

BRAZIL REVOLT CHIEF STRIKING IN PERSONALITY

Getulio Vargas Potentially Most Powerful Figure in Country.

By United Press
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 8.—Getulio Vargas, the man on whom the Brazilian revolutionists have pinned their hopes for a new political order in the vast South American republic, is one of the most striking and potentially powerful figures in modern Brazil.

Leader of the liberal alliance and bitter enemy of President Washington Luis, Vargas has relinquished the governorship of the state of Rio Grande do Sul to lead an army marching northward toward the capital, in hope of overthrowing the existing regime.

The revolutionary commander is a man of less than 50 years old, slight of stature and youthful in appearance. He was defeated in the last presidential election by Dr. Julio Prestes, administration candidate. The victory of Dr. Prestes, he claims, was won by fraud, and he hopes to prevent Orestes from being inaugurated.

Vargas' ideas have always been liberal. He never has been suspected of entertaining ideas of a revolution until recently when he charged that collusion between the administration and the wealthy coffee men of Sao Paulo prevented any one outside the inner circle from sharing in the nation's government.

Preparations for the revolt have been aided in recent months by increasing tension between the federal government and several states. Behind the struggle between Vargas and Prestes, however, are believed to be far-reaching economic causes.

The state of Sao Paulo, with its capital city of the same name, is the most prosperous region of the great republic of Brazil, which is larger than the United States. Other states were said to be jealous of the economic power and governmental influence of Sao Paulo, center of the coffee trade, as well as of the Rio de Janeiro district adjoining Sao Paulo.

The conservative party has centered its strength in Sao Paulo, while the Liberal Alliance has been strong in the southern regions, such as Rio Grande do Sul and in the vast region of Minas Geraes, largest state of Brazil.

Game Savior

Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, above, is leaving the senate at the expiration of his term, two years hence, to become president of More Game Birds in America, Inc., a newly organized game conservation body with an endowment of $10,000,000.

Hawes, always a devotee of outdoor life, will draw $50,000 a year in his new post.

HARDING SHRINE DELAY UPHELD BY OHIO PAPER

Humiliation of Begging for Speaker Is Too Great,
Editorial Says.

By United Press
MARION, O., Oct. 8.—The Harding Memorial Association's action in postponing plans for dedication of the magnificent memorial here to the late President Warren G. Harding was upheld today in an editorial of the Ohio State Journal.

This paper said that "to beg a speaker to make the memorial address would be to humiliate itself and the memory of President Harding a little too much."

It likewise held that it was not difficult for the disinterested observer to understand why men in high stations in the nation have balked at going to Marion to participate in a dedicatory ceremony.

The postponement action was accompanied by association charges that the Republican state committee wanted to use a dedicatory service as a "political meeting."

There have been intimations that President Hoover did not care to participate in the ceremony, but so far no positively clarifying word on this point has come either from the White House or from men who supposedly professed him an invitation to attend.

It generally was believed here today that the incident is closed since the principles are maintaining silence on the points at issue.

FAKE CAR TITLE AIDS FORGER

City Man, Thief's Victim; Is Exonerated.

Several months ago a thief stole the title card from the automobile of Eugene Boeldt, 24, of 108 East Thirtieth street; presented it at the statehouse and received a driver's license under Boeldt's name.

Using this driver's license card as identification the thief cashed approximately $200 of forged money orders.

Following the clue of identification A. C. Garrigus, postal inspector, arrested Boeldt.

Witnesses brought from Cincinnati and Dayton who came to the hearing here before John W. Kern, United States commissioner, Tuesday afternoon exonerated Boeldt, who testified was not the man who passed the money orders.

The fakes were written on money orders stolen from a local substation in May.

EXPECT POPE'S O. K. ON BORIS' MARRIAGE

Attitude of Vatican Will Be Announced Soon.

By United Press
VATICAN CITY, Oct. 8.—Attitude of the Vatican toward the forthcoming marriage of King Boris of Bulgaria and Princess Giovanna of Italy was believed to day to have been settled satisfactorily after considerable doubt had been raised as to the approval of Pope Pius.

Dispensation of the pope for the marriage of the princess with the Bulgarian ruler who, to be king, must be a member of the eastern orthodox church, has not yet been granted, but negotiations are said to be proceeding normally and all indications pointed to a satisfactory conclusion.

The engagement was a surprise last week in view of the fact that the Vatican was reported opposed on religious grounds.
