

BUTLER ZONING MOVE DROPPED BY COUNCILMEN

49th and Rookwood Project
Withdrawn: Foes Gather for Battle.

Sidestepping and passing the buck to the city zoning board, city councilmen Monday night withdrew an ordinance providing that an area at Forty-ninth street and Rookwood avenue, across from the Butler university field house, be zoned for business.

As the council session opened, persons living in the neighborhood took seats in the chamber, while friends and leaders of the anti-zoning movement, including officials of Butler university, peered through the door into the chamber.

Welch Moves Withdrawal

After a few minutes of routine, Leo Welch, who introduced the resolution, arose and, addressing brother councilmen, moved Ordinance 68, providing for the zoning, be withdrawn. Fred Gardner, sitting on his right, gave the second to the motion, and all was over.

In his motion Welch recommended the zoning board "refuse" the situation in the neighborhood.

The situation is that people living in the district are far removed from any place to buy household supplies.

At Least Three Against

It was understood there were at least three votes forthcoming against the proposal which would have held it over for second reading. Rumors that floated through the council chamber immediately after the action, left no doubt that "pressure" had been brought by business men and Butler university heads to "hold the line."

Some officials of the university are reported to have "seen" the heads of various city departments and painted scenes of orgies and lawlessness at the university, if the business block were erected.

DRUSILLA CARR, FIGURE IN LONG LAND WAR, DEAD

Aged Woman Who Battled for "Squatter's Rights" Passes at Gary.

By United Press

GARY, Ind., Sept. 16.—The body of Mrs. Drusilla Carr lay in state today and hundreds of Lake and Porter county residents, who had been her friends during the seventy-four turbulent years of her life, viewed it for the last time.

Mrs. Carr, who played one of the most picturesque roles in the history of the Calumet district, died at her home Monday after a short illness. She sensed the approaching end and had summoned her lawyers from La Porte and Valparaiso to hear an "important message," but her lips were sealed before they arrived.

A 25-year court fight to quiet title to 120 acres of valuable Lake Michigan shoreline, which the Carrs settled in 1876 shortly after they were married, was waged by the aged woman. Robert Carr, the husband, died in the late 90s and it was not until 1908 that the suit was started over the title.

Always Militant Figure

Since that time there has been an almost continuous battle in the courts of Lake and Porter counties and the Indiana supreme court.

Through it all Mrs. Carr was a militant figure, proclaiming her "squatter's rights" and "squatter's sovereignty" through one battle after another. In May, 1929, the supreme court held that Mrs. Carr was the rightful owner of the property "by reason of more than twenty years of peaceful and undisputed possession."

New Battles Started

But new battles were started over division of the property and Mrs. Carr had from time to time, parceled out bits of it to her lawyers for their fees. Out of what at first had been 120 acres she had left a scant forty acres, and in addition the rising of Lake Michigan had robbed the land of considerable water frontage.

Some of the attorneys had died and others had transferred their alleged titles to others. Hearings on the claims were held and a short time ago it was indicated that the suits would be decided in favor of Mrs. Carr.

Special Judge Albert W. Chipman, Plymouth, announced today he would return a final decision in the case Sept. 27.

VIOLINS DO A TRICK WITH HOT MELODIES

Wrestling Bear and Stevens Brothers Stage a Comedy
Riot at the Lyric All This Week.

BY WALTER D. HICKMAN

SIX violins played by six young ladies and an accordion played by a man flash up some hot and comfortable melody on the vaudeville part of the bill at the Lyric this week.

Am speaking of Partl and Musical Beauties who edge pretty close to the classics in music and then become hot and interesting in the modern steppin' stuff.

Here is an act that is backed up with some pretty decent and clever showmanship. The act is well established before the producer brings the girls out in tights and similar idea.

This really isn't necessary, and I think that the act loses class by so doing. Here is an act that I think lots of, with the exception of the last costumes worn by the girls. The toe work is excellent of its class and the finale is a melody knockout.

The man knows the job of playing with that fellow. It is rough playing, but fun. Well put over. It stops the show.

Van Cello is a fine juggler, and he is not from Japan. He has marvelous feet and his footwork with barrels is wonderful.

If the mammy part of Mammy and her Picks could sing half as well as her boys can dance, this would be an act. These colored lads can dance.

The movie feature of the bill is H. B. Warner and Irene Rich in "On Your Back."

Now at the Lyric.

OPIUM HARVEST IS ON IN CHINA

Protection From Bandits Is Chief Problem.

By United Press

PEIPING, Sept. 16.—With the autumn harvest of opium in full swing in many provinces of China, transportation of the drug has become a major factor in the conduct of civil wars in some parts of the country.

Military leaders have taken over the opium traffic almost entirely in several provinces and their problem is to get it to the principal markets safely.

Bandits always are eager to seize shipments of opium as it is readily transported and marketed.

Missionaries in Shensi, which suffered a severe famine last winter, estimate that at least 40 per cent of the land in some parts of the province was planted in the opium poppy, in spite of the lack of food. Of all the land in the province at least 15 per cent is estimated to have been planted in opium.

Farmers are compelled by excessive taxes imposed in advance to plant the poppy or actually lose money on their labors.
