

IMMIGRATION IS VITAL QUESTION FOR CANADIANS

Dominion Is Getting Few of Thousands Leaving Mother Country.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance
MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—What he calls "spoon-fed" immigration to Canada from Great Britain has been denounced roundly by Colonel Malcolm Kincaid-Smith, a former member of the British parliament and at present a visitor in Canada. At the same time, he insists that Canada is not doing enough to attract British immigrants.

The question of immigration into the Dominion has been agitating public opinion in Canada ever since the war. Some believed that the cessation of hostilities would mark the beginning of a record rush from a wrecked Europe.

But the rush never materialized, or if it did, it did not make Canada its objective. Immigration to Canada has been disappointingly slow in the opinion of some Canadians.

Others profess to believe that the country is getting all the immigrants it can absorb and that quality rather than quantity should be the aim. There have been repeated charges of sluggishness, indifference or even of hostility on the part of the government toward an active immigration policy and hints that labor opposition toward opening the gates has had too much influence at Ottawa.

What is chiefly desired is British agricultural labor to take up Canadian farms. Manifestly this is the scarcest of all classes of immigrant, so scarce indeed that it is almost nonexistent.

Native Canadian stock, no more than native British stock at home, appears to be content to stay on the farm and Canada, slowly but surely, is being compelled to face the alternative of seeing "foreign" agricultural classes take up her acres or to leaving those acres uncultivated.

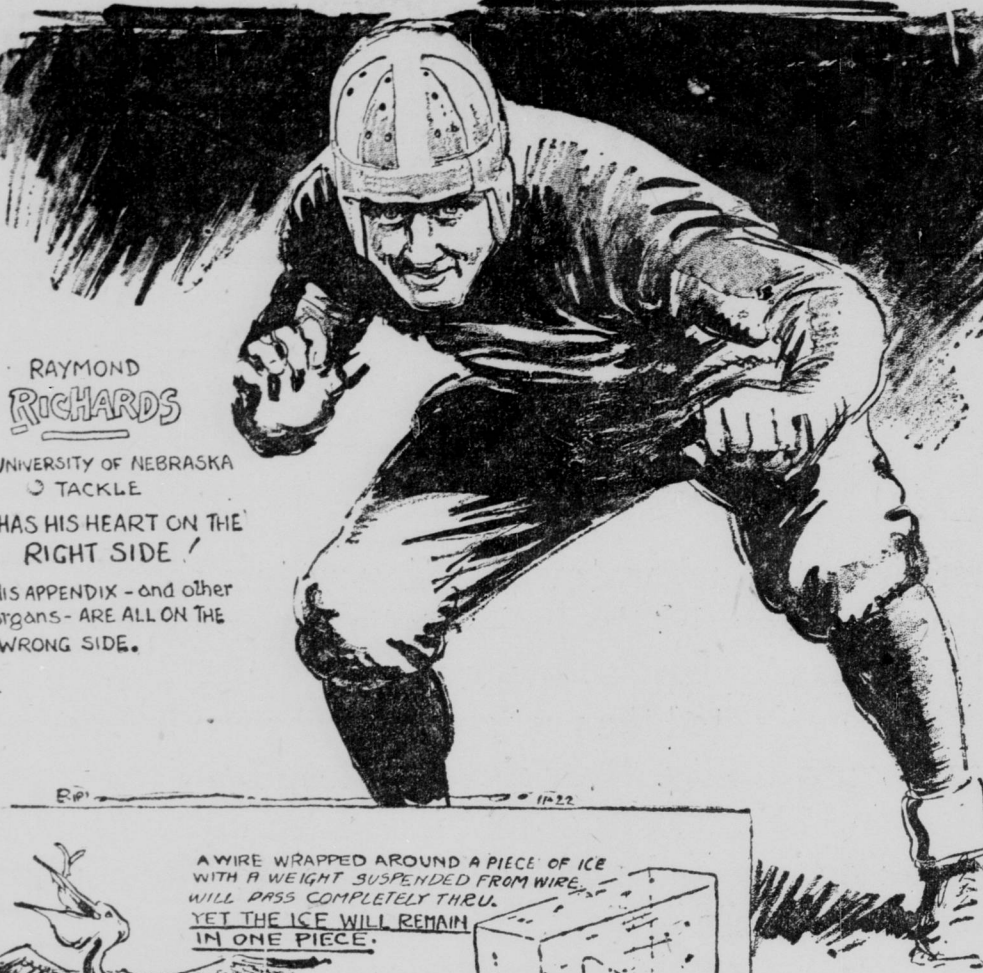

A few weeks ago it was proposed to assist some thousands of Menominee farmers to cross the ocean and take up western Canadian lands. There was an immediate protest from Premier Anderson of Saskatchewan, where it was proposed to settle these people, and the federal government made haste to deny any part in the project.

According to Colonel Kincaid-Smith, 400,000 British immigrants "of the finest material in the world" have gone from Britain to the United States in the last ten years and Canada has made no effort to attract them.

Following is the explanation of Ripley's "Believe It or Not," which appeared in Thursday's Times:

The Man Who Found His Own Grave—John F. Bartells of Alma, Neb., returned home to find his own grave. The headstone bore his name, but the buried body was that of another. It seemed that Bartells disappeared twenty-eight years ago after a family disagreement and returned only recently. In the meantime his wife had thought him dead and was mourning another in his grave.

The Ageless Soup—The mastodon roamed our globe in prehistoric ages upward of about 50,000 years ago. It is the ancestor of our elephant, chiefly distinguished by its dentition. It fed on trees and assuaged its thirst by emptying a small brook each time.

The paleontologist Gimbrenat redistilled the ancient ingredients which the mastodon had assimilated.

Three Killed in Clash
By United Press
BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 22.—Three persons were killed and several wounded in a clash between police and striking millhands in the town of San Francisco, in the province of Cordoba, where, according to the police version, the strikers were endeavoring to prevent entry of food-stuffs into the town.

Amelia Earhart Sets Speed Mark, but Loses in Official Credit.

By United Press
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22.—Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman to succeed in a trans-Atlantic flight, was prepared today for another attempt to set a new world's flying speed record for women. This time she intends to make sure that the stop watches are accurate.

After a dash around a measured four-mile course Thursday, timers announced Miss Earhart had broken Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden's record by almost three miles an hour.

Then it was found that a hand on one timer's watch was jammed and the announced speed of 158.7 miles an hour was declared unofficial.

Bank Failure Puts Students on the Rocks.

By United Press
CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Closing of the Exchange State bank, in the "medical center" on Chicago's near west side, left hundreds of medical students, student nurses, physicians and hospital officials in dire straits today.

In many instances, money carefully saved to pay for a medical education or a special course in nursing was held while bank examiners investigated the condition of the bank.

Rush Medical college, departments of the University of Illinois Medical school, the University of Illinois Research hospital, the Presbyterian hospital, County hospital and the Chicago Dental school are in the district surrounding the bank.

Saturday is said to have ten moons, Jupiter nine, and Mars two.
