

LESLIE ACTS TO SOLVE INDIANA JOBLESS CRISIS

Calls on 184 Business and Industrial Leaders to Form Committee.

Effort to solve Indiana's unemployment problems by the Hoover conference method has been launched by Governor Harry G. Leslie.

Invitations to 184 prominent business and industrial leaders throughout the state were sent out from the Governor's office late Wednesday asking them to attend a conference to be held in the house of representatives at 10 a. m. on next Thursday.

Plan Local Organizations

According to L. O. Chassey, secretary to the Governor, who drafted the invitation, plans will be made to form state and local organizations to co-operate with those already existing and with the national organization being formed by President Hoover in aiding distress from unemployment this winter.

Invited are head of large manufacturing concerns, newspaper publishers and editors, state officials, members of the legislature and labor representatives.

Text of the Governor's letter:

"As you are aware, the worldwide economic depression has resulted in a certain amount of unemployment. This, together with the effects of the unusual drought, no doubt will cause considerable distress during the ensuing winter in our state.

Governor Sends Letters

"With the view of minimizing this distress, I am perfecting an organization to co-operate with the national organization being perfected for this purpose. I am asking you to do me the honor to serve on this commission, which will meet Nov. 6, at 10 a. m., in the house of representatives, Statehouse, Indianapolis.

"I hope to have notice of your acceptance at an early date, for which I will be grateful."

A SUBWAY GIVES UP SECRET OF DEATH

Madeleine Buchanan Introduces a Female Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde to the World in Her New Novel.

BY WALTER D. HICKMAN

NOW we have the female Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde in a modern novel by the up-to-date name of "The Subway Murder."

I have always expected such a title since the Lingle affair in real life, and it remained for Madeleine Sharps Buchanan to use the name.

Now, do not be mistaken in the title, because Lingle is not even a character in the story. We are concerned in this murder mystery with this question: Who killed Barbara Parkinson?

The only way you will be able to solve the mystery and force the guilty person to give up the guilty party will be to read "The Subway Murder," by Madeleine Sharps Buchanan, published by A. C. McClurg & Co.

I like this story because one of the characters is a female edition of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Am not going to tell you if this character is the one murdered or the guilty person.

You know me when it comes to giving away the murder secret in any novel. I read this sort of story for fun and mental excitement.

Here is an intelligent murder mystery having about 60 per cent more brains and novelty than even the better grade of this sort of writing.

The guilty person turns out to be the logical person, and the discovery of this person's guilt is splendidly pictured.

I rather think that "The Subway Murder" is a natural for the movies. As a murder mystery it sure is corking good entertainment.

Put this one on your list.

CHARLIE CHAN ONCE AGAIN GETS HIS MAN.

As Charlie Chan says, "There is a time to fish and a time to dry nets," but to Charlie, who is an inspector in Honolulu and much happier when in action, the drying of the nets seems to be drawn over too long a period time.

You will find Charlie craving action in the new murder mystery "Charlie Chan Carries On," written by Earl Derr Biggers and published by the Bobbs-Merrill Company of Indianapolis.

Charlie did not know that action was coming his way when a murderer first began his clever work among a group of seventeen people who were embarked upon a world cruise.

The first murder took place in London, and as the group of travelers moved east toward Honolulu, others were committed with such cunning ability on the part of the murderer, that Chief Inspector Duff of Scotland Yard, who was on the case, was almost at wit's end.

When Honolulu was finally reached, the murderer grew so bold as to attempt the life of Duff. And so it was that Charlie Chan picked up where Duff had left off and carried on.

Charlie had no easy task but as he says, "I am dull and stupid, but often gods go out of their way to take care of such."

"Charlie Chan Carries On" is interesting reading. It is well written

INDIA TURNING TO VIOLENCE IN LIBERTY DRIVE

Factions Opposing Gandhi's Policies Taking Matters in Own Hands.

BY WEBB MILLER

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Extremist elements of the Indian Nationalists, convinced that Mahatmas Gandhi's nonviolence campaign against the British regime in India is insufficiently effective, appeared today to be nearing the employment of terrorist and violent methods.

Investigation of a threat against the life of the viceroy, Lord Irwin; clashes between Nationalists and police in which the natives hurled stones and used improvised weapons against the police armed with lathis; bombings and the discovery of stores of explosives all pointed toward the inauguration of a campaign of violence to replace Gandhi's passive resistance.

A. K. Robertson, an assistant superintendent of police in Calcutta, was absent from his residence when a bomb was thrown into his bedroom. The explosion wrecked the room.

A recent abortive attempt against the life of the governor of the Punjab indicated the extensive activities of the terrorist wing of the Indian Nationalists.
