

FORMER STENO ASKS $500,000 IN LOVE SUIT

Philanthropist Failed to Keep Marriage Pledge,
She Charges.

By United Press
LOS ANGELES, March 7.—Albert Fuchs, 65-year-old Chicago philanthropist, was defendant in a $500,000 breach of promise suit which Miss Martha Gulickson, his former secretary, had on file here today.

Miss Gulickson, 34, charged that Fuchs refused to marry her after she came west in response to a letter of proposal.

While they waited the three days necessary under California law to obtain a marriage license, Fuchs introduced Miss Gulickson as his wife, she claimed, and a German newspaper carried a story of their wedding.

Fuchs indicated that he wanted her to become his common law wife, the woman charged, but she refused.

FREE PRESS IS UPHELD IN OHIO JUDGE'S RULING

Contempt Sentences on
Two Cleveland Editors
Reversed.

By Scripps-Harcord Newspaper Alliance
CLEVELAND, O., March 7.—A "free people must have a free press, and must have the right to speak freely their thought."

That sentence, contained in the written opinion of Chief Justice Willis Vickery of the Cuyahoga court of appeals, is the keynote of a decision reversing contempt of court sentences imposed on two Cleveland editors by Common Pleas Judge Frederick P. Walther.

The two are Louis B. Seltzer, editor, and Carlton K. Matson, chief editorial writer of the Cleveland Press.

They were convicted by Judge Walther July 17 on the strength of editorials appearing in the press July 11, in which Judge Walther was criticized for issuing an injunction designed to protect Thistle-down race track from raids by Sheriff E. J. Hanratty.

Sheriff Hanratty, on advice of the county prosecutor's office, ignored the order, made his raid, and the race meet, where the contribution system of betting was in use, was halted.

Judge Vickery in his opinion, concurred in by his associates, Judge Manuel Levine and Judge John J. Sullivan, ruled that Judge Walther erred in sitting as trial judge, erred in imposing a sentence in excess of that permitted by statute, and erred in considering the editorials contemptuous.

Judge Walther imposed fines of $500 and costs and thirty-day jail sentences.

"We believe," Judge Vickery wrote, "that the ends of justice will be served better if judges refer matters of contempt, other than those committed in their immediate presence, to another judge for trial."

In summing up the case, and cause for the reversal, Judge Vickery said:

Judge Walther was guilty of abuse of discretion in hearing the case; he was not in fit condition to give unbiased judgment; his injunction was "nothing more than a piece of paper that had no judicial order upon it;" nobody could be guilty of contempt for violating that "injunction" and as a corollary from that, nobody could be guilty of contempt in commenting upon that so-called order and in characterizing it in the strongest sense that it could be characterized.

Judge Walther declined to comment on the reversal.
