

GREAT BRITAIN OPENS GIGANTIC TRADE EXHIBIT

Fair Launched Formally;
Dominions, Colonies
Are Represented.

BY JOSEPH GORDON
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Feb. 17.—The biggest national trade exhibition ever held in this country—the British fair—opened formally today and will continue simultaneously in London and Birmingham until Feb. 28. Every British dominion and colony is represented in the show.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the exhibition is the British manufacturer's renunciation of his age-old "take-it-or-leave-it" attitude toward the world of trade and his new determination to turn out products exactly suited to modern industrial purposes and to the special climatic conditions in their overseas markets.

In Two Classes
The exhibits are divided into two classes, the so-called "lighter" industries, including chemicals, clothing, pottery, glassware, plate, fancy goods, sports, glassware, plate, fancy goods, sports goods, toys, etc., and the "heavier" industries, including machinery, building materials, hardware, heating machinery and transport.

The dominions and colonies have individual displays of their foodstuffs and other products in the empire marketing board section of the exhibition. In addition, Canada has 7,000 feet for the exhibit of Canadian manufactures.

Machinery Is Represented
The clothing and textile section shows that British manufacturers still can clothe everybody from the Palm Beach bathing girl to the Arctic explorer.

Machinery, chemicals, trunks, luggage, everything manufactured in Great Britain, is well represented at both sections of the exhibition. Birmingham and Sheffield manufacturers provide all the jewelry. Musical instruments, pianos, violins and other articles made here were put on display, but by far the strongest representation in the music section is that of the talking machine. Radio sets also are in great prominence.

ELKHART MAN ACCUSED IN $8,000 GEM THEFT

Diamonds Alleged Taken After
Mailing to Fictitious Person.

By United Press
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 17.—Chester Jessup, 28, Elkhart, watch repairman, was brought to South Bend today from Holland, Mich., to face federal grand jury action in connection with an alleged scheme in which he is said to have swindled a Chicago jewelry house of $8,000 in diamonds.

It was said Jessup confessed to postal inspectors the method used to obtain jewels from the firm of Juergens & Anderson, Chicago. He was arrested after an attempt to sell some of the gems. Thirty diamonds were found in the lining of his coat. Jessup, using the name of a South Bend jeweler, placed an order with the Chicago company. He then notified the South Bend jeweler the diamonds had been shipped to him by mistake and ordered them mailed, addressed to a fictitious name, in care of general delivery at the La Porte postoffice, where Jessup claimed the diamonds.

City Forester, Bicycle to Go Into Retirement

City Forester Elbert Moore and the sixth municipality owned bicycle, which he will turn over to his successor Feb. 26.

Democratic Ax Falls on Parks Employee of 20 Years Standing.

For the last twenty years City Forester Elbert Moore, 60, of 3126 Northwestern avenue, Republican, who will be dropped from the park board pay roll Feb. 26, has been a familiar figure on Indianapolis streets, pedaling his bicycle about in performance of his duties.

Moore's dismissal was ordered by the park board, George A. Featherstone, 55, of 1054 West Twenty-ninth street; Democratic committeeman in the Twenty-seventh precinct of the Fourth ward, being appointed to the $1,800-a-year post.

With the dismissal of Moore, the question of "what shall become of the city's only municipally owned bicycle" was raised, as Featherstone hasn't decided whether he will use the bicycle or not.

"I haven't cost the city much," commented Moore when advised that the Democratic ax was slated to fall upon him.

"Twenty years ago when I started to work under the Bookwater administration this job paid only $75 a month. I helped move the park board offices from the Saks build-

Plaza Church Buying.

With seven days remaining in which taxpayers may file remonstrances against the county's purchase of two churches in the War Memorial plaza, commissioners today were discussing appointment of three appraisers to enter negotiations with church officials.

Three remonstrances have been received by the board since the passing of a declaratory resolution three weeks ago, in which commissioners asserted intentions to effect immediate purchase.

Memories

Saves Wife From Flames;
Dies for Sake of Old Picture.

By United Press
HARVEY, Ill., Feb. 17.—Of late years William Richardson complained often that he was feeling the hand of time, that the muscles he had hardened as a blacksmith were almost useless.

"I'm 80 and the last weakness is upon me," he would say.

But when he awakened with flames engulfing the house and flicking at the bed where he and his invalid wife, Maria, 78, were lying, Richardson's strength came back. He lifted his wife into his arms and carried her through the flames to safety.

Then he remembered the picture they had taken on their wedding day and the aged man dashed back into the burning house. Minutes passed and he did not come out.

His son-in-law, John Middleton, and neighbors found him on the bedroom floor, the picture clasped in his arms. They carried him out. He was dead.

VARE MAY STAY IN SENATE RACE

Expect G. O. P. Leader to Make Early Decision.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance
WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Events of the next forty-eight hours are likely to determine definitely whether William S. Vare, Philadelphia Republican leader, will be an active or silent figure in the approaching Pennsylvania political campaign and whether Labor Secretary James J. Davis will leave the cabinet to be his running mate.

Vare is expected, by tonight, either to accede to requests of his followers to withdraw from the race for the senate or to show he was not bluffing when he announced recently he was in the race to stay.

Should Vare, who now is in Florida, attempting to regain his health, refuse to get out of the senate race, Davis probably will be his running mate as the candidate for Governor. Davis, however, probably will not be a candidate unless Vare makes the race.

DOCTORS SHOW QUICK WAY TO END A COLD

COLD SOON DISAPPEARED WHEN TREATED BY QUICK, EASY METHOD DOCTORS NOW ADVISE

Many Here Find Home Use of Hospital Method Superior to Remedies That Cause Sweating and Risk Pneumonia
By Opening Up Pores

The same method used in hospitals—even in extreme cases that brought fear of pneumonia—is now relieving colds quickly in vast numbers of Indianapolis homes. For hospital doctors have certified Ayer's Pectoral for home use as the quickest, safest and most dependable of different widely used methods tested for head colds, coughs and chest colds.

Miss Vivian Stoddard's experience is typical. Examination by her doctor showed that she was running a high temperature and that congestion in her air passages caused thoracic pain when she attempted to take a deep breath.

Almost immediately after her doctor gave her double strength doses of Ayer's Pectoral she noticed quick relief. Breathing soon became easier, the thoracic pain disappeared, and in a few hours her fever was reduced from 101 degrees to normal. The next morning she woke up feeling greatly relieved. Medical examination the next day showed her temperature, pulse and respiration were normal again. A few pleasant doses of Ayer's Pectoral, the doctor reports, had completely cleared up her cold.

Ayer's Pectoral is superior to remedies which give temporary relief but open up the pores and thus risk pneumonia. Ayer's Pectoral does not open the pores. It can be taken with absolute safety—even if one has to be out doors.

Cold Made Worse By Remedies Which Open Pores—Then Doctor Gave Quick Relief Pleasant Way

An entirely new method that ends colds quickly—often in just a few hours—is now prescribed by doctors in numerous hospital cases and is also being used with remarkable success in numbers of Indianapolis homes.

E. H. Young, for example, attempted to sweat out his cold by taking hot drinks and other home remedies. But his work made it necessary for him to go out the next morning while the pores of his skin were still open. As a result, he caught fresh cold and by early afternoon he had developed such a high fever that pneumonia was feared.

Acting on the advice of his doctor, then, he started taking a pleasant spoonful of Ayer's Pectoral every 15 minutes. Instead of opening up the pores and risking pneumonia, this hospital certified medication acted upon an entirely different principle. Before night the medication had been absorbed by his system, thus checking the cold wherever congestion had been. By morning his fever was gone and congestion was clearing up rapidly. He returned to work in just a day or so the cold was entirely gone.

BACK IN SCHOOL—
SOON ENDED COLD
WAY BOYS ENJOY

A hospital remedy for colds—so pleasant children enjoy taking it—is now being recommended as a result of its outstanding record in extreme hospital cases, in the private practice of physicians and in home use among numbers of Indianapolis people.

Mrs. E. L. Jenkins, for example, was awakened by the severe coughing of her son, Edward, Jr. She immediately got in touch with her doctor who advised double strength doses of Ayer's Pectoral to relieve the coughing and break up the cold before more serious illness had a chance to develop.

The coughing spell was checked almost immediately. Within a few minutes the child was sleeping quietly again and by the next morning congestion had cleared up surprisingly. The doctor's examination the next day showed that the cold and congestion were completely gone and the child was able to return to school without unnecessary loss of time.

Ayer's Pectoral is safer than hot steam, and more effective than perspiration. They are dangerous to use unless one stays in bed while the sweat pores are open. Ayer's Pectoral does not cause sweating and can be used with absolute safety—even if one has to be out doors. ENDORSED BY HOOK DRUG AND ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS.
