

WALES TO MISS THRILL OF CHAIR TRIP IN PERU

Princes Decide, Instead, to Make Inca Land Entry by Airplane.

By United Press
LIMA, Peru, Feb. 13.—The prince of Wales and Prince George will remain in Lima until Sunday morning and fly to Arequipa, and thus will make their entry into the true Inca land by airplane instead of by chair.

The royal brothers have traveled the world by every mode of transportation, and have risked their royal necks at various hazardous sports, but it is doubtful if they ever have been transported by chair.

The process does not involve becoming a chair sitter for any length of time, for arrivals at Mollendo, Arequipa's port, sit in a strong comfortable "silla" built especially for landing passengers at the rocky port, are hoisted by a crane from a launch, swung over a concrete dock, and deposited ashore firmly but gently.

Princes to Miss Thrill
The princes will miss this thrill—in the case of ordinary passengers it is often made more thrilling by the presence of several natives hanging on the rungs of the chair—because they gave up their original plan to proceed from Lima to Mollendo today aboard the steamer Oropesa.

The steamer leaves Callao this morning and arrives at Mollendo Sunday. The airplane journey requires only five hours.

Roughness of the sea prevents passengers from landing via gang-plank at Mollendo.

Steamers anchor in the bay and passengers are brought in launches into a narrow inlet alongside the dock.

City at Andes' Portals
A chair is lowered into the boat and usually about four passengers are landed together, one seated and the others hanging on. A donkey engine swings the load up about twelve feet to the level of the dock.

Arequipa, metropolis of southern Peru, is at the portals of the Andes. The city has an altitude of 7,500 feet, although it is slightly more than 100 miles from the Pacific. The Incas named the lovely spot Arequipa—"here we rest."

Three Lives Periled by Crazy Air Passenger

By United Press
DETROIT, Feb. 13.—Physicians at the Detroit hospital today blamed "air sickness" for the strange actions of James T. Mangan, Chicago, in scattering money to the winds and endangering the lives of himself and three other men with whom he was riding in an air plane.

Mangan, advertising manager for a novelty company, was taken to the hospital after coming here Thursday afternoon in a Tri-State Airways cabin plane, piloted by Louis Steward.

Upon landing, Steward and his two other passengers told how Mangan apparently had gone insane during the trip from Chicago, scattered silver and paper money for miles, attempted to jump from the plane and became violent when not allowed to pilot the ship.

Steward said he first noticed the commotion in the rear cabin when they were over South Bend, Ind. The plane, he said, suddenly began to rock. He looked about. One of his passengers was fighting the other two.

Mangan, he said, ripped away the door between the cabins and insisted upon being allowed to pilot the ship. Steward pushed him away repeatedly with one hand while he steered a zigzag course with the other.

The other two passengers, he said, blocked the cabin windows to prevent Mangan from jumping out and fought with him to keep him away from Steward as much as possible.

DRY ACTION DELAYED

House Committee May Favor Medicinal Bill.

Delay until Monday was decided today for reports of the house of representatives public morals committee on prohibition modification and repeal bills in hands of the committee.

Representative Russell J. Dean (Dem., Marion) made the announcement. Awaiting the committee's action are the Egan-Monig bill legalizing medicinal whisky and the Galloway-C. Egan bill for the repeal of the Wright bone-day law. A divided report on each measure is expected with a possible majority report recommending the medicinal whisky bill for passage.

KILLS SELF AT GRAVE OF WIFE

Woman's Fate Revealed by Dramatic Suicide.

By United Press
ELSBERRY, Mo., Feb. 13.—The death of Mrs. Clara Jones—whose hidden grave was revealed dramatically when her husband shot himself to death over the plot—was being investigated today by authorities who believed she might have been murdered.

Two years ago, shortly after the Jones family moved here from Detroit, the wife disappeared. Jones reported she had gone to live with relatives in Winamac, Ind.

Failure of her mother, Mrs. Ella Cain, and a brother, Roy Cain, of Winamac, to hear from her aroused suspicion. They began an investigation. Jones disappeared.

Recently he appeared at the home of Mrs. Cain, who asked for information concerning her daughter.

Jones said she had died and offered to take her to the grave.

Thursday the Cains and Jones drove to the farm near here. Jones asked his relatives to wait in the car and went to the farmhouse. Another family was living there. Jones gave a boy a note to be delivered to the relatives.

Jones went to the storm cellar while the boy delivered the note. It read: "My body will be found immediately over Clara's grave." The relatives heard a shot, ran to the storm cellar and found Jones dead.

Authorities found Mrs. Jones' body buried four feet under the spot where Jones had killed himself.

TRUCK DRIVER HELD UP
Negro Bandit Uses Gun to Get $15 From Him.

Turning from Pierson street into Twenty-seventh street early today, Jacob M. Kesler, 1002 South Taft street, Omar Baking Company driver, found himself on the wrong end of a gun, held by a Negro bandit who boarded his truck.

Kesler surrendered $15 to the gunman, who fled down an alley and drove away in a large sedan.

TOBACCO CAPITAL VOTES OLD GOLD BEST

Ripley CREATOR OF "BELIEVE IT or NOT"—PROVES IT

FIRST IN THE TASTE OF HIS COUNTRYMEN
... O. G. wins big plurality vote in Ripley taste-test made at Washington monument, Richmond.

OLD VIRGINIA, the original tobacco-growing state, goes OLD GOLD. Ripley conducting test of leading cigarette brands in front of Capitol.

RICHMOND AWARDS O. G. BIG VICTORY OVER RIVAL BRANDS IN RIPLEY'S FIRST TASTE-TEST DOWN SOUTH

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Himself

I went down to Richmond, Virginia, the other day. Richmond, one of the nation's capitals in tobacco products, where they know tobacco like Detroit knows motor cars.

I gave 904 Richmond smokers one each of the four leading cigarettes ... with the names hidden by a black mask.

"Don't try to guess 'em, Richmond!" I said. "Just smoke 'em ... and pick out the cigarette that tastes best."

It was the same old story. Again, O. G. rolled up a decisive majority vote. Chosen by the world's foremost tobacco town for its superior throat-ease and smoothness.

If that isn't a Supreme Court decision ... what is?
