

FORECAST DRY AUGUST TO INCREASE FARMER'S WOES

JULY RAINS IN MIDWEST FAR UNDER NORMAL

Butter and Cream Records Show Great Drop in Dairy Products.

FIVE STATES WILTING

Unusual Locations of High and Low Pressure Areas Blamed.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Weather predictions of "fair and warmer" brought despair today to farmers of five midwestern states where crops are wilting under one of the most protracted dry spells in the memory of the oldest residents.

Pastures, as well as corn and other late crops, are reported suffering from the drought in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Fears Worse Drought in August

C. A. Donnell, federal weather forecaster for the Chicago district, said rainfall in the five states during July was only 35 per cent of normal. Many localities, he said, have had no rain since early last month.

Drought conditions may be aggravated during August, Donnell said, by record hot weather which would draw even more moisture from the parched ground. He predicted less than normal rainfall for the next month.

"Precipitation for the rest of the nation was about normal during July," Donnell said, "but in the arid section of the midwest the rainfall in several localities was less than half of normal."

For the entire year the decrease has been about 27 per cent and for July the precipitation was even less.

Records of the weather bureau here show that the driest place in the midwest is Estherville, Ia., where no rain has fallen since July 8. Sioux City, Ia., Urbana, Ill., and Terre Haute, Ind., have had no rain for three weeks.

Unusual Conditions

Unusual locations of low and high pressure areas are responsible for the drought in this section," Donnell said. "Millions of tons of water have been evaporated from the upper Great Lakes this summer, but the resultant rain has fallen in other sections."

"A consistent high pressure area in the southwest which defies explanation, is one reason for the continued drought."

Feed Wheat to Stock

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 2.—Low wheat prices which confront northwest farmers may be the means by which they escape from the problem of the present surplus, market reports indicated today.

Reports from 1,000 northwest farm centers showed that for the first time wheat, instead of corn and barley, is being fed to stock. "The reason for this, it was said, is that wheat now is cheaper than the other grains."

In the Minneapolis wheat pit this week, prices crashed to levels, which not even the oldest traders had ever seen. Only during Civil war days, was wheat believed to have sold as low as it did during a break last Thursday. Prices recovered somewhat later.

Little corn and much wheat is grown in western Dakotas and Montana and these are the sections where the surplus wheat is expected to be fed to animals on a large scale.

Continued drought over the entire northwest also has been a factor in forcing farmers to use wheat as feed. With the unbroken heat wave the crop has shriveled and the quality has not been equal to that of other years.

URGE RETENTION OF EXTRA RAIL FARES

Pennsylvania Seeks to Avert Loss of Limited Train Revenues.

Brief urging the retention of extra fares on limited trains operating between Indianapolis, New York, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Cleveland and between New York and Chicago has been filed with the interstate commerce commission today.

Arguments against the extra fares have been heard recently by the commissioners.

The brief points out that between New York and Chicago, the extra fare has been charged for the last fifty years and between Indianapolis and the other points mentioned, for the last twenty years. In 1920, the interstate commerce commission granted a 20 per cent increase in these charges.

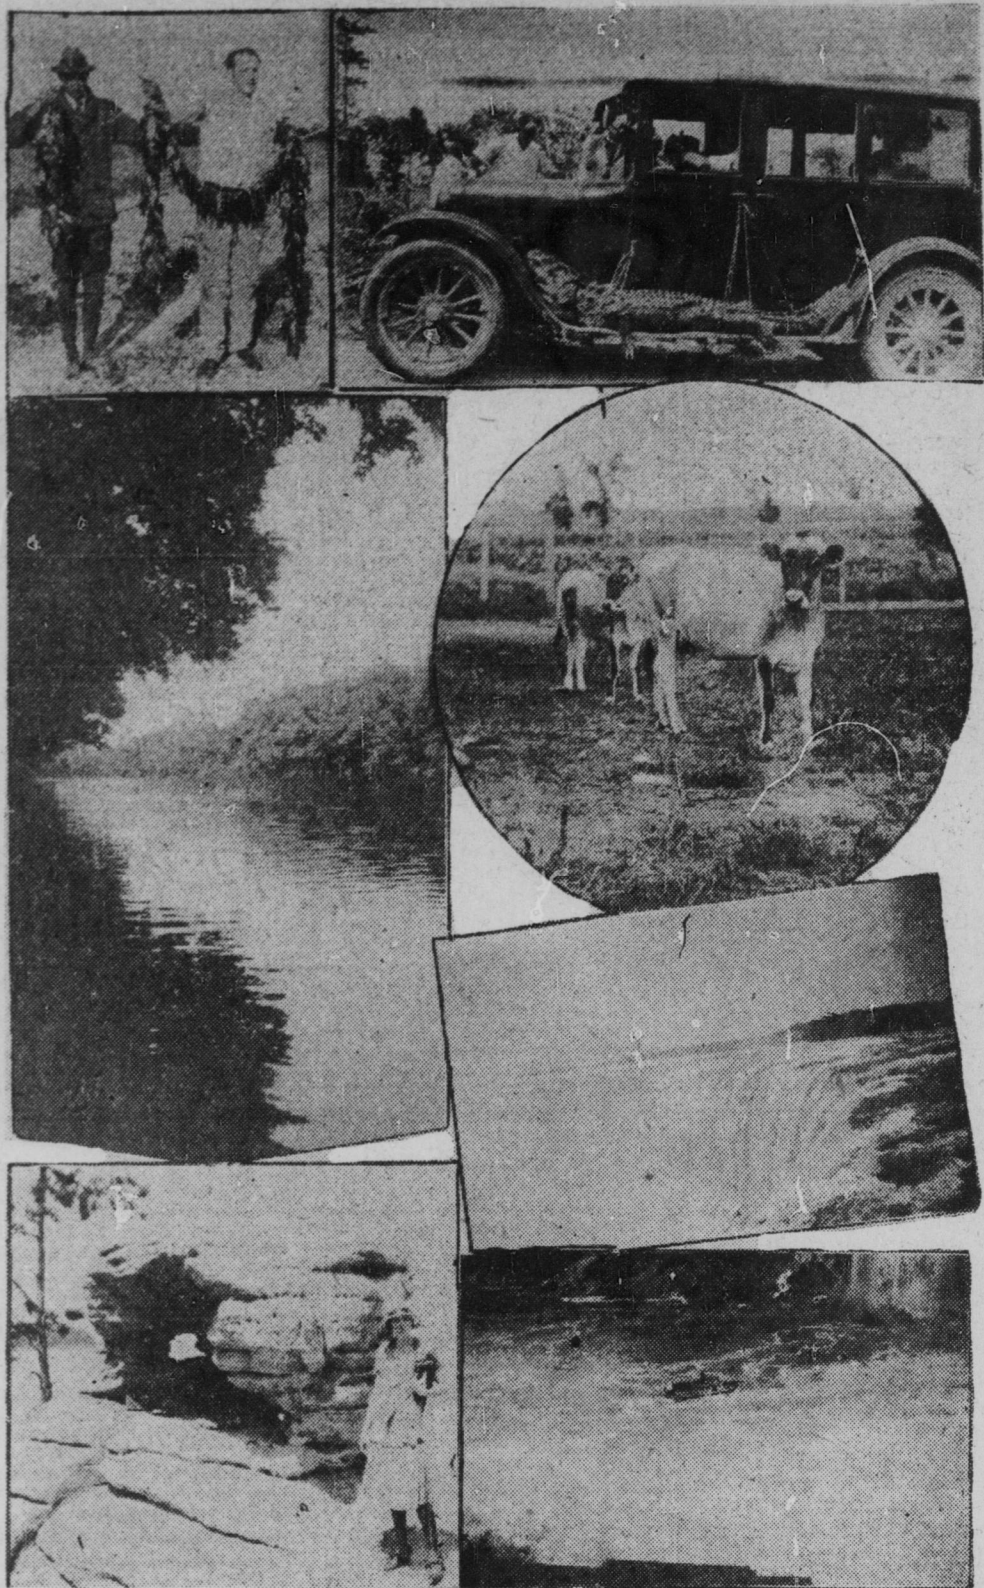

"The revenue received by the eastern trunk lines from extra fares amounts to upward of $6,000,000 yearly, which the railroads can ill afford to lose," the brief contends.

From the Florida tropics to rolling Niagara and northwest to the dells of Wisconsin, sweep the scenes depicted in vacation contest snapshots reproduced today.

The two top photos, submitted by George A. Johnson, R. R. 4, Box 427, were taken on a vacation trip to Miami. The one at the left depicts Johnson and Clarence E. Miller with a string of more than two hundred fish caught, Johnson said, within three hours. On the same trip he said, two alligators were caught, one nine feet long, pictured on the left running board of his auto, and the other, eight feet, on the far side of the car.

Center, left, is a snapshot of beauty taken by Russell Collier, of 2320 East Sixteenth street, on the east fork of White river, twenty miles southwest of Bedford, Ind. Right center, a rural scene in Michigan, submitted by Mrs. John A. McAllister, 3709 East Sixteenth street. Below, at left, Mrs. C. W. Paine, 2009 North Talbot street, pictured at the side of a hollow rock in Wisconsin's dells.

Lower right, touring Niagara and a "birdseye" view of the Maid of the Mist venturing through the swirling waters at the foot of the falls. These photos were submitted by Mrs. Bernice Meehan, 361 Congress avenue.

Each week, to the reader who submits the best vacation snapshot among those published, The Times is awarding a $5 prize. Send your vacation pictures to the Vacation Contest Editor, marking on the back the scenes or persons pictured. Photos will not be returned.

ANARCHY IN CHINA

Southern Part Ravaged by Bandit Hordes.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Official dispatches from China indicated today virtual anarchy reigns in the southern half of the republic. This condition, it was learned reliably, has caused apprehension on the part of officials, who fear the Nationalist regime will be unable to restore order.

Officials who surveyed the district from the South China sea to the Yangtze river at Wuchang found that with the exception of some interior towns in the control of war lords there was little responsible government in the area.

State department officials received with grave concern reports that so-called "Communists" or bandits, after sacking Changsha, are moving onward toward Hankow. Americans in the bandit-infested district have been warned several times to evacuate.

LIFT EMBARGO; RUSSIAN TRADE WAR AVERTED

Lowman Issues Orders to Permit Entry of Cargoes of Pulpwood.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The threatened trade war between the United States and Soviet Russia had been averted today by the action of the treasury department in lifting the embargo placed on Russian pulpwood last week by Assistant Treasury Secretary Lowman.

Lowman Friday night issued orders to collector of customs to permit entry of seventy-nine shiploads of the product.

Several of the ships are in New York awaiting entry, about a dozen more are en route to this country from Archangel, while the rest of the seventy-nine ships have been chartered to transport the product here during August and September.
