What's in Fashion?

New Styles Go Back Centuries

Directed By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Interesting, isn't it, how history repeats itself, even in fashion! And this spring is no exception to the rule.

There are lots of details in spring costumes that can trace their ancestry back to costumes of many years—or even centuries—ago. Of course the don't copy exactly those old costumes. But they adapt certain details to the spirit of 1931.

It was in the middle of the last century that the Empress Eugenie ruled over fashion while her husband, Louis Philippe, ruled over France.

And it was then that the off-shoulder décolletage appeared at evening functions. We've had sketched a fashionable 1931 version of this neckline—very much modified, of course, to make it easier to wear. You'll find more extreme versions, if you like them.

Empress Eugenie Necklines . . . off shoulder décolletage for evening.

Real hoop skirts such as they wore in Civil war days wouldn't fit in the modern roadster or airplane. So 1931 fashion makes a skirt that's wide and flounced, but leaves the whalebone hoops out of it.

This is a lovely, graceful evening fashion, reminiscent of square dances and deep curtsies.

Have you ever seen pictures of good Queen Victoria in her little jacket with a frilled sleeve peeping out beneath the jacket sleeve? There's a modern sleeve that copies it almost exactly, found on some of the smart new dresses.

Timbales always are unmolded before serving on Thursdays any shape of mold in which mixtures can be baked is used.

Timbale shells are entirely different. They are made of a thin fritter batter and fried on an iron mold in deep fat.

The following rule for vegetable timbales using two vegetables in combination to excellent advantage.

VEGETABLE TIMBALES
One-half cup cooked asparagus, 1/2 cup finely chopped carrots, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 2 eggs.

Rub asparagus and carrots through ricer. Melt butter, stir in flour and cook and stir until bubbling. Slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and remove from fire.

Stir in prepared vegetables and well-beaten eggs. Season with salt and pepper and pour into well buttered molds, filling them about two-thirds full. Put molds in a pan of hot water, cover with buttered paper and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Unmold and serve.

The foundation of most timbales is this same rich, custard-like sauce. More eggs can be used, making a decidedly custardy dish.

Pea timbales a delicious served with a rich white sauce, or with a shrimp or crabmeat sauce. They are made without a thick sauce, since the pea puree itself has a thickening tendency.

PEA TIMBALES
One cup pea puree, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons of milk, 2 tablespoons of melted butter, 1/2 teaspoon of salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, few gratings of nutmeg.

Rub peas through ricer. Beat eggs until light with milk. Combine with peas and add melted butter and seasonings.

Beat until well-blended and pour into well-buttered molds. Bake as in preceding recipe and unmold to serve.

COLONIAL DAMES ARE ENTERTAINED
Mrs. Russell J. Ryan entertained members of the Colonial Dames in the State of Indiana at her home, 3238 North Pennsylvania street, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Fletcher Hodges read an original story, "Torch Bearers."

The tea table was centered with yellow roses. Mrs. Thomas Karkley and Mrs. F. N. Lewis poured.

Ramikin Is Think You're Convenient Lovely and in Cooking You May Be

BY SISTER MARY

If you would serve leftover vegetables in most attractive fashion, keep in mind the possibilities of timbales and ramikins.

Although ramikins refer more to the manner of serving than to the method of cooking, foods served in ramikins have a distinctive flavor. These individual dishes make it easy to use up two or more varieties of leftovers and give each member of the family his favorite vegetable.

Timbales translated literally means "kettle drum" and originally was used only for molds shaped somewhat like the present melon mold.

Timbales always are unmolded before serving on Thursdays any shape of mold in which mixtures can be baked is used.

Think You're Lovely and in Cooking You May Be

BY ALICIA HART

It is no soft soap to say you can have beauty in the mind's eye.

I have known women who were far from possessing classic or even ordinarily lovely features who thought they were so lovely that they made the world think so.

An air of beauty is quite as good an illusion of beauty as the actual thing itself. Sometimes an extremely homely woman can have such an air of distinction and chic that it passes for beauty and she acquires a national reputation.

Probably the worst fault in the world a woman can have is underestimating her own good looks. It is much easier on your friends and husbands if you are a little bit conceited.

She Spreads Grief
The woman who never thinks she looks nice, who kicks about the color of her hair, the shape of her nose and so on, is a real drain on those near by.

Everybody has something or other to commend her. What, I have often thought, has that immortalized Mona Lisa?

Personally I don't like her looks a bit. But she certainly has cast a spell over the whole world just by that inscrutable smile and those placidly folded hands.

I should like to suggest that all of you take inventory some day when your digestion is good and you are in a happy frame of mind.

Just Take Stock
Look your features over, with a rose colored light to reflect them, and practice up on the pleasantest expression you can get out of that face of yours.

Look at the way your hair grows and the way your eyebrows are shaped. Maybe there is a hitherto unnoted arch to your brows that would stir the pride in you a little.

After all, I think we should all have pride in our appearance. The mistake American women make is not to make the most of themselves and to have a genuine pride in their differences from standardized beauty, but to cry after the moon, which is probably a face like Greta Garbo's, in more instances than one.

How About Your Disposition
Last, but not least, after you have restored your own self-respect and pride by realizing that after all, your delicate coloring is rather appealing, or your hair has a fairly good sheen, all in all, or maybe your cheeks have a dimple or two you have not capitalized as you should, then take a look at your spiritual qualities that are reflected in your eyes, the way you carry your head and your walk.

There is an unfading beauty in a face that shows thoughtfulness and consideration for others. There is an appeal about a person who has a spiritual life all her own.

Don't think you can look reflective just by trying to. Your face tells the world exactly how much you devote your time to yourself exclusively and how much to others.

For there are all kinds of beauty. You can have beauty inside and outside your head, if you so will it. And it's a combination hard to beat!

HEALTH DIRECTORS ENTERTAIN NURSES
Nurses and members of the office staff of the Public Health Nursing Association were entertained with a party Friday night by the board of directors at the home of Mrs. F. R. Kautz, 4059 North Pennsylvania street.

The program included songs by Mrs. Everett Francis Johnson, a group of impersonations by Miss Rieca Scott Titus and a skit, "Robinson Crusoe," with the parts being taken by Thomas Sinclair, C. C. Robinson and John Kautz.

HELPS ARRANGE RECEPTION

Miss Rosamond Van Camp is a member of Mrs. Charles Latham's committee in charge of arrangements for a reception Saturday night sponsored by the Junior League at the John Herron Art Institute for the opening of the Indiana Artists' exhibit.

Just Every Day Sense

FROM a member of a Sunday school board in Tennessee has been received a tract which purports to be the very same that converted the queen of England.

It asks how I am traveling to eternity. There are, it explains, three different classes of passengers on the line which is modeled like the English railway system. First class: Those who are saved and know it. Second class: Those who are not sure of salvation, but anxious to be. Third class: Those who not only are unsaved, but remain indifferent.

The friend interested in my welfare believes I am going with the third group. I appreciate her concern for me soul.

The tract also says that the future destination of third class passengers will be the great Lake of Fire. The Brimstone sea is the last abiding place of all those who ignore this particular plan of salvation.

HAVING been inclined always to friendship for and sympathy with the under-dog, I probably shall linger among these ill-fated poorer passengers. I have, it is true, very little desire to travel with the smug class who are entirely satisfied with the condition of their morals and the state of their souls.

I have noticed that very often the complete assurance of salvation causes many people to be unmindful of the fate of their fellows.

Moreover, I never could believe in a God who pitched even the hardest sinner into an eternally burning lake. I could have no respect for any such Deity.

It's too bad that the ancient fathers of the church who selected the material for the King James version of our Bible did not throw out the parable of Lazarus, as they did a number of other things. It has made a lot of good people too hell-conscious, and is as barbarous a tale as ever was penned.

And wouldn't it be strange if
