

FIERCE STORMS TAKE LIVES OF 23 IN BRITAIN

Coast Swept by Gales;
Many Injured; Property
Damage Is Heavy.

By United Press
LONDON, Dec. 6.—Storms of hurricane intensity, which swept the British Isles, the English channel and sections of the Atlantic ocean for nearly twenty-four hours, abated somewhat today after taking a toll of twenty-three lives, many injured and heavy property damage. The dead included sixteen of the crew of the British steamship Frances Duncan, 2,384 tons, which foundered off the Irish coast near Waterford.

Three fishermen were drowned when their fishing boat was smashed to bits on the coast near Skerries, Ireland. Four other victims were claimed by the storms on land. The herringboat Trypsena was disabled by the storm off Yarmouth and was being towed to port when it broke away and was wrecked near North Sands. The crew of ten was rescued by rocket apparatus.

The drifter Reward was stranded at Corton sand, abandoned by its crew and later blown to sea and sank.

Six other steamships reported themselves in difficulty while trawlers and small fishing boats sought safety in port after being battered by the storm.

Gone, but Not Forgotten

ROYAL GROUP TO VISIT

POPE PIUS SATURDAY

Italian Prince, Princess to Be Received in Papal Chambers.

By United Press

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 6.—A protocol issued from the Vatican today said that the visit of Crown Prince Humbert of Italy and the Princesses Giovanna and Maria to the pope Saturday will follow closely the program under which King Victor Emanuel and Queen Elena visited his holiness in the papal apartments Thursday.

The only exception to Thursday's program will be that the three royal visitors Saturday will not be received at St. Peter's square by Commander Camillo Serafini, governor of Vatican City, as were the king and queen.

Nighties
By United Press
CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Mid-western males, except for the young fellows, have not gone pajama. They sleep in night shirts—the kind you pull over your head and that flop at the knees.

Clerks in loop men's shops stood behind stacks of the old-fashioned sleeping garments today and stoutly maintained almost all older men wear them.

Passing men on a downtown street were asked what they sleep in.

"Pajamas," said the younger ones.

"None of your business," said the older ones, and that meant night shirts.

TARDIEU SUPPORTED
Chamber of Deputies Gives
Vote of Confidence.
By United Press
PARIS, Dec. 6.—The chamber of deputies voted confidence in Premier Andre Tardieu's government Thursday night, even though the members had to pledge themselves to work overtime to do it.

Tardieu, mounting the tribune during the afternoon, accused left groups in parliament of using obstructionist tactics and proposed that the chamber meet every morning, afternoon and night, including Sundays, until the agricultural budget was passed.

Edouard Daladier, president of the radical Socialists, resented the declaration, fought his way to the platform and pleaded for the left groups to refuse confidence in the government.

Three hours later, however, when the move was put to a vote Tardieu won, 350 to 142.
