

REVIVAL SEEN IN NEW YEAR BY AUTO TRADE

Signs Point to Improved Business; Many Changes in Twelvemonth.

BY ISRAEL KLEIN,
Science Editor, NEA Service

Both discouraging and promising were the developments in the automotive industry during 1930. Here's what happened:

1. Production dropped from a peak of 5,600,000 cars in 1929 to 3,000,000 in 1930. Car sales dropped, although not as much, and exports took a big slump.

2. Four names are definitely gone from the automobile lineup—Erskine, Marquette, Whippet and Viking.

3. Two sixes have been abandoned, so has one eight.

4. One four has been converted to a six, and three sixes to eights.

New Models Show

5. A twelve and two sixteens have been introduced, while another new six, the De Vaux, has been announced for introduction the first of the year.

6. One new six and two new eights have been added to already established lines.

7. Prices have continued downward, despite many engine and body improvements.

8. One small European type automobile has come into the American field, another is now being built and a third is to be introduced at the New York auto show this week.

9. General Motors, with the new Buick, has entered the straight-eight field.

10. Free-wheeling, introduced by Studebaker, has been adopted by Lincoln, and will be seen in at least two other popular automobiles early in 1931.

11. Other quieter and easier operating transmission systems, like constant mesh, synchro-mesh and herringbone, have come into wider use.

12. While exports have dropped considerably, at least two of the large American car manufacturers definitely have entered European trade with the manufacture of their products abroad.

Prospects Are Good

Such generally is the picture of the automotive industry as we find it today. While it seems quite a pleasing layout to the motorist, it has been rather disappointing to the manufacturer and dealer.

Prospects, however, are that the industry will pick up gradually and, by 1932, will be once more on a firm foundation.

Signs of this already have begun. For example, in recent months production has been held so low that sales of new cars have exceeded it.

For the entire year, a greater proportion of new cars was sold than in any other previous year since 1925, when registration figures became available.

Gain Late in Year Seen

There is hope of a growing replacement market beginning with 1931, due to the old cars that motorists have kept a year longer than they would ordinarily. But this may not begin to bring results until the end of the year.

Until then, replacements may mean merely exchange of an old car for a slightly newer, but used automobile.

Revival of the industry will be slow, too, because of the slump in exports, due to some extent by high European tariff rates.

Surprised by Mrs. Henry H. Mann, 2222 Parkview place, as they were stealing gasoline from her car, two youths fled Tuesday night, after failing to talk Mrs. Mann into letting them to finish the job. She told police she found the youths at work when she went to her car, parked near 3504 Fall boulevard.

They ran away and then came back, she said. "One of them got in old car they had and then both tried to talk me into letting them get the remainder of the

CARAWAY WILL MOVE TO FORCE EXTRA SESSION

Sharp Attack Is Made on Administration's Record on Prohibition.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—A sharp attack upon the administration's record in prohibition enforcement and the tactics of President Hoover's law enforcement commission has been made by Senator T. H. Caraway.

At the same time the Arkansas Democrat, noted for his biting utterances, joined the growing group which wants to force an extra session of congress.

Caraway, who for the most part has been in the background since the lobby investigating committee flared up of the preceding session, Tuesday night directed a savage blast against the commission and against both Republicans and members of his own party who oppose an extraordinary session of congress after March 4 next.

Wants Extra Session

In response to a question, Caraway said in an interview he would not hesitate to accept the responsibility of forcing an extra session if that were possible. He offered to join any group in the senate to that end.

The extra session bloc is expanding. Senator Borah (Rep., Ida.) is an active member.

Senator Norris (Rep., Neb.), Senator Brookhart (Rep., Ia.), Senator La Follette (Rep., Wis.) and some others on that side of the chamber are counted as potential members.

Caraway said he thought he would have supporters of such Democratic Senators as Walsh (Mont.), Wagner (N. Y.), Wheeler (Mont.) and perhaps Dill (Wash.).

Good California President

Debate on any document received from the Wickersham commission would add to the possibility of delay in voting routine funds and the necessity for summoning congress after March 4.

"I may be doing the commission a grave injustice, but if newspaper reports are to be relied upon, it is largely a debating society," said Caraway.

Only 3 Motorists Punished

DETROIT, Dec. 31.—Only three motorists were punished for traffic accidents in Detroit during the year.

Reorganization of the board will take place probably at a meeting within the next week. Jackiel W. Joseph, the other Democratic member, is expected to be named president. Emhardt's retirement marks the termination of five years of service.

H. Nathan Swain, attorney and Democratic county chairman, has been named to succeed Russell J. Ryan, superior judge-elect, as board attorney. Swain's appointment has been expected several weeks.

Further reorganization of the plan commission will result from the appointment of a park board mem-

"EDISON SERVICE"

NEW HARDING STREET GENERATING STATION

Under Construction as of December 1, 1930

That We May Be Ready!

To Make Indianapolis more attractive to new industries
by having an ample and reliable electric power supply—

To Assist in the expansion of present local industries by constantly improving an already highly efficient and economical service in the generation and distribution of electric power—

To Meet the power requirements of the constantly growing use of modern appliances by all classes of consumers—

To Meet the general power requirements of a modern civic community which is so located and has such advantages that its constant growth is assured—

The Indianapolis Power & Light Company has had an average of more than 300 men at work daily throughout 1930 to construct the new 100,000 horse power Harding Street Generating station and the new 132,000 volt transmission line around the city, in addition to the employment of more than 1,200 men and women, who have also worked daily during 1930 in the normal operation of our business.

This, together with nearly $1,000,000.00 for local taxes and approximately $3,000,000.00 for the local purchase of supplies and equipment, has been, in part, our contribution to the stabilization and improvement of our community during 1930.
