

SHOW TONIGHT
CLOSES SEASON
FOR SHRINERS

Nine Acts of Vaudeville Are Scheduled for Final Event.

Shriners will write final to their season's entertainment program with a farewell show in Murat temple tonight for Shrine members and adult members of their families. The show will be the last to be held in the temple prior to redecoration and refurnishing, ordered by the trustees. An unusual entertainment has been planned, according to Granville A. Richey, entertainment chairman.

Nine acts of professional vaudeville are to be offered free to Shriners and guests. These will be followed by a dance in the Egyptian room of the temple, with music furnished by a girls' orchestra.

Admission By Card

Admission will be by the 1930 Shrine membership card. Preceding the social program, the regular April stated meeting of the temple will be held. Rotaire Eggleston, professional entertainer, will have charge of the stage show.

Attention of all Murat Shriners now is directed toward the Murat pilgrimage to Toronto, Canada, June 7, to attend the annual convention of the order.

Completion of plans by the national Shrine organization for a memorial service, jubilee and dedication of a peace monument during the imperial session is arousing interest in the convention.

Hoover Is Invited

Leo V. Youngworth, imperial potentate, has announced that President Hoover has been invited to assist in unveiling of the monument and it is probable that the Prince of Wales, who is a thirty-second degree Mason, will attend.

Two special trains will carry members of Murat temple and their families to the Toronto meeting. Arrangements have been made for the Indianapolis delegation to be quartered in the Hotel King Edward. Edward J. Schoonover, Murat pilgrimage committee chairman, is preparing to receive reservations for the trip at downtown headquarters of the temple, 15 North Pennsylvania street.

BAXTER IS A WIZARD
IN ART OF MAKEUP

Warner Certainly Gives Lon Chaney a Run for His Honors in 'Such Men Are Dangerous.'

BY WALTER D. HICKMAN
WARNER BAXTER jumped to the much desired seat of popular favor when he created "The Cisco Kid" in "In Old Arizona." Now he repeats that success as Ludwig Kranz in "Such Men Are Dangerous."

"Such Men Are Dangerous" returns the theater to the days when we loved such plays as Guy Bates Post in "The Masquerader."

And those were good old dramatic days from the standpoint of being entertaining. Just as "In Old Arizona" created the way for the out-of-door talker, just so with Baxter's latest movie, it returns us to a very pleasant day in make-believe in the theater.

Baxter in the first part of this movie is a hideous old man in the world of power and finance. He marries a young girl. In fact he buys her, but shortly after the ceremony she escapes from his house. The wife, Elinor, is played by Catherine Dale Owen, with a fine understanding that she can never lose the ugly body and face of her wealthy husband. In these scenes, Baxter exhibits a makeup which rivals anything that Lon Chaney has ever given the screen. Baxter so disguises his own features that it is impossible to recognize Baxter in any feature of Ludwig Kranz. Here is masterful makeup.

Kranz decides to "escape" from his ugly self and he goes to Berlin under an assumed name—the world thinks that the wealthy man has met his death by jumping from an airplane. He goes to a specialist and has his face made over.

It is after the "operation" that we see Baxter as himself, good looking and attractive to the feminine eye. Kranz then so changed in appearance starts on a campaign of making love to his own wife.

He plans a terrible revenge upon her. When he reveals himself to his wife as Kranz, we have on the talking screen a fine done scene. Not over done, but in excellent restraint.

Miss Owen and Baxter are responsible for this.

Here is interesting theater and a personal triumph for Baxter. Better see it. That's my tip.

Now at the Apollo.

TRYING TO DUPLICATE
A FORMER SUCCESS

When one picture is a great success, others will follow along the same line. They always do. Just as a call follows the cow, its mother. They are never as big, either in theme, production or acting. If you saw "Wings" and then see "Young Eagles," I think you will agree. And then again you might not. In my opinion "Young Eagles" falls far below the production "Wings." But his does not mean that it is entirely a bad show. It is interesting in spots and no doubt will be quite thrilling to the young people. But there is nothing so spectacular about the flying scenes and nothing that we have not seen before in previous pictures dealing with war pilots.

The one thing that made this picture interesting to me was the capture work of Stuart Erwin. Here is a boy that has that certain naturalness about his acting that usually wins the hearts of the movie fans. He lifts this picture up from the ordinary. His touch of humor brightens the dull spots and is bound to bring a smile to your face. Buddy Rogers, the star, is just Buddy Rogers, as usual. Although he plays his part very well, there is nothing really outstanding about it. Jean Arthur plays the feminine lead.

The plot is very theatrical. Dealing with an American war pilot, who falls in love with a girl in Paris, and then hopes around because he thinks she is a German spy. In the end though she fools him and turns out to be in the American service, and he is happy.

As I said, this picture is interesting in spots. From box office viewpoint should draw them in. Fair entertainment.

The stage show this week, "Ace High," brings Dick Powell back to Indiana. Dick has not changed much, except that he seems a little more polished as a master of ceremonies, and I might say quite a bit more confident. From the amount of applause he received at the show I attended last night it is very plainly seen that the audience likes to hear him sing. I believe he was called back four times, or it might have been five, my memory fails me. Another outstanding figure in the presentation is Jed Dooley, who has a comedian line of chatter that never lets up until he disappears from the stage. Very good. The rest is just pleasant entertainment.

Rounding out the bill Ed Resener and the Charlie Davis orchestra.

A copy of the minutes was published recently by Dr. Jacob Goldman, Indiana Odd Fellows' historian. At first each lodge was independent and supreme and had two sets of officers, subordinate and supreme.

The woman who plays the role of Tondelero. I do not agree with her idea of the role.

From a scenic and recording standpoint, this movie is excellent. "White Cargo" is an ugly story. It was a freak on the stage but won dramatic theater of the melodramatic type. Unpleasant? Yes.

Adults will be interested in the fine acting of Faber and the other men in the cast.

Now at the Bandbox.

Other theaters today offer: John Steel at the Lyric; "Honey," at the Ohio; George Faris at the Colonial; and "Whoopee Girls," at the Mutual.

ACRE AND TWO
WIVES A MAN,
ISLAND'S RATIO

Porto Rico Outlook Viewed
Alarming as Birth Rate
Leaps Upward.

By United Press
NEW YORK, April 21.—An island of 1,500,000 acres of land and 1,500,000 people—one person to an acre—where every man has two or more wives was the picture drawn of Porto Rico by Dr. John C. Vaughan, New York surgeon and former director of the board of the American Birth Control League, on his return here after six months on the island.

"It is apparent to any one," said Dr. Vaughan, "the island is overpopulated and very little work is done."

The birth rate there, he said, is from 30,000 to 35,000 a year over the death rate.

In the last two years, Vaughan said, a bill to establish birth control clinics with a personnel and fund for their maintenance has passed the native assembly, but has been killed both times in the senate. This year, he said, it is up again.

This is the first instance in modern times, according to Vaughan, of a birth control bill being introduced on the purely economic basis of overpopulation.
