

POLITICAL WAR TO BREAK OVER BUDGET SLASH

Affected Officials Hint at Suit to Force County Council to Pay.

Rumblings of a storm in county politics were heard today as a result of the slashing of $100,000 from departmental salary and equipment requests in the 1930 county budget by councilmen Wednesday.

In addition to a further break in the courthouse political ranks, as a result of the budget reductions, affected officials today indicated they will file suits in county courts in efforts to obtain mandamus writs that will force the council to pay the appropriation requests.

Officials and employees who have broken ranks with George V. Coffin, county and district Republican leader, and who suffered most in the budget reductions Wednesday, today declared "Coffin is to blame."

Charge Political Framing

They indicated that the council with five of seven members friendly to Coffin, had used the budget slashing as a means to stifle job distribution in the offices of Republican opponents.

A series of suits, seeking to obtain mandates against the council and County Auditor Harry Dunn, which if granted would force payment of the budget requests, also were contemplated today, it was known.

Consideration of county institution funds, working balances and other similar items was started today. Councilmen are endeavoring to bring the 1930 tax levy rate to about 40 cents, or a drop of 13 cents from the levy proposed by county commissioners.

Deputy Gets Raise

Sheriff George L. Winkler's victory in obtaining an enlarged sheriff's budget, including a salary increase for Harry Bendel, chief enforcement deputy, and funds for increasing office and patrol equipment, was taken by county officials to mean that councilmen used "steam roller" methods in abiding by Coffin's wishes.

County Clerk George Hutsell and Dunn, both of whom have been allied against the Coffin reign, were affected seriously by the budget slashing, and hinted that "the affair was perpetrated because certain elements won't ally themselves with Coffin." Hutsell several months ago publicly declared his "break" with Coffin.

Prosecutor Judson L. Stark suffered the fall of the council's ax when $21,800 was cleft from his fund, decreasing the salaries of nine deputies, lowering radically the courthouse office operating expenses and eliminating two city court deputies and a criminal court investigation fund. Dunn was deprived of funds for added help and the salary of present employees was cut $6,200 from the budget request.

Hits Anti-Coffinites

The reason for councilmen denying County Treasurer Clyde E. Robinson $40,000 additional for new employes in the delinquent tax department, proved disconcerting to anti-Coffinites, as the treasurer has been regarded as a Coffin protégé. Robinson's 1930 pay budget, however, remained at the 1929 figure.

Whether the council exceeded its authority in reducing salaries of court reporters from $3,000 to $2,400 a year and court bailiffs from $2,400 to $1,800 a year may be decided in several mandamus suits to force the auditor to allow original requests.

Fred T. Gladden, county school superintendent, probably will resort to mandate action to overthrow the council's act in not only disallowing his $1,200 a year salary raise but in cutting his salary $800 below the $3,600 mark. Councilmen allowed Gladden $3,600 for the remainder of this year but said the lower rate will be effective Jan. 1.

INCORPORATION FEES GAIN IS $62,087.01

Incorporation fees paid the state in August represented a gain of $62,087.01 over August of last year, according to figures made public by the office of Secretary of State Otto G. Fife.

Fife attributes the increase to the new incorporation law, which reduces the fee to 1-cent a share but encourages greater numbers of incorporations in this state.

The total for August was $79,788.57 this year and $17,701.56 in 1928. Disbursements were $3,497.91 as compared to $1,526.95, due to the increased business Fife reported.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY'S PEACE AIMS PRAISED

De Pauw President Tells Teachers MacDonald Has Foresight.

Belief that the Labor party, in power since the recent British election, will be a great force in bringing about international armament reduction, was expressed today by Dr. G. Bromley Oxnam, president of De Pauw university, to teachers of the Indianapolis institute at Shortridge high school.

President Oxnam was introduced by Charles F. Miller, city school superintendent, who returned this week from Europe, where he attended the International Educational Conference at Geneva, Switzerland.

Speaking on "The Significance of the British Election," Dr. Ox-nam praised the work and international interests of Ramsay MacDonald, labor leader in Great Britain, and described him as a man who aims in humanitarian terms.

"The Labor party is pledged to reduction of naval armaments, and since Ramsay MacDonald is to visit America next month for a conference with President Hoover on that question, I believe the attitude of the Laborites will have a profound effect in bringing about a reduction of armaments," he said.

"Two very vital proposals of the Labor leaders are the uniform enforcement of a minimum standard of living and democratic control of industry," Oxnam continued.

Proceeding up address, special music was furnished by Edwin Jones, violinist, with Miss Francis Wishard at the piano, both members of the Arthur Jordan Conservatory of Music.
