Citizens' Committee to Fight Bar Against Its Candidates.

Attorneys of the citizens' school committee were prepared for the circuit court fight this afternoon to prevent removal of names of the committee's five candidates for school board posts from the ballots in Tuesday's election.

Nine suits were filed against these candidates and four others, seeking to obtain a restraining order on the allegation that the petitions filed with City Controller Sterling R. Holt, nominating the candidates, "were insufficient."

On the eve of the court action, William V. Rooker, attorney for the three plaintiffs, denied that C. G. Shipp, heating and ventilating manufacturer, was involved in the litigation.

Shipp's equipment has been used by the school board and his name has been mentioned many times as the "controlling factor" in school board business transactions.

The citizens' candidates named in the suits are: Julian Wetzel, Samuel E. Garrison, Russell Willson, Merle Sidener and Mrs. Maud Miller. Others made defendants are: Fred Kepner, Mrs. Lillian Sedwick and Lewis E. Whitman, who are seeking re-election, and Mrs. Lillian B. Moore.

Pass Key Was Used in Entering William Stafford Residence.

Police today were investigating theft of jewelry valued at $14,000 from the residence of William H. Stafford, 3522 Central avenue, Indianapolis insurance man, Tuesday night.

The robbery was reported to police Wednesday morning by Stafford and first reports were that silver plate had been stolen while jewelry was not taken. Today, however, detectives said the list revealed bracelets, rings, watches and diamonds were missing.

The jewelry was stored in a cabinet on the second floor. The robbery was not made public for several hours and Stafford has refused to discuss the incident.

Entrance to the house was gained by use of a pass key, police believe.

LOVE, HONOR—PAY

Clerk Is Post—Matrimony Aid

BY ARCH STEINEL

"HULLO Red! What did the big bread-and-butter man do for me this month?"

Eighteen hundred times a month, sometimes more, affable John "Red" Roessner, juvenile court clerk, hears this query, with variations, at his "alimony counter" at the courthouse.

Sometimes the queries are doleful, sometimes pert, but always they are from women hoping to collect "board-and-keep" for themselves and children from erstwhile mates or mates that want to be erstwhile.

"Red" recites how the county acts as a matrimonial collection agency for $21,500 monthly, how the much-vaunted "support money" ranges from $1 to $250 weekly, how 2,100 children are safe from the metaphorical wolf-at-the-door, because of the money he receives and doles out.

But that's not the real "Red" talking. The real "Red" Roessner is a philosopher. He hears wedlock's record play a daily tune of hate, misguided affection, jealousy, unfaithfulness—and he's not staying unmarried because of it.

For Roessner laughs with them and at them because of scenes like these: Wife No. 2: (approaching the counter)—"Well, here's the alimony installment. I hope she chokes on it."

Wife No. 1: (Same scene. Two hours later)—"She's getting her fill of him, I bet—and paying too. If he'd stayed by me—well he wouldn't be paying this money out."

Life had passed her by. It had passed her by as it might have walked away from the bench where she sat near "Red's" counter. She fingered the stub that would obtain her "support" money from the cashier's window.

A darkness smeared the rouge on her cheeks. She walked toward the cashier's window, got the money, and walked out of the courthouse.

"Her first payment since the divorce," explained Roessner sympathetically. "I'm sorry but there isn't. Your husband left this note," retorted "Red" as he handed her a blank of scratch-paper.

She read aloud: "I'm having the seat of my trousers patched, my shoes half-soled, paying the last installment on the sewing machine you bought, finishing that bill you made at the department store—and can't give you anything this time. Will do better next time. Bill."

"Bill! umph," she muttered. "Bills—that's all he takes about when we were married and that's all he talks about now. Watch my smoke, I'll bill him!" and off she flounced.

And as for "Red," he may have sighed a bit but it wasn't because he's afraid of leap-years.

and manslaughter; Emory C. Crawford, 222 North Illinois street, embezzlement; Harley V. Worrall and William Daugherty, both living in the Shelbyville road, criminal attack; Joe Harris and Harry Heater, burglary, and Thomas Walton, 1510 East St. Clair street, transporting liquor.

Morgan, whose offices are at 603 Continental Bank building, is charged with the embezzlement of $750 from Charles B. Anderson, London, O., April 12. Morgan is alleged to have collected the money for Anderson and to have failed to turn it over to him.

Names of seven persons included in the indictment were not made public pending arrests.

Hot Fireman

Thieves Steal His Car and Burn It After Joy Ride at Night.

ROARING flames from a burning auto illumined the darkness at White river and Kessler boulevard at 3 a. m. today.

Miles away, Fire Lieutenant Edward J. Webber went about his duties at fire house No. 18, on West Washington street near Belmont avenue, innocent of the conflagration that was of so much interest to him.

Not long after firemen from a north side engine house extinguished the flames and obtained the license number of the charred auto. Webber was disturbed by a Times reporter who phoned the engine house.

"Webber, do you own a Willys-Knight with license number 78-497?" the reporter asked.

"Well, I'm not sure that's the license number for sure," Webber replied. "Wait a minute, I parked it in the rear of the engine house. Hold the line, I'll take a look."

Nothing but the early morning noises from the fire house sounded over the line for a minute or two.

Then—"Hey! My car is gone!" Webber yelled.

Firemen who extinguished the blaze said a can of gasoline was found near the auto. Police said thieves apparently sneaked the car from its parking place during the night and set fire to it after a joy ride.

GIRL TO TELL FACTS IN RIVER SLAYING CASE

Gloria Rouzer Will Be Held Two Days to Give Deposition.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 31.—A legal technicality will delay for at least two days the release of Gloria Rouzer of New York, who is held here in connection with the death of Jack Kraft.

Miss Rouzer, who first gave her name as Ione Ord, is held as a material witness in the case, but, under Louisiana law, she can not be detained indefinitely.

It was planned to take her deposition today and then release her, but District Attorney Leander Perez pointed out he had not received the required forty-eight-hour notice for filing of the deposition. Thus, the girl must be held until such notice can be filed.

Kraft's body was found in the Mississippi river. An inquest revealed he died from a bullet wound, but Miss Rouzer said he jumped off the rail of the steamer Creole, on which they were passengers. John McGouldrick, second officer of the Creole, was arrested on a charge of murder when the vessel docked in New York recently.

McGouldrick will be arraigned in Plaquemines parish district court on Nov. 7, at which time a trial date will be set.

VERDICT REVERSED

Former Klan Lieutenant Wins Liquor Appeal.

Conviction of Court Asher, Muncie, former Klan lieutenant of D. C. Stephenson, on bootlegging charges was reversed Wednesday by the state supreme court.

The case was one of the number appealed and reversed from Delaware circuit court when former Judge Clarence R. Dearth was on the bench. Attorney Tom Miller of Muncie has set a record for securing reversals in similar cases. The attorney-general's office made no effort to defend the conduct of the lower court.

Asher, who was notorious in Muncie for his alleged liquor and Ku Klux Klan activities, offered as defense that he was addressing a Klan meeting at Columbus when charged with selling liquor to Delaware county deputy sheriffs on June 30, 1923.

digestion and assimilation. In a few days, a child is well, happy and bright again.

The way children improve when California Fig Syrup is used is the best proof of its merit. Here's an example: Mrs. Ivan Spencer, 832 Bradshaw St., Indianapolis, says: "Emma was bothered with constipation several years ago and I decided to give her California Fig Syrup. It made such a difference in her that I have used it since then for every little upset. It helps her digestion; regulates her bowels; keeps her strong and energetic. I am sure it is one thing that is helping her gain weight at such a wonderful rate, now."

In such cases, California Fig Syrup never fails to help by the prompt opening of clogged intestines. The first spoonful does that; and relieves the common symptoms of constipation. Successive doses help tone and strengthen weak stomach and bowels; improve appetite; encourage

Golden Gate Will Be Spanned

The greatest single span in the history of bridge building—a 4,000-foot span which will exceed by 500 feet the bridge under construction on the Hudson river—is the proposal for the Golden Gate bridge across San Francisco bay's world famous landmark. Joseph B. Strauss, Chicago bridge designer, estimates the cost of the bridge at $30,000,000. Before permission was given to build the bridge, assurance had to be made to the government that it could be demolished easily in case of war so that it would not bottle up American forces. The proposed bridge is shown above, with one of the entrances to it. In all, it will total 6,176 feet in length.

Rosenwald Guarantees Stock Market Accounts of Company Workers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—In a copyrighted article, the Herald-Examiner said Wednesday Julius Rosenwald, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., has guaranteed the stock market accounts of the more than 40,000 employees of the company.

He has pledged his personal fortune of millions of dollars to prevent any employee facing the damage of having his savings swept away, the story said.

The Herald-Examiner said Rosenwald's decision was reached immediately after the disastrous plunge of stock prices last Thursday and that on that day he called a conference of company officials. Among those present were his son, Lessing, vice-president of the company; General Robert E. Wood, president; W. O. Lewis, treasurer, and John Higgins, another vice-president.

HIGGINS was quoted as saying: "My first step was to look up the accounts of all our employees, not only in Chicago, but in all the other communities where we have branches or offices. In every case in which it is found that an employee is carrying an account on which, in this bear market, his margin has grown too narrow for safety, our procedure is to communicate with the broker handling the account."

"The broker is asked whether additional collateral is needed to safeguard the account, and we simply put up the collateral, so that our employees shall be able to weather the storm."

SCORES COSTS OF CITY CARS

Jewett Charges Expensive Autos Were Bought.

Charges of buying expensive automobiles for city employees were fired at the Slack administration Wednesday night by Charles W. Jewett, former mayor of Indianapolis, in upholding the candidacy of Alfred M. Glossbrenner, Republican majority nominee.

In addresses at Nineteenth street and Martindale avenue and at the Negro Masonic temple on Indiana avenue, Jewett made public letters received from Mayor Slack in reply to Jewett's previous charges.

Jewett charged the Slack administration "but a new Hudson sedan with a de luxe custom made body for Fabien Beamer, superintendent of city garage."

Purchase of cars for Ernest Frick, board of works clerk, and for Joel A. Baker, purchasing agent, also were mentioned in the charges.

"The city council would do well to investigate these purchases," Jewett said.

Camana, Venezuela, is the oldest English town on the South American mainland.
