

SOVIET VIEWS
TRACTORS STEP FORWARD GOAL

Machinery Will Speed Up
5-Year Plan Success,
Says Stalin.

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
Scripps-Howard Foreign Editor
WASHINGTON, June 23.—Soviet Russia's first tractor "bomshell" which Stalin declares will destroy the last remnants of the bourgeois world, has been completed, according to dispatches from Moscow.

This event, to future historians, may have much the same significance, internally speaking, as the pistol shots at Sarajevo sixteen years ago which became the curtain raiser to the World War.

The Russians now are nearing the crucial point of their famous "five-year plan." The plan is designed to transform the entire nation, farm as well as factory, into a single colossal machine for the mass production of everything humanity needs, from needles and thread to butter and eggs, like Henry Ford turns out automobiles.

Wright or Wrong Soon

Soviet leaders, therefore, may soon be proved right or wrong in their prediction that the great powers intend to try to crush Russia in a war before she finishes her transformation and becomes impregnable.

Under American guidance, A new tractor plant just has gone into production at Stalingrad. It is designed to produce 50,000 machines a year, each one a "bomshell," wired Stalin, head of the Union of Soviets, exploding the remnants of the old bourgeois world and blazing a trail for a new socialist order in the villages.

Immediately work is to begin on a second plant, in the Urals, to have a capacity of 75,000 tractors a year. The significance of these engines hardly can fail to be tremendous in Russia and possibly throughout the entire world.

One Great Factory

According to the "five-year plan," the farms are to be collectivized and operated as one great food and raw materials "factory." With industry similarly organized, and with the country's 140,000,000 people working as the employees of a single titanic concern, the Russians believe nothing can stop them—not even trade barriers like Uncle Sam's skyscraper tariff.

Given a thoroughly communized state wherein high wages play no part whatever; where an unlimited number of workers pride themselves upon labor for the community while living the simple life; where food and raw materials are to be had at minimum cost; where transportation charges are negligible, and where mass production, American style, prevails in conjunction with a world-wide system of distribution which eliminates all middlemen, the Russians believe they can undersell every other country in the world. And they can, economists admit, if their program succeeds. There is no earthly reason why Russia could not only produce enormous quantities of everything her own people need with ample left over to flood the foreign markets at giveaway prices. All that is required is for the five-year plan to succeed and for the Russians to learn economically to operate the machine thus created.

Oh, for the Life of a Fireman!

HOT? Well pity the poor firemen and policemen.
Take today, when the mercury stabbed in the nineties, firemen were learning how to "eat smoke" with the aid of gas masks at No. 30 fire station.
The top left photo shows Battalion Chief John J. Bryan releasing Captain A. T. Rosemeyer from the department's smokehouse after five minutes of hot fumes from old rubber hose, ammonia, tar paper, and what-have-you.

DOG TRACK MAY BE OPENED AS SPORTS RESORT

Defunct Kennel Club to Be Used as Pastime Site, Plans Show.

Reopening of the dog track on the Allisonville road as a dancing and sports resort and not as a dog track is planned, it was learned today with submission of a proposed lease to Judge William C. McMaster, superior court four.

The lease is being sought by Frank Young, proprietor of the defunct Acorn Lumber Company, forced into bankruptcy because of the loss sustained through the construction of the track for the short-lived Indiana Kennels Club, Ltd.

The track was declared bankrupt after the court ruled that it could not be operated for the purpose of gambling.

Claims against the kennel club which was promoted by Lanus & Baxter of Columbus, O., totaled more than $28,000 and included a $17,000 claim for lumber and construction by Young.

The track operated for two days. Several employees were arrested. A suit was brought to enjoin the sheriff and police from interfering with the operation of the track, but Judge James M. Leathers, superior court one, refused an injunction.

Young plans to utilize the space below the grandstand as a dance hall to construct a Tom Thumb golf course in the center of the track, and to operate a gun club and riding stables.

The lease also would permit Young to conduct the place for other sports and amusement purposes.

Learning to Swim—No. 1
Bobbing Like a Cork Is Important in Swimming

THE photo shows Miss Alma Tiefert, director of girls' and women's swimming for the city recreation department, demonstrating Lesson 1 of the six-day swimming course, which started at all city pools today.

She is showing the proper position to take for buoyancy in the water, called "bobbing like a cork." Getting pupils accustomed to the water and to teach them how the body is buoyed up by the water is the object of the first lesson.

Steps in the first lesson are:
A. "Washing face." Take deep breath, put face under water. Face should be down, not looking forward.
B. Blow bubbles under water.

Desperate criminals will have no luck escaping the city jail when the new tool-proof cells are installed on the third floor of police station, according to Louis Brandt, works board member.

The fourteen cells to be constructed on the third floor will be of the latest design, equipped with wash basin, drinking fountain and double-decker beds. The new section will be fireproof throughout and constructed of tool-proof metal, making it possible for police to hold the most desperate of criminals, Brandt said.

Segregation of various type criminals also will be possible. Brown & Mich, Inc., was awarded the contract on low bid of $16,135.

BAD BOOZE FOUND IN CITY, SAYS DRY CHIEF

Poison Liquor Warning Issued by J. W. Wilkey.

"Beware of poison liquor." This warning was issued today by J. W. Wilkey, deputy federal prohibition administrator, who said several instances of bad booze being consumed in Indiana have been brought to his attention.

Wilkey said he is conducting an investigation of the situation and declared most of the liquor, which is said to have injurious results, is being shipped into Indiana from the east.

Warrant for the arrest of Harry Harper, farmer of Cayuga, Ind., was issued today by Wilkey. He said a raiding squad found a 300-gallon still and 8,000 gallons of mash on Harper's farm Sunday.

The Times last week disclosed "salesmen" for the "Liberal League" retain 6 of every 10 cents collected.

Prince of Wales Is 36

Here are some interesting couplets of Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David—officially known in England as the prince of Wales—who is celebrating his thirty-sixth birthday today, still unmarried. Perhaps the future king's devotion to sports explains it, for he is an ardent and versatile sportsman.

BIDS RECEIVED ON 13 MILES OF COUNTY PAVING

Commissioners Inaugurate
$500,000 Expansion and Improvement Program.

Opening Marion county's $500,000 road improvement, and expansion program, county commissioners today received bids of fourteen contracting firms for paving a total of thirteen miles on two main traveled highways.

Bids were on the paving of Shelbyville road from Thompson road to the county line, a distance of seven miles, and on the improving of West Tenth street from the city limits west to the county line, a distance of 5.8 miles.

Ten Miles in Length

Bids will be received by the board on paving of West Seventy-first street and Arlington avenue, on Wednesday and Friday, respectively. These roads total over ten miles in length.

J. R. Hlatt Company was low bidder on the Shelbyville road project at $153,000, with Bishop & Weir, Detroit contracting firm, high bidder at $176,338.

Low bidder on the West Tenth street road was the Halstead Sons Company at a figure of $126,371. The American Construction Company was high at $182,000.

Bids will be certified to the state tax board by County Auditor Harry Dunn, for the board's approval of issuance of county bonds.

Board Warns Again

The state tax board today repeated its warning to Marion county officials that they must accept the low bid for road paving or their bond issues will not be approved.

Today Phil Zoercher of the state tax board wrote a letter to Dunn, pointing out that thus far the county commissioners have not indicated they will let the contract to the lowest bidder for paving West Tenth street, on which bids were received today.

Low bidder is the same firm paving the Ewbank road and should be given the contract, since the county already has passed on its eligibility, the Zoercher letter states.

A $231,000 bond issue was asked originally for this five-eighths-mile paving project.
