

ROGERS SLATED TO RETAIN POST AS PARTY HEAD

Watson Balance of Power Likely to Continue as G. O. P. Elects.

BY BEN STERN

Reorganization of the Republican state committee in Indianapolis Wednesday will be reorganization in name only, if the Watson balance of power continues seems probable.

District chairman were to be elected at district meetings in the state today, and will meet here Wednesday.

Predictions are that but four new faces will be seen in the committee session, and none of these will attempt to lead a fight to unseat Elza Rogers of Lebanon, incumbent state chairman.

Rogers has managed skillfully to avoid becoming involved in factional difficulties.

It is true that Rogers endorsed the candidacy of Miss Dorothy Cunningham, national committee woman, for the post of internal revenue collector, which was given E. E. Neal, Noblesville publisher.

However this will not injure him with the district chairman, the majority of whom also favored Miss Cunningham.

Huffman Is Scheduled

Re-election of Miss Mary Sleeth, Rushville, as vice-chairman; Harry Fenton of Indianapolis, secretary, and Irving W. Lemaux of Indianapolis, as treasurer, seems to be assured.

First district Republicans meeting at Evansville today are scheduled to elect Benjamin Huffman, Rockport, as chairman, Bruce Cooper, Stearnsville, who was defeated for the nomination for congress from the First district, is expected to fade from the political limelight.

There will be no changes in the Second district, where Ewing Emlison, Vincennes, will be re-elected; nor in the Third, where Ivan Morgan, Austin, recently was named to succeed Charles Brown, Paoli, who resigned.

Harry Nichols of Madison, candidate for the nomination for state treasurer, is assured re-election as Fourth district head.

Mary Nebeker, Clinton, who has been Fifth district chairman for several years is opposed by James Raper, Brazil, but party leaders urge that the betters put their money on Nebeker.

Schuyler Haas Named

Raymond Springer, Connorsville, national executive committee member for the American Legion, is favored to succeed Clarence Brown, Richmond, who is retiring. Some talk of electing Miss Sleeth has been heard but there is no great disposition on the part of the county chairman to elect a woman to head the Sixth district.

He'll Glide Far

In a glider powered by a 34-horse power motor, A. E. Johnson, above, of Dayton, O., plans a transcontinental flight in an attempt to set an economy record for fuel consumption. After gaining altitude he will cut off the motor, glide as far as possible, and then repeat the procedure.

Thursday elected Schuyler Haas as Seventh district chairman. Haas was chairman from 1924 to 1928 when he was succeeded by George V. Coffin, who resigned in November, 1929, and was replaced by William L. Taylor.

Frank Gordon, Bluffton, may experience some opposition from Judge Roscoe Wheat, Portland, for the Eighth district chairmanship.

Rogers will not be a candidate for re-election as Ninth district chairman, feeling that the state chairman should not be also a district head. Don Irwin, Frankfort, is said to be his successor.

William J. McAleer, Hammond, is assured the Tenth district post, and James Showalter, Wabash, chairman of the state tax board, may experience some opposition in the election as Eleventh district head, if friends of Judge Victor Simmons of Hartford City can get together.

The Twelfth is a cinch for John Yeager of Wolcottville, and David M. Hoover, former mayor of Elkhart, who had a fight two years ago may experience some difficulty but it is predicted he will be re-elected.

On this basis but four changes will be made: Huffman for Cooper, Springer for Brown, Haas for Taylor and Irwin for Rogers.

As usual the committee will be preponderantly favorable to the senior senator, whose hold at present does not seem to be slipping.

NO RAIDING OF MALT DEALERS, SAYS DRY HEAD

Deputy Dry Chief Asserts No Drastic Moves Are Planned in City.

No drastic movement against dealers in malt and home brew equipment has been outlined by federal prohibition forces of the district, Gus Simons, Twelfth district deputy administrator, of Columbus, O., declared on his visit here today. The district embraces Indiana and Ohio.

Simons denied his visit to the city had any connection with recent federal raids in which malt and home brew equipment have been seized in other cities.

"We made raids on places dealing in these commodities as early as 1920 in Indianapolis," he declared. "I do not believe personally, that recent rulings have changed the situation to any great extent."

"No drastic movements against dealers has been outlined to me," Simons declared his visit to Indianapolis was the regular semi-annual inspection trip.

Indianapolis manufacturers, distributors and retailers of malt and bottling paraphernalia have inaugurated no restrictions on the sale of these products, although they are considering organization of a protective association, it was learned.

Almost a year ago one large grocery chain removed malt from its shelves with the explanation it feared it might be used in the manufacture of home brew.

Other chains and independent grocers, however, have continued sale of the product unrestricted.
