Novice Angler Captures 5-Pound, 2-Ounce Bass

Mrs. H. W. Armstrong and her big fish.

City Woman Hauls in Prize Catch: Practiced Casting on Back Porch.

Trained fishermen make their casts cautiously and wait patiently for a "break."

Mrs. H. W. Armstrong, 1921 North Le Sale street, was too nervous to take such precaution when she made her first catch, but she got a "big break" just the same.

That she held the pole a bit gingerly and threw her line with the excitement of a beginner didn't seem to make any difference to Mr. Bass so he started to play with the creek chug minnow and lost.

This is the way Mrs. Armstrong went fishing at Bethany park, near Brooklyn, Ind., with her husband, seeking his advice, but came home with a bass weighing five pounds and two ounces and telling her spouse "how it is done."

The old adage that one should learn to swim before going near the water might be applied to her fishing. For she practiced casting on the back porch at home before she attempted the real thing.

"It's a great thrill to play with a bass as large as this on the first trip," said Mrs. Armstrong.

Her's is one of the prize catches of the year. It measured 22 1/2 inches in length.

VETERANS WILL GIVE WAR PLAY

Stirring Spectacle Slated for July 19.

The dark times when Paris lived in breathless terror and hid in Seine sewers to escape death from air bombs, and when the cause of the allies seemed most in peril form the oasis of the "Siege of 1918," which will be given at the state fairground July 19.

The "siege" to be held under auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, is war in reality and will require the entire infield of the fairground race track for portrayal.

Trenches will be dug and barbed wire strewn to emulate "No Man's Land" of the World war.

Eighteen-pound bombs, Very lights and the "rat-tat-tat" of machine guns will be heard by those attending the "Siege."

Tickets for the "Siege" are being sold by forty Indianapolis women at 50 cents apiece, entitling the holder to cast votes for the most popular woman of the city in the "Miss Victory" contest.

July 23 at a ball on the Indiana roof garden. A Marmon-Roosevelt sedan, donated by the Indianapolis sales branch of the Marmon Motor Car Company, Eleventh and Meridian streets, will be given the victor.

In addition to the "Miss Victory" contest, the veterans' body and The Times plan a contest for men of the city. Rules to be announced later this week.

AKRON PAPER'S MODEL PLANT IS DEDICATED

Tribute Paid E. W. Scripps, Founder, in Brief, Impressive Exercises.

By United Press
AKRON, O., June 23.—Akron today paid tribute to the memory of Edward Willis Scripps, founder of the Scripps-Howard organization and showered praise upon one of his pioneer newspapers, Akron Times-Press.

Scores of newspaper publishers, Scripps-Howard editors and executives and the leaders of Akron business and industrial life gathered for the dedication of the new $1,500,000 home of the Times-Press. Climaxing the dedicatory exercises, a baby blimp sailed over the building and showered it with flowers.

Brief but impressive ceremonies were observed in the lobby of the building where sits the life-sized bronze bust of the late E. W. Scripps, inscribed with the legend: "He gave to America independence in journalism."

New Presses Are Started

Robert A. Guinther, president of the Akron Chamber of Commerce, presided at the dedication and paid tribute to the organization which he built.

A tour of inspection of the building terminated in the pressroom, where John Botzum, a member of the Akron Scripps-Howard organization since its birth, pushed the button starting the new super-speed presses.

The building, described by experts as the model newspaper plant of the middle west, is three stories high, surrounded by a tall tower. It is finished in light gray limestone, making it one of the most beautiful buildings in Akron. The mechanical departments are daylight shops.

Many Officials Attend
The Times-Press formerly the Akron edition of the Cleveland Press, made its initial appearance in 1893. It became the Akron Press in 1898. In 1924 the Akron Evening Times was bought and merged with the Press.

L. E. Judd, editor, has been in charge of the paper since 1920.

Among the Scripps-Howard officials attending the dedication are George B. Parker, W. G. Chandler, R. A. Huber, H. E. Neave, J. W. Dampier, Thomas J. Dowling, Lowell L. Leake, Frank W. Rostock, Louis B. Seltzer, Ned Doyle, M. E. Tracy (columnist), Harry F. Busey, Chester MacTammany, John H. Sorrells, Frank G. Morrison, Harold D. Jacobs, Frank T. Carroll, H. C. Place, James F. Pollock, Felix F. Bruner, J. T. Watters, Fred S. Ferguson, Herbert Walker and John Smart.

INDIANS DETERMINED TO FIGHT POWER PERMIT

Fiatheads Intend to Prevent Government From Developing Site.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Flathead Indians are determined to prevent the Rocky Mountain Power Company from carrying out its permit from the government to develop the so-called Flathead power site in Montana, Caville Dupuis, president of the tribal council, notified Chairman Fraser of the senate Indian affairs committee in a telegram today.

Dupuis said in his telegram: "Indians watching Flathead power site. Will prevent trespassing of Rocky Mountain Power Company or any one else. Bitterly oppose terms of lease. We object white settlers equity to power sites while our land is left for confiscation."

The permit was issued by the federal power commission several weeks ago over the protest of the Indians.

hand of divinity, the leader chose his apostles.

Bishop James Cannon Jr. is one. He is a member of the executive committee, which controls all state and national activities of the organization. He is chairman of the legislative committee, which directs the powerful lobby in Washington. He holds a dozen other jobs in the league and inter-allied or subsidized organizations.

It has been suggested cruelly that the good bishop, in spite of the multiplicity of his divine duties, found time to speculate on marginal stock in Wall Street, but undoubtedly that accusation must be a diabolical invention of Satan.

THEN he chose Sebastian S. Kresge, king of the fives and tens, as the chief apostle. I want a little further on, to tell Dr. Russell's own story of how he and Apostle Kresge simply scared the wits out of congress and forced it to submit the eighteenth amendment.

Among the other apostles, may be noted: James A. White of Ohio, who invented the pocket-emptying slogan: "No money is tainted if the Anti-Saloon League can get its hands on it."

William H. Anderson of New York, who had a brush with the courts over his system of accounting, and had to spend a vacation in Sing

Sing prison in company with some of the bootleggers the league's law had created.

The world renowned "Pussyfoot" Johnson, who, in his confessions, bared the fact that the worst he had to do to put over prohibition was to "lie, bribe and drink." No, no, indignantly declared Apostle Pussyfoot, "I never had to kill anybody."

Dr. Francis Scott McBride, author of the super-slogan: "The Anti-Saloon League was born of God."

The Great Wheeler, who has passed on to his reward. His biographer, in the opening chapter, describes the power he exercised over two Presidents and six congresses, and in the closing chapter, how he wrote encomiums of his own greatness and power, and begged friendly newspaper men and others to sponsor them for publication.

Dr. Homer W. Tope, superintendent of the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League, and member of the executive committee of the National league. Dr. Tope invented the all-expressive phrase, "pry open the churches," as his correspondence reveals, by the payment of money to the churches to get into them to use them as collecting agencies for the league.

Former Senator Reed will disclose some of the Anti-Saloon League's methods of raising money in his article Tuesday.

LINGLE SLAYING TRAIL POINTS TO MORAN GANG

Hunted Suspect Branded 'Potential Murderer' by Judge.

By United Press

CHICAGO, June 23.—Combined agencies of law enforcement hunted a suspect today in the assassination of Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, on trails that led toward the powerful liquor gang of George (Bugs) Moran and Joe Aiello, two of the "Big Four" in Chicago racketeering.

The suspect hunted was James "Red" Forsythe, henchman of the northside gang leaders and branded a "potential murderer" by a circuit judge.

Forsythe's name, as the central figure of the investigation, was given out by the "clearing house" of agencies delving into the murder.

While convinced that Forsythe was the actual murderer of the reporter, the authorities seemed hesitant about advancing a motive. Reports that Lingle had refused to ask favors from a former police administration for the Moran gang were discounted by the authorities as a motive.

The trail that led to Forsythe digressed by the way of Frank Foster, tight-lipped gangster who deserted the Morans to throw his fortunes with the gangsters headed by Al (Scarface) Capone.

The snub-nosed pistol with which Lingle was shot was traced to Foster.

Police surmised that perhaps Foster left the gun with the Morans when he deserted. The murderer used it and threw it down in the subway to cast suspicion toward the Capone mob.

Two others, Simon Gorman and Frank Noonan, who were arrested last year with Forsythe, also were sought.
