

PASTOR DENIED DRY CASE RULE BY HIGH COURT

Buffalo Clergyman Served
Wine to Friends on Courthouse Steps.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The supreme court Monday denied the Rev. A. Stanley Copeland, Buffalo (N. Y.) clergyman, review of his suit to contest the validity of the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment, brought against James W. Higgins, Buffalo police commissioner, to compel return of liquors seized at Copeland's home.

The petition was Mr. Copeland's second attempt to test the validity of the dry laws. A previous appeal several years ago was denied. The clergyman has been fighting the dry laws since his sentence to the Erie county jail for having offered wine to friends who wished to drink with him on the front steps of the Buffalo federal courthouse.

Acts as Own Attorney

His own attorney, the minister contends the statutes are a violation of his guarantees of personal and religious freedom and an invasion of state rights.

Other rulings were:

Decision to review the interstate commerce ruling that rates for oil transportation on Indiana railroads are not excessive. Suit was brought by Standard Oil of Indiana.

Denial of review to the Stevens Hotel Company of Chicago in its unsuccessful suit to restrain the Chicago Yacht Club from erecting a clubhouse between the hotel and the lake.

Denial of review to Edward Blanchard, unlicensed grease juice dealer, on conviction for selling wine in Texas.

Scraps' Appeal Denied

Denial to Josephine S. Scrapps, widow of James G. Scrapps, of a review of her action to share in profit increases in the publishing business of the late Edward W. Scrapps, during the time it was managed by her husband.

Refusal to pass on validity of the Minnesota state law authorizing foreclosures of mortgages for delinquent installment without exhausting the lien.

Refusal to review cases of middle westerners who bought extensive land tracts in Sacramento county, California, for fruit growing. Land was alleged nonfertile and misrepresented.

Grant of review in the conviction of

J. W. Alford, sentenced in Los Angeles to five years in prison for mail frauds.

Train Laws Are Up

Decision to pass on full-switching crew laws, on the statute books since 1907. Missouri-Pacific railroad contends improvement in train control devices since enactment make laws obsolete.

Denial of review of conviction of Thomas W. Fleming, former Cleveland councilman, on charge of accepting a bribe while in office for procurement of favors.

Refusal to rule on status of pre-revolutionary Russian corporations having credit accounts in American banks.

Consent to review validity of Tennessee law imposing tax on interstate bus lines passing through state.

Must Employ Citizens

Refusal to pass on Louisiana law compelling contractors on public works to employ only citizens of the state who are qualified voters.

Denial to Howe P. Cochran of review of his slander suit against Senator James P. Coughens (Rep. Mich.), based on attack made by Coughens on the senate floor, April 12, 1928. District of Columbia courts dismissed the suit because of constitutional immunity to members of congress.

Granting of hearing to dissenting members of the Modern Woodmen of America who objected to revision of the order's insurance rates, on claim the Illinois statute under which the change was made is unconstitutional.

Amusement Case Decided

Refusal to rule on question of whether mechanical reproduction of copyrighted music by music rolls or phonograph records may be played in places of public amusement. Ruling is considered of widespread importance in amusement world and arose from appeal taken from a Texas federal court decision which awarded Gene Buck and Irving Berlin $250 damages against a theater proprietor who played two rolls of copyrighted music.

Refusal to decide whether sale of one drink in a restaurant is sufficient ground for conviction on charges of maintaining a nuisance.

Brewery Given Review

Grant of review of New York circuit court decision refusing the V. Loewers (Cincinnati Brewing Company) allowances for absence of its properties in 1918 and 1919. The company sought tax allowance for losses incurred by dry law passage.

Grant of review to Aaron Prustian, former Washington attorney and tax appeals pleader, of his conviction and five-year term on charge of forging a $944 government refund tax check payable to an estate.

Decision to hear argument on appeal of the Louisville & Nashville railroad from its interstate commerce commission ruling forbidding free transportation of private or business cars of other carriers, even though occupied by one entitled to free transportation.

BLOW TO DRY IS PREDICTED IN CRIME REPORT

Modification Proposals by Wickersham Probers
Are Hinted.

BY PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Those in the highest authority here expect the Wickersham crime commission to make a prohibition report shortly which may not be entirely acceptable to some dry organizations.

The document will be drafted when the commission resumes its secret sessions here Nov. 5, the day after election. It is to be sent to President Hoover, probably about Nov. 15, and may be forwarded by him to congress in December.

Portions of the report already have been agreed upon. The commission has decided there will be no "pussy-footing or dodging" in its summary of its investigations and in its recommendations. The prohibition issue will be met frankly, it is said, and in a way which may not meet the approval of those who have been championing the dry act.

Subject Thrashed Out

Modification proposals may be entertained, but repeal suggestions will not be mentioned, according to authoritative sources. The commission has been working on the assumption its chief duty was to find out what is wrong, if anything, with the law as well as enforcement.

The matter of prohibition very thoroughly has been thrashed out among the commissioners, and has caused at least one member to offer his resignation—Federal Judge William S. Kenyon of Iowa, an outspoken dry.

His retirement offer now is reported to be in the hands of Chairman Wickersham.

Previously, two other commissioners are reported to have been dissatisfied—Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard law school and Kenneth MacIntosh, Washington state supreme court justice. However, the retirement of neither is indicated.

Report Is Held Secret

Kenyon is understood to have agreed to withhold action for the time being. The resignation has not yet reached Mr. Hoover's desk and the White House has declined to discuss it.

Mr. Hoover, however, is keeping in touch with developments in the commission. He is understood to

ACTION DELAYED BY COUNCILMEN ON RACE BETS

Likelihood of Passage Dims
as Proposed Statutes
Are Deferred.

Possibility of two proposed ordinances against gambling in Indianapolis being written on the city statute books appeared dim today, after action on them was deferred by city councilmen Monday night.

The proposed laws provide that possession of betting paraphernalia and transmission or receipt of race betting information by phone or telegraph would be violations of the law, each punishable with maximum penalties of $300 and six months in jail.

Councilman Maurice Tennant of the safety committee asked that action be deferred because "there is an angle relative to the telegraph and telephone companies on which they want to be heard, which is only fair."

Tennant said he did not believe there was any need for rushing action on the proposed ordinances, after a conference with safety board members.

"Who is behind this?" Fred Gardner asked. "Did the safety board really ask for it?"

City Attorney James E. Deery explained that, as far as he knew, the board was backing the move and he had been notified by the board to draw the proposals.

"These, if passed, would be superseded by state laws, anyway," George Henry declared. "If they are put on the books, they will serve as a loophole for crooks who can say they should have been prosecuted under the state law."
