RESIDENTS WIN
WAR FOR BAN
ON CREAMERYDairy Petition Is Denied as City Zoning Board
Runs to Cover.

ONLY ONE 'YES' VOTED

Propositions Are Advanced
but Protesters Refuse to Give Ground.

BY CHARLES E. CARILL

Retreating to cover under a barrage of fiery protest, the city zoning appeals board Tuesday afternoon denied the Benner Farms Dairy, Inc., the right to operate a creamery at 1011 North Gladstone avenue, a residential section.

The secret action of the city plan commission, membership of which is identical with the board, two weeks ago in permitting filing of a petition to rezone the site for the creamery disclosed in The Times, proved an empty gesture after the vote defeated the proposal, six to one.

Arguments between the board and the protesting residents and among board members lasted more than an hour to climax with the assurance that a creamery never will operate in the district.

Pleas Fall on Deaf Ears

Before and during the first stages of the session, it appeared the board would permit the creamery to operate under the clause that it remain a year on the site, provided a "bona fide effort" was made to find a new location in six months.

The board, more than a score of residents who carried the battle to the board, first listened to Mark Miller, attorney for the milk firm, plead for a "chance for these men to live." He said residents had been given "misstatements" of the situation.

When this plea failed and was followed by further protest from the taxpayers, George T. O'Connor, board president, offered the proposition that the temporary permit be granted provided the building be razed after the year.

This brought shouts of "No, No," from the audience.

Then Mrs. Lelia Taylor suggested the time of the permit be cut to seven or eight months. This fell on unhearing ears too, with the cry of "all or nothing" rising from the gathering.

Only One "Yes" Voted

The board went into a huddle and came out again offering the raising proposition. Still no advance was made and the board huddled again. After whispered conferences, O'Connor said the board had heard enough and was ready to vote and not "spend all afternoon listening to discussion."

The first vote was cast by John W. Atherton, executive secretary of Butler university, and was "yes." But it was the only "yes" of the afternoon and with six other "noes" O'Connor informed the dairy operators the petition had been denied.

For more than an hour after the meeting adjourned, groups talked in the city hall lobby, with officials of the dairy pleading with the residents "to find a place for us to run our creamery and deliver milk and cream to our 200 customers."

Pin-Hookers

New Conservation Club
Is Formed to Preserve
'Fishing Holes.'

If you've ever bent a pin-hook, tossed it in a shady creek and watched the cork bob up and down, then you're eligible to become a member of the city's newest organization, the Pin-Hook club.

The club filed incorporation papers today with the secretary of state, declaring its aim as the perpetuation of wild life, conservation of fish and "fishing holes," an encouragement of pin-hook baiting on the part of the nation's youth.

"We hope to make the organization national in scope," declared Dr. L. M. Manker, one of the incorporators.

"Anyone is eligible to join who is interested in fishing and our name just goes back to our boyhood days when we fished to be fishing as well as fishing for fish," he said.

HELD ON AUTO
THEFT CHARGENewlywed Also Wanted in Nonsupport Case.

Earl Six, alias Harry Huston, has been arrested for automobile theft and is being held in jail at Richmond, Ind. Lieutenant Charles Bridges, who made the arrest, reported at headquarters at the statehouse today.

Bridges outlined the hectic career of Six, since coming to Richmond six weeks ago. He married a Kentucky girl, giving the name Huston, which he told Bridges he adopted legally in Oklahoma some years ago. His parents live at Newcastle, but the new wife said he had told her they lived in Arizona, where they operated a large prune ranch.

Married before, Six is wanted for nonsupport of a minor child, according to Bridges. His automobile theft charge is based on two machines, allegedly stolen in Cincinnati, one of which was wrecked by a Richmond street car.

WATSON PARES
SPEAKING DATESCancels Three Addresses to Conserve Health.

Because of the serious condition of his health, Senator James E. Watson on orders of his physician has canceled three scheduled speeches, one at Elkhart Thursday, another at Gary Saturday and a third at Ft. Wayne Tuesday.

When Watson spoke at Terre Haute and Evansville last week he warned state headquarters that the exertion was becoming too much and that to conserve his strength he must curtail his speaking tour. Physicians have ordered him to remain quiet and not exert himself, because of his weakened heart.

A tour of Lake county was planned for the end of the week with the senior senator as the main attraction, but this will be foregone.

His curtailed itinerary calls for an address here Nov. 1. Pursuant to his long custom, Watson desires to deliver two speeches on Nov. 3, one at Newcastle in the afternoon and winding up the campaign that night at his home in Rushville. The last two dates may be canceled.

KIWANIS ACT TODAY

Real Estate Board Also to Take Up Proposition
at Its Meeting.

Momentum was added to the Indianapolis Lions' Club movement to set the city's business wheels whirling again, when other luncheon clubs today announced they would co-operate in a spending campaign to promote business.

At a "Prosperity day" luncheon in the Claypool, H. B. Moore, chairman of the Lions' Club business conference committee, reported that the plan to have each Lion spend $100 this week to stimulate sales is gaining recognition and support of other luncheon organizations.

Herman C. Wolff, Kiwanis Club president, said the matter would be presented to Kiwanians at their weekly luncheon in the Claypool today.

Citizens Join Movement

Citizens are joining in the movement by buying at least $100 worth of goods during the period ending Saturday and known as Business Confidence week.

The Indianapolis Real Estate Board will consider the proposition at its meeting Thursday, officials announced.

This buying project, being promoted on a national scale by Lions International, started in Muskegon, Mich., where luncheon clubs inaugurated a simple scheme by which clubmen promised to spend $100 each in one week and get five of their friends to do likewise.

Lions officials estimate their total national membership alone will put between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 circulation before the end of the week, enough money, they say, to tip the scales of business depression the other way.

Governors Ask Help

Governors of thirty-four states have issued proclamations urging citizens to observe "business confidence week" by spending all the money they can afford, and twenty-three railroad presidents assured Lions they would co-operate by asking employees to join the campaign.

Train coaches of the twenty-three lines are carrying placards with such slogans "Idle Dollars Make Idle Men" and "Pay Your Bills and Buy What You Can Afford."

The North Side Lions club of this city has adopted the slogan, "Have the Same Confidence in Business You Have in Government."

Dr. Roger F. Etz, Boston, executive secretary of the Universalist church general assembly, addressed the Indianapolis Lions club at luncheon today in the Lincoln. He compared economic prosperity of the United States with conditions he observed during a recent tour of Europe.

$20,000 Spent Here

Estimates announced at the luncheon indicated Lions of this city will spend approximately $20,000 during the week, averaging slightly more than $100 a member.

Wives of Lions Club members are co-operating with the club and were guests at the luncheon. Explanation by wives and members as to how the $100 is being spent was an interesting feature of the meeting.

Carl Steag, Indianapolis Optimist Club president, said his organization "was ready to shoot business at all times and will continue to work for an optimistic attitude."

Ministers in many cities are asking parishioners to join the spending movement, reports indicated. Citizens everywhere are adopting the buying campaign as the one thing necessary to start the business pendulum up again, Lions Club officials announce.

Mrs. Passmore married when she was 15 years old.

MAIL PLANE TO

Postal Workers Asked to Attend Arrival.

All Indianapolis postal employees who can be free of duties Saturday afternoon today were asked by Postmaster Robert Bryson to attend the arrival of the first Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., mail plane at Municipal airport at 2:30 p. m. Saturday.

The postoffice band will arrive at the field at 2 p. m., Bryson said. The Chamber of Commerce and postal authorities are planning ceremonies to celebrate the inauguration of transcontinental mail service through Indianapolis.

Bryson also issued warnings to residents here who wish to send letters on the first flight to the west coast against posting the letters in mail boxes. They should be posted at the main office or branch stations with instructions to an attendant that they be included in the inaugural flight parcel.

Bryson and the Chamber of Commerce are attempting to place the largest consignment of mail from any city on the route aboard the planes when they arrive here.
