attorney Julian C. Ralston, Chamber of Commerce building, is legal adviser for the flight.

Other officials include: Ralph R. Graichen, Metal Aircraft Corporation vice-president, technical adviser; J. P. Canaday, Pennzoil Company, aid for fuel and lubricants; and Arthur Kinder, aid in charge of food.

Wives to Prepare Food
Preparation of food for the pilots on the trip will be under the careful supervision of their wives.

The partial list of companies selected to furnish materials for the flight, announced today: Richfield Oil Company, California, gasoline; Pennzoil Company, lubricating oil; Akron Trust Company, air mattress and pillow for sleeping on top of gas tank; Polk Milk Company, milk, buttermilk, acidophilus milk, cream, cheese and butter; Holsum Bread Company, rye and whole wheat bread; Hook Drug Company, medicines, toilet articles; Stokes Drug Company, thermos bottles and supervision of drinking water; E. J. Gausephol, special leather cases for food and drinking bottles. Other firms will be announced later.

Times for Flies
Each day copies of The Indianapolis Times will be sent the fliers with their food so they may keep up with the happenings on earth while they are aloft.

The flight can't be started until a hangar is received from Cleveland. This will be placed in the tail of the plane and will show a record of the height of the plane at all times for checking after the flight by aeronautical officials.

Planes Entered for Tour
Entries of airplanes for the first Indiana air tour, Sept. 16 to 21, sponsored by the Indiana Aircraft Trades Association, have begun to pour into tour headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce building.

Entries thus far include: Curtiss Flying Service of Indiana, a Warner-powered Cessna monoplane, Challenger-powered Robin monoplane and an OX5 Command-Aire biplane, piloted by H. Weir Cook, Curtiss general manager; Charles E. Cox Jr., assistant general manager; Hoosier airport, Wright-powered Travelair and OX5 Travelair biplane, piloted by Harold C. Brooks and French Livezey, with one more entry to be made; Interstate Airlines, Evansville, Fairchild six-place monoplane, and a Fleet Husky Jr., piloted by Earl F. Ward, manager, and Leland S. Jamieson; Arthur F. Foulkes, Terre Haute, American Eagle biplane, flown by Foulkes.

Elinor Smith Due Here
Miss Elinor Smith, 18, holder of the women's endurance flight record, was to arrive at the Curtiss-Mars Hill airport at noon today in the Irving Safety plane to demonstrate the Irvin air chute. A jump will be made this afternoon at the Mars Hill field.

She was to be accompanied here by Bert White, parachute expert, and Colonel Campbell, sponsor of the safety tour.

During their stay here today and Tuesday, they will be guests of H. Weir Cook, Curtiss manager.

Purpose of the tour is to prove it is as safe to "bail out," or jump, in an emergency while wearing a properly constructed parachute, as it is to "enter an automobile or a boat."

While here Miss Smith will demonstrate uses of various types of chutes to pilots and student fliers.

'MADAME X' TAKES LEAD OVER TALKERS

Sophie Tucker Has a Hot Time Singing Her Jazz Songs in "Honky Tonk," A Real Movie Delight.

BY WALTER D. HICKMAN
THE first efforts of Lionel Barrymore as a director of a big talking-movie feature has resulted in "Madame X" being the most compelling of the all-talkers.

"Madame X," with Ruth Chatterton as the wife, who takes an awful moral fall, is as powerfully dramatic in its present talking form as it was on the stage.

Barrymore has decided that "Madame X" is drama, and as on the spoken stage it does not need a musical background, and so the actors talk their lines naturally.

This is a great improvement over the musical background method that has been used so often. It gives the actor a chance to be natural in every mood and action. Besides the common sense and effective direction which has made this version of "Madame X" a triumph, it will be remembered as a movie blessed with great acting. The "Madame X" role gives any great emotional actress a marvelous chance. In some of the great and pitiful sob scenes, Miss Chatterton reaches emotional heights never before recorded on the screen in action and sound. This one picture gives her a high standing in the movie world. And I am sure that no one can see this picture without at least getting wet eyes. Her work as the mother who fights to prevent more disgrace falling upon her son will be recognized as one of the outstanding performances of the year.

Lewis Stone as the father and husband who makes the big decision not to let his former wife stage a comeback in the heart of her son, gives, to my way of thinking, the most powerful and intelligent performance of his career.

I believe that Stone will be remembered for his performance in this movie as easily as Al Jolson will be remembered for his work in one movie.

It must be conceded that Raymond Hackett as the son who defends his own mother in court, with a charge of sedition, recreation and medical examinations of the fliers, is his mother, does work that ranks right up to that done by Miss Chatterton and Stone. Great work on the part of Hackett in the court scenes.

"Madame X," to my way of thinking, is the best example of how a stage play may be transferred to the modern screen.

It is a triumph for the director and the actors. See this one by all means.

Now at Loew's Palace.

REAL PICTURE
NOW AT INDIANA
Smack! The boy at bat knocks the ball out of sight and makes an easy home run. The crowds cheer and the boy goes to his sweetheart who is waiting. Folks, this is something about "Fast Company" now playing at the Indiana.

Jack Oakie as the boy gives one of the best performances of his movie career. You will love this chap and at the same time feel like spanking him, because of his boastfulness. Still as Skeets Gallagher says who is also in the cast, "Everything he says about himself is true."

You know, in about every picture you see of some popular game of today, there is usually a girl on whom the outcome of the game depends. Evelyn Brent takes the part of the girl in "Fast Company" and it takes only a word from her for Jack Oakie to win a big game for the Yankees.

Jack and Evelyn first met when the Chamber of Commerce of Gentryville, Indiana, was giving Jack a banquet, because of his good work on the local ball team. Evelyn wished to help "Skeets" Gallagher, who had several times helped her get vaudeville bookings, and who was now trying to sign Jack up with the Yankees.

So by means of her charms she finally persuaded Jack to sign. Of course Jack fell head over heels in love immediately, but as soon as he had signed, Evelyn proceeded to be cold, hating him because of his boastful ways.

Later in New York they meet again. Jack has many letters from Evelyn which have been written by Gallagher and of which Evelyn knows nothing about. The letters keeping up his faith in his girl, made the boy from Gentryville do big things for the ball team.

The scenes that follow when Jack finds that the letters were really not written by Evelyn are heart touching. Especially the scene when the man with the fake microphone, which is only full of booze, makes Jack think he is talking to the outside world. But the joke does not seem so funny when Jack, after talking about himself, turns again to the microphone and addresses his mother.

The big game, at the close of the picture, is very exciting. Jack, framed by gamblers to accept $5,000 which they tell is a gift from his home town, is thought to be crooked because of his bad playing. Only Gallagher knows it is Evelyn that is making Jack tumble. But Evelyn, at last realizing that she really loves this big, overgrown boy, saves the day by telling him so. You will find this good entertainment, and yes, you will hear about Jack's wallet, which was given him by the Gentryville Chamber of Commerce and which he loses no time in telling everybody about.

The stage show "Roof Garden Revels" proves to be fast and colorful. Charlie Davis has a special arrangement of "Am I Blue?" and another of several pieces, which played together he calls "A Musical Cocktail."

The afternoon show I attended Dossa Byrd at the organ was supported on the stage by some of Louise Powell's kiddies who are to be complimented on their smooth and entertaining performance.

All this week until Friday at the Indiana. (By Observer.)

SOPHIE IS RIGHT IN 'HONKY TONK'
Believe it or not, but Sophie Tucker is just as red-hot on the singing movie screen as she is on the revue stage.

And that is saying a great deal because Sophie has been right on the stage for years.

Miss Tucker by her jazz singing and human acting in "Honky Tonk" has increased her audience by the thousands. Sophie knows how to put over those red-hot mama songs as nobody else in the business. Her voice, like that of Al Jolson, records perfectly. Both singers must be able to get that sob-like mammy cry into their work or they just don't register.

Sophie is the leader in the female division of the sob-crying and shoutin' singers. Nobody can approach her in this line of work. It is easy sailing for Sophie on her singing and talking screen because Sophie's forte has always been melody and not acting. But she will surprise you by her acting in this one. She is cast as a night club entertainer, who does not want her only daughter to know the truth about work. Daughtry returns home suddenly from Europe. And is that youngster rifty? Something awful. Then the battle goes on until Sophie teaches her daughter to be a human individual.

"Honky Tonk" will delight the nation. See it.

Now at the Apollo.

A distinguished father and his son are among the flying students enrolled at the Curtiss Flying Service of Indiana school.

The father is Colonel A. J. Dougherty, 56 chief of staff of the Eighty-fourth division officers' reserve corps, and the son is Jack Dougherty, 20, who will enter Illinois university this fall.

Colonel Dougherty began learning to fly last January, but has delayed soloing until he could find time to practice landings and take-offs. He has practiced flying while en route by plane to business engagements. Jack is hoping to solo before he leaves for school, and the colonel is planning to put in time practicing in order not to be outdone by his son.

— Aviation — CITY MAY NOT USE AIRPORT BEFORE SPRING

Engineer Will Recommend Field Be Allowed to Settle.

The city's new $695,000 municipal airport probably will not be available for use before next spring, City Engineer A. H. Moore said today.

Moore will recommend to the works board that the field not be used until after drainage ditches have been given time to settle.

The works board let the contract to the Columbia Construction Company on low bid of $53,900, a figure $20,000 below the estimate. The contractor has agreed to put two crews on the job so it can be completed within thirty days.

Plans are being prepared for the two 2,500 feet runways which will be built out of treated gravel. Moore estimated the cost of the runways at $10,000. One of the runways will run east and west and the other northeast and southwest. An apron will join the runways in the north-east section of the field where the hangars and administration building will be erected.

Present plans of Moore call for a progressive type runway, permitting additional materials as planes become heavier. A road oil will be used as a binder.

William McGuire, of McGuire and Shook, architects, has started plans on the hangar which will be completed when the field is ready. It is not known what type structure will be erected. About $150,000 will be available for a hangar, terminal and administration building.

Women Reported Recovering in City Hospitals.
Four women today were recovering in local hospitals from poison taken in alleged suicide attempts Sunday.

The women are: Mrs. Jane Schmutte, 35, of 4050 Arlington avenue; Mrs. Margaret Talley, 25, of 2111 Lexington avenue; Mrs. Elzlie Hall, 33, of 1127 River avenue, and Mrs. Elmore King, Negro, 30, of 911 North Senate avenue.

Despondency over ill health and domestic troubles were blamed for the attempts.

106 ARRAIGNED IN CRIME CASES BEFORE COLLINS

'Chuck' Wiggins Will Face
Nine Charges; Several Slayers Up.

One hundred six prisoners from the county jail were arraigned today before Criminal Judge James A. Collins. Trial dates were set.

The list included Charles F. Wiggins, heavyweight pugilist, who will face nine charges as the outgrowth of a free-for-all battle several days ago with two policemen and a fireman. Wiggins was subdued and is at liberty under bond of $3,800.

Other defendants include operators and employees of the Indiana Kennel Club, who will be tried on gaining charges. Maxie Epstein, poolroom operator, will be tried for burglary; Gail Alger, brother of Gene Alger, for vehicle taking; William M. Secrist, poolroom operator, manslaughter; Mrs. Christine Owens, murder; Benjamin F. Adams, murder, and Max Kos, manslaughter.

Faces Second Trial
Kos will be tried a second time on the manslaughter charge. A criminal court jury failed to reach a verdict in June. He was the operator of a car which struck and fatally injured two employees of the Indianapolis Street Railway Company last New Year's eve.

Maxie Epstein is charged with being a companion to Tony Phillip in the robbery of Company store, while $500 in loot was obtained. Phillips was tried in June and given a one-to-ten-year reformatory sentence.

Charles Courin, 1603 Central avenue, will be tried on a manslaughter charge. A car driven by him struck Leonard Andrews on Central avenue, Feb. 17.

Murder Is Charged
Levi Miller, Negro, alleged slayer of Louis Miller, Cole Motor Company watchman, will be tried for murder at Danville, Ind. A jury in a trial in June failed to reach a verdict.

Arthur C. Baxter and Ralph Linius, promoters of the dog track, and John Darmody, treasurer of the kennel club, will be among eight persons to be tried on charges of operating a gaming house and gambling in connection with the use of the "investment" system of betting at the track, which later suspended operation.

The men were arrested on affidavits prepared by County Prosecutor Judson L. Stark.
