

PRESBYTERIANS TO ASK FUNDS FOR HANOVER

Synod Votes for $1,500,- 000 Development Program at College.

Adoption of a resolution calling for a $1,500,000 development program for Hanover college to start in 1931 was the closing event at the Indiana Presbyterians' synod's annual meeting today in the Irvington Presbyterian church.

The proposal calls for a campaign throughout Presbyterian churches of the state and sets forth a program for Hanover extending over a period of years.

An administration building, dormitory and athletic plant will be constructed with $400,000 of the amount. Other funds will be placed in endowment.

Dr. A. G. Parker, Hanover president, urged the necessity for developments of schools with a religious educational program in his annual address before the synod Wednesday night.

Report of the committee on national missions by the Rev. Buford W. Taylor, Terre Haute, and an address by the Rev. George A. Prant, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Indianapolis, concluded the meeting today.

A committee of the synod and one from the Indianapolis Presbyterians were appointed to settle difficulties between the Rev. L. G. Leary, Bloomington pastor, and the student pastor of that church.

The Rev. Leary resigned after a clash over authority with the student pastor, who has charge of Presbyterian students at Indiana university.

Next meeting of the synod will be held in the Hopewell church near Franklin on occasion of the one hundredth anniversary of the church.

Famous Medicine Wins Another Remarkable Victory and Makes Loyal Friend.

Medicines, like men, are known for the things they actually do, not for the claims and promises that are made for them.

It is the accomplished victories of Konjola, the new medicine of 32 ingredients, which have made it the most talked of compound in America. Victories like that related by Mrs. Myrtle Sheets, 1315 Flatt street, Indianapolis, who related the following experience in a recent talk with the Konjola Man at the Hook Dependable Drug Store, Illinois and Washington streets, this city. Said Mrs. Sheets:

"I enjoyed good health all my life up to a year ago when I began to suffer from indigestion. Food soured in my stomach and I belched terribly. I lost my appetite and grew weak and nervous. My kidneys became affected and my joints were swollen and numb. My liver was sluggish and I had headaches and attacks of dizziness. I finally found it difficult to do my sewing or housework."

"I have taken Konjola regularly and the results have been amazing. I am glad to give this medicine my eager praise. I have an excellent appetite and can eat what I wish without discomfort. My kidneys have cleared up and are in good condition. My liver functions normally and the pain and swelling have left my joints and limbs. I have gained in weight and strength and am in better health than I have been in years."

It is the same glad story whenever Konjola is given a real chance. Konjola is free from alcohol or nerve-deadening drugs.

The Konjola Man is at the Hook Dependable Drug Store, Illinois and Washington streets, Indianapolis, where he is meeting the public daily.

COLLINS DENIES FREEDOM MOVE FOR SCHROEDER

Not Guilty Plea of Torch Murder Suspect After Ruling on Motion.

First skirmish in its case to send Harold Herbert Schroeder to the electric chair for alleged murder of an unidentified man found in his auto on High School road May 31, was won by the state today as Criminal Judge James A. Collins denied a motion to quash indictment against the defendant.

Following Collins' ruling, Schroeder was arraigned on three charges of first-degree murder, all of which he pleaded not guilty. His demands for immediate trial probably will bring the case into court this month, Judge Collins indicated.

Ira Holmes, defense attorney, based his motion to quash on allegations that burning of a body is no crime, that the three murder indictments are contradictory, and that the state's case merely is inference.

The indictment, on which the state will seek the death penalty, accused Schroeder of using one of three methods to slay an unidentified man, whose charred body was found in Schroeder's smouldering sedan at the outskirts of the city, June 1.

Since being apprehended near his Mobile home, June 19, after a nation-wide search, the central figure has been held without bond at the county jail.

Pittsburgh Firm Sets Low Pay Record in South
at Knoxville.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 9.—It has been written about low wages paid in the south by southern industrialists, but it took a northern firm to set a new low wage scale in Knoxville this week.

The firm is Booth and Flinn bridge builders of Pittsburgh, who have been awarded the contract to build a $1,000,000 bridge across the Tennessee river at Knoxville. The same firm built the Holland Tunnel under the Hudson river at New York and has done much of the subway building there.

When the contract was awarded, George Hockensmith, vice-president, announced that wages would be "at the scale prevailing in Knoxville."

The men were not told when they were hired, what they would be paid. After work had been going on about a week, announcement was made that common labor would be paid 20 cents an hour. Several of the men laid down their picks and shovels, asked to be paid off and then quit.

Knoxville contractors are paying from 25 to 35 cents an hour for the same kind of work. The scale established by the Pittsburgh firm is the lowest in Knoxville since 1913. Mayor James A. Trent and Squire John Myatt, member of the county commissioners finance committee, have sent letters to company officials protesting.

Mayor Trent said he deplored this apparent effort to take advantage of hungry workmen, and asked that a minimum wage of 30 cents an hour be established.

Myatt warned the company that it might have a hard time collecting from the county if it does not pay a "living wage."
