

ISLANDERS PAID IN CANDY FOR ECLIPSE STUDY

South Sea Worshipers of Sun Aid Famous Scientists' Work.

By United Press
ANAHU, Niuafu (Tin Can) Island, Oct. 21.—Brown-skinned Polynesians, who list the sun-god Ra among their deities, helped famous astronomers check the accuracy of the Einstein theory today during a total solar eclipse.

Long before the sun's light was to begin fading at 9:09 a. m. (2:39 p. m., central standard time) scientists and sun worshipers were standing by, ready to swing some fifty tons of scientific instruments into action and determine whether light is subject to the laws of gravity.

The Polynesians were paid in candy and tobacco for carrying the apparatus to the top of a 100-foot cliff.

Each of the astronomers who came to this wilderness of the south seas to study a phenomenon that lasted only 93 seconds was assigned to a special task, and each had his native assistants.

Use 65-foot Camera

The assignments were made by the United States naval observatory, which sponsored the expedition, and was assisted by scientists from Swarthmore, Ohio Wesleyan and the University of Virginia.

Among the observers was Professor S. A. Mitchell, director of the Lick-McCormick observatory of the University of Virginia. This will be the eighth total eclipse of the sun Mitchell has witnessed.

A sixty-five-foot camera was to be used by the University of Virginia party in taking pictures of the phenomena. It is an Einstein camera and is set on concrete pillars weighing 2,500 pounds.

Deliver Mail in Cans

A short distance away smoke was rising from funnels in a lava bed spread by a volcanic eruption four months ago.

The eruption in August, 1929, the expedition found only three white men—two traders and a priest—on the island.

Niuafu was selected because it happens to be the only land in the exact path of the totality. Half of the island is covered by a lava field.

The name "Tin Can Island" was applied to the place because of the necessity in delivering mail in sealed tin cans. Ships can not reach the shores because of heavy swells, and the mail tossed overboard in tins is picked up by native swimmers.

Lone(ly) Eagle

Lindy Not Good Enough to Fly With U. S. Pilots, Writer Says.

By Times Special
NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh may be the world's best flier in the opinion of elderly matrons, flappers and small boys, but he's just another good pilot, according to a recent United States military dictum.

Lucky Lindy, who successfully braved the perils of the north Atlantic, just doesn't compare with the cream of America's crack military fliers, it would appear.

The Long Eagle no longer is permitted to take a place in intricate military maneuvers, requiring skilled flying, for fear of his crashing into another ship, according to a review of the recent Chicago air races by Richard Carroll in Liberty.

"His past trials were as leader (front man) of the famous naval air," the article states, "but there, the hard work went to the other two men who had to keep out of his way and still keep formation."

KONJOLA GAVE LASTING HELP IN THIS CASE

Indianapolis Lady Credits New Medicine With Bringing Better Health Than She Has Had in Years.

Konjola has won many of its most outstanding victories in cases that have defied and resisted all other medicines and treatments tried.

MRS. ONA COLLIER

Its thirty-two ingredients, twenty-two of which are the juices of medicinal roots and herbs, make their attack at the source of the ailment, removing the causes. The experience of Mrs. Ona Collier, 1017 Newman street, this city, as recently related to the Konjola Man at the Hook Dependable Drug Store, Indianapolis, gives a clear idea of the power of this master medicine. Said Mrs. Collier:

"Indigestion was the chief cause of my troubles. I suffered terribly from gas pains around my heart, and smothering spells were common. I had attacks of dizziness and became very nervous. My kidneys were weak and I had severe back pains. My bowel action was irregular and I was forced to use cathartics daily.

"Soon after I began taking Konjola I felt better. My appetite improved and I did not suffer from gas pains. Pains around my heart stopped and I slept well at night. Night risings were no longer necessary, my color cleared up and I gained in strength. Twelve bottles of Konjola worked a miraculous change in me. I am free from headaches, dizziness and back pains and my bowels are regular for the first time in years."

There are many such cases in the records of Konjola. It is free from alcohol or harmful drugs of any sort.

The Konjola Man is at the Hook Dependable Drug Store, Indianapolis, where he is meeting the public daily.

BACKS MOVE TO HIKE RATES IN SOUTHERN AREA

Commissioner West Prepares Order Granting $46,000 in Increases.

Commissioner Jere West of the public service commission has prepared an order in the Southern Indiana Telephone and Telegraph case granting some $46,000 in rate increases for the company to levy on residents of the crouch-stricken southern Indiana area, it was learned today.

West will present the order to the other commissioners this afternoon, but hope for its passage appeared remote.

Commissioners Frank Singleton, Howell Ellis and Calvin McIntosh are reported to look with disfavor on the increases, which reported tremendous boosts in expenditures although warned by the commission not to make them.

West, in the first order, had criticized President L. C. Griffith of the company for elaborate personal expenditures which had been listed as "operating expense."

Evidence had disclosed that these expenditures included hotel bills at the Blackstone in Chicago amounting to $42.05 for a single day.

BRAZIL REBEL ARMY SET FOR MAJOR BATTLE

Ready to Begin Their Main Drive for Capture of Sao Paulo.

By United Press
RIO GRANDE DO SUL, Brazil, Oct. 21.—Brazilian rebels were ready today for their main drive on the city of Sao Paulo, reports received by revolutionary headquarters here indicated.

Colonel Joao Alberto, commanding the rebel advance column near the Parana-Sao Paulo frontier, issued a proclamation addressed to the people of the city of Sao Paulo assuring them that "the liberal army has no intention of bombarding open cities."

He said that rebel airplanes would fly over the city for military reconnaissance, but that the inhabitants had nothing to fear.

It was said here that residents of Sao Paulo would be given an opportunity to join the revolt, or evacuate the city, before it would be subjected to any rebel bombardment.

Advices received here said that half the states of Espirito Santo and Mato Grosso are in the hands of the rebels.

It was reported that forces organized to defend Cuyaba, capital of Mato Grosso, had revolted and that Major Rabello, a rebel, had assumed command of the troops as well as the presidency of the state.
