

LIQUOR INQUIRY IS STARTED BY FEDERAL JURY

Dry Investigators Working in Southern Indiana:
Report Made.

Federal grand jurors today began building the groundwork for an extensive probe into alleged booze activities in southern Indiana, which may continue over a period of several weeks, it was learned today.

The quiz body heard several witnesses who were thought to be able to supply information concerning alleged booze racketeers and operations which may have some bearing on the investigation into the Montezuma (Ind.) still case, also before the jury.

A partial report of the jury was made this afternoon to Federal Judge Robert C. Bailez.

It was reported that special dry law investigators now are working in Indiana and may be able to produce evidence before the grand jury session ends next week.

Several men were arrested and equipment and supplies, valued at thousands of dollars, fell into hands of dry agents when the Montezuma raid was made in December.

In addition to alleged operators of the still, a sugar merchant and his aid were arrested on charges of aiding the alleged still operators.

Negro Jailed for Libel

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Feb. 21.—Marcus Garvey, former Negro leader in the United States, was sentenced today to six months' imprisonment for seditious libel published in his newspaper, The Blackman. The editor, Alkman, was sentenced to three months. Appeals were entered.

New Indiana Flora Is Named for State Man

New Species Called Deamii
in Honor of Bluffton Conservationist.

Charles C. Deam, nationally known botanist and research forester of the state conservation department, has been honored by having certain flora found in Indiana named after him, it was learned today.

In the current issue of Rhodora, a botanical journal of high standing in the scientific world, Deam's discovery of new plant specimens is given high tribute.

The article, written by Paul C. Standley, says:

"This variety was called to my attention by C. C. Deam, who showed me a large series of specimens collected at numerous localities in Indiana and suggested that the form should receive a name. The variety consequently is named Deamii, in his honor, since he is too modest to describe it himself.

"Modesty is not one of the best-remembered sins of botanists, and in this case, it is all the more to be regretted upon the part of one who possesses a knowledge of the flora of the upper Mississippi valley, such as probably will not be attained by any other botanist in the very near future."

There is a footnote stating: "The editors of Rhodora fully concur." Deam lives at Bluffton. He has been a student of botany and forestry for a half century. He now is engaged in writing a book called "The Flora of Indiana."

File Bankruptcy Pleas

Voluntary bankruptcy petitions were filed in federal court today by Frank A. Williams of Williamsburg, Ind., and his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Williams. Williams listed $53,068 liabilities and $18,249 assets. His wife listed $22,645 liabilities and $6,310 assets.

'RED' REPORTS PROBED

Adjutant-General Ordered to Make
Investigation of Rumors.

Adjutant-General Manford G. Hanley of the Indiana national guard, today was instructed by Governor Harry G. Leslie to go to Lake county personally to investigate possibilities for a parade and demonstration of "Red" sympathizers next Wednesday.

Discounting alarms over the threatened demonstration, which he characterized as "probably imaginary," Governor Leslie declared he ordered the investigation as a matter of public policy and "precaution."

Any evidence found of such an intended outbreak would mean national guardsmen would be called into service, he indicated.

UPBRAIDS LOVER TO WHOM SHE 'PRAYED AS GOD'

Mrs. Brandon Is Bitter in Denunciation at Suit for Half Million.

By United Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Mrs. Frances Marion Brandon ran through a little light verbal exercise on the witness stand in supreme court today, got thoroughly warmed up to her subject and then rose to new heights in her denunciation of George J. Gillespie, whom she is suing for $574,185.

She charges him with breach of promise and fraud. Impartial observers in the crowded courtroom were inclined to believe that Mrs. Brandon's performance today excelled those of the two previous days on which she has testified. While she could think of only one more name to call Gillespie, her gestures showed a greater command of the situation.

Under cross-examination by Theodore Kiendl, counsel for Gillespie, Mrs. Brandon was led up to her big moment. She was being asked about the red triangles in her diary—combinations, she said, of the scarlet letter and the eternal triangle, which were used to mark her love trysts with Gillespie—when Kiendl asked:

"On the anniversary of the first scarlet triangle, that is, on the night of Jan. 30, 1923, did you show Mr. Gillespie all those marks you had made?"

"I am not sure," she said.

"Gillespie," said Kiendl, "that is, Mr. Gillespie—"

"At that time, he was neither Gillespie nor Mr. Gillespie to me," interrupted Mrs. Brandon.

"Oh, you called him Robin?"

Mrs. Brandon became excited. She leaped out of the witness chair and with one furious sweep of her hand ripped off her black, wide-brimmed hat. She stamped her feet. Her hand swept across her neck and tore off a necklace to which a medal was attached. She waved a pink card in the air and screamed:

"He was Saint George to me." That was a new name and Kiendl quickly led her on to talk about it. They went into a discussion of religion and Mrs. Brandon explained "I never prayed to Christ. I prayed to George Gillespie. I prayed to him after I was baptized in his faith."

Some scientists believe the conditions necessary for the beginning of a frigid age now exists, and that the earth is again entering an ice age.

When You Over- indulge

Every man, woman and child will occasionally over-indulge. But don't suffer for all your indiscretions. It's folly to do so. You can so easily sweeten and settle a sour, upset stomach with a little Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Hearty eaters have long since learned the quick comfort this perfect anti-acid brings. Smokers know how it neutralizes nicotine; brings back a sweet taste; guards the breath. Women know what it does for nausea—or sick headache. And when children have over-eaten—are bilious, constipated or otherwise upset—give them a little of the same,

TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Officers Seek to Identify Prather as Bandit.

Trial of Edward Prather, charged with bank robbery and auto banditry for alleged holdup of the Citizens bank of Southport, was delayed today while officials of the state criminal identification bureau attempted to connect him with other bank holdups.

Prather was taken to Cumberland, where it was believed by officers he might have been involved in a holdup of the Cumberland State bank a year ago.
