

OLD COOLIDGE HOME IS HAVEN OF NEWLYWEDS

John, Flo Stop for Night at Plymouth, High in Vermont Hills.

By United Press
PLYMOUTH, Vt., Sept. 25.—This tiny hamlet high in the hills today was the honeymoon haven of John Coolidge and his bride of three days, the former Florence Trumbull.

The Coolidge homestead, which became a national shrine in 1923 when Calvin Coolidge stood in its lamp-lit living room and took the oath as President of the United States, sheltered the newlyweds during the second night following their marriage at Plainville, Conn.

John and Florence arrived here late Tuesday in the latter's sport roaster after visiting briefly former President and Mrs. Coolidge at Northampton, Mass.

En route to Plymouth, the newlyweds stopped for a few minutes at the home of former Attorney-General John G. Sargent and at the home of Sarah Pollard, John's great-aunt.

Shortly before 6 p.m., the roaster stopped in front of the rambling white farm house, which was the home of the late Colonel John C. Coolidge, John's grandfather.

As he alighted from the car, John spied Miss Florence Cilley, for many years Plymouth's postmistress, standing on the little piazza of the post office and general store diagonally across the street.

"Hello," he shouted, waving his hand.

After Miss Cilley had responded with a brief word of welcome, John assisted his wife from the automobile and, carrying suitcases and coats, hurried to the porch of the Coolidge homestead.

Miss Aurora Pierce, for some twenty years housekeeper there, stood with the door partly opened, waiting to greet them.

The newlyweds had supper and then, for the first time this year, the lamp in the sitting room of the homestead was lighted. Before retiring, John and Florence visited for a while with the housekeeper and received a few local friends.

REJECTS NICKNAME

Everson Offers Substitute for 'Parson' Title.

"I'm just a Christian general and not a 'fighting parson.'

This was the declaration today of Adjutant-General William G. Everson, who has accepted the position of chief of the federal militia bureau and awaits orders to leave for Washington.

Because he is pastor of the First Baptist church of Muncie and has an enviable record in the World war as a commander of fighting troops, General Everson often has been referred to as the "fighting parson."

"I'd like to get away from that trite misnomer," the general declared. "What's the matter with using the title of a Christian general?"

BRITISH DIRIGIBLES TERMED OBSOLETE

Experts Confirm Reports About Two Huge New Airships.

By United Press
LONDON, Sept. 25.—British aviation circles were stirred considerably today by assertions made in the technical journal, Engineer, that the dirigible R-101, now under construction, will be obsolete before it is launched.

Engineer said a trial flight would demonstrate the R-101 is overpowered, overweighted, deficient in speed and unprovided with a satisfactory reversing system. It said also that the ship would be unable to carry the one hundred passengers, for whom accommodations were built.

Experts confirmed today that owing to the delay of two years in the building of the R-101 and its sister ship, the R-100, both have become practically obsolete before being put into operation, or even before leaving their sheds.

$75. Samuels and Gomez tangled an argument recently, and Samuels was given his choice of a jail sentence or a purchase of teeth by City Judge W. Colburn Cook.
