

TOLLS CHARGED ON NEW BRIDGE CALLED UNFAIR

Editor Asserts Louisville to Profit at Expense of Jeffersonville.

By Times Special
JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Nov. 2.—All may be quiet along the Potomac but along the Ohio here—that's another river.

George A. Voigt, publisher of the Evening News here, in a Page 1 editorial declares tolls charged for crossing the new Louisville municipal bridge, dedicated this week, are set on a basis which will be harmful to Jeffersonville business interests.

Voigt points out that the toll for an automobile is 35 cents, regardless of how many persons occupy it. He says this will result in free crossing for many parties from Jeffersonville who will spend their money in Louisville.

"Such a schedule is unheard of," Voigt complains. "It is a universal custom to charge a fixed sum for the car and driver and a fare for every additional occupant. The effect will be that the automobile owner will gather up his friends, take them away from our merchants over to Louisville without additional cost, enabling them to do their trading over there."

Voigt says that in connection with the dedication he received luncheon and other invitations and theater tickets, but declined all of them, because of his belief that Jeffersonville is being treated unfairly.

Although called a municipal bridge, the new span was financed by private interests, with the understanding that when a bond issue is paid from tolls the bridge will become the property of Louisville. This is expected to take ten to fifteen years.

KOKOMO WIDOW BEING ENRICHED BY OIL PROFITS

Sole Support of Three Children Getting $1,200 Weekly.

By Times Special
KOKOMO, Ind., Nov. 2.—Mrs. Aretas Chapman, left a widow last spring with three children to support, now has an income of $1,200 a week from Kentucky oil wells, and the prospects are good for an increase as more wells are to be drilled.

When her husband died, Mrs. Chapman was the heir to a small insurance policy and a one-sixth interest in 120 acres of land in Kentucky, which had been bequeathed Chapman by his father.

Oil company representatives a few months ago leased the land for drilling. The first well brought in was a gusher. For five days the oil spouted from it with such force and in such volume that it could not be controlled. Finally three six-inch pipes were connected to carry off the oil. Shortly afterward ten more wells were drilled and all were producers excepting one.

Plans have been made to drill at least 100 more wells. In the first fifteen days after the initial well started producing it showed a profit of $56,000 on 70,000 barrels of oil. Experts predict the flow will continue on a paying basis for at least ten years.

He also learned that an element lacking when the seed is first placed can be added later. Iron was omitted in one case, and the corn plant lost color, which was restored when iron was added.

DEVIL BLAMED IN TWO EARLY DAY MURDERS

Oddly Worded Indictments Recall Only Execution at Columbus.

By Times Special
COLUMBUS, Ind., Nov. 2.—A search of records in the Baltimore county clerk's office here has disclosed two indictments for murder in which the devil is blamed. Convictions were obtained in each case and John Jones and Kader Herring died on the gallows, the only executions in the county's history.

The following paragraph appears in both indictments: "Not having the fear of God before his eyes, but being moved and seduced by the instigation of the devil."

Jones paid with his life for the murder of John Ray on June 11, 1831, and Herring for the murder of John Comer, June 15, 1833.

The case was passed between Jones and Ray during a quarrel over some trivial matter while both were riding horseback to their homes. A knife was the weapon of death.

An argument over an allegedly stolen cow led to the shooting of Comer by Herring.

Both murderers were executed on the same day on the site of a building known as the Elm house. Ray's widow and four children witnessed the hanging of the slayer of the husband and father.
