What's in Fashion? Military-Looking Details

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—With all this talk about femininity in the mode it might seem "contrary" to say there's a military influence in fashion.

But it isn't. Because while the military influence shows up strongly in certain fashions, it's not a stiff, severe, military look. It is softened, feminized, and made easy to wear. You find this military look in certain details of coats, suits and dresses. Wider lapels are one of them. You'll see these often on dresses and coats that have double breasted closings and wide revers—the so-called "Directoire" dress and coat.

Costumes worn during the Directoire period in France—a military period—had this double breasted closing and the wide revers.

Deep gauntlet cuffs are another military detail copied from officers' coats worn during various periods of history. And these you find not only on coats, but on dresses.

But when they're on dresses they're less military looking and more feminine—made of lace or soft lingerie materials.

Turned-down Collars

Turned-down collars, fastened high around the throat, are on many fashionable coats and suits. They're military—navy as well as army!

All these details appear separately on various costumes. But some costumes combine several of them and then your dress or coat or suit is very definitely military-like—but in a soft, feminine way.

The Bruyere coat is one of the best examples of this military look. The idea of this coat came originally from Bruyere, the Paris couturier. As you see, it has the high-fastened collar, buttoned revers and deep gauntlet cuffs.

Yet this coat isn't severe looking. It's soft at the waistline and fits the figure easily. When the collar is opened and the revers unbuttoned, it becomes even more feminine, because the revers drop to form a soft, rippling jabot effect.

Has Look of Uniform

The other suit shown has the look of a uniform, too. Here again is the high closing with the turned down collar. And in addition, it's double breasted and has military looking patch pockets.

The tricorn and bicorne hats that you're seeing so often are two other military-like spring fashions.

Vegetables Offer New Menu Touch

BY SISTER MARY

There comes a time between winter and spring when vegetables present a difficult problem for the cook. The following concoctions may be new to many housewives and provide variety for a few meals during this trying season.

Sautéed Brussels sprouts are an appetizing addition to a meat loaf. They are also attractive when served with a planked steak or fish.

SAUTÉED BRUSSELS SPROUTS

One pint Brussels sprouts, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon water, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, dried bread crumbs.

Wash sprouts and trim if necessary. Let stand in cold salted water for thirty minutes. Drain and cook, uncovered, in rapidly boiling water until tender, but not broken. Add 2 teaspoons salt to water in which sprouts are being cooked when sprouts are about half done. Drain well. Beat egg with water, flour, salt and pepper. Dip each

Daily Menu

BREAKFAST—Grapes, cereal, cream, ham omelet, crisp graham toast, marmalade, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Green peas in turnip cups, brown bread and cheese sandwiches, shredded celery cabbage and apple salad, chocolate bread pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Braised brisket of beef, mashed potatoes, buttered parsnips, onion and citrus fruit salad, toasted English muffins, deep dish apricot pie, milk, coffee.

STEWED POTATOES A LA SOUTHERN

One dessertspoon butter, 1 dessertspoon lard or other fat, 1 dessertspoon flour, 1 medium sized onion, 4 cups diced raw potatoes, parsley, pimento, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon white pepper.

Melt butter and lard in sauce pan. Stir in flour. When mixture is perfectly smooth add onion finely minced. Add potatoes, salt and pepper and enough boiling water to prevent potatoes from burning, but not enough to cover them. It will take about 1 cup.

Cover saucepan closely and cook twenty minutes. At the end of this time the potatoes should be tender and the water absorbed. Serve in a hot dish and garnish with snips of pimento and minced parsley.

Rice boulettes are served with fowl or game in place of potatoes. They also make a delicious addition to a luncheon plate.

RICE BOULETTES

One-half cup rice, 1 bouillon cube, cup boiling water, 1 cup canned tomatoes, 1 small onion, 2 sprigs parsley, 3 whole cloves, 12 peppercorns, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 1 teaspoon melted butter.

Wash rice through many waters and cook in double-boiler with water and bouillon cube until water is absorbed. Add tomato sauce made by cooking tomatoes, onion minced, parsley, cloves, sugar and peppercorns for 20 minutes and then rubbing through a sieve.

When rice has absorbed this sauce, removed from heat and let cool slightly. Add egg well beaten, salt, pepper, butter and cheese. Mix thoroughly and spread on a buttered platter.

Let stand several hours. Form into small balls not more than an inch and one-half in diameter, roll in fine dried bread crumbs, dip in egg slightly beaten and roll again in crumbs.

Fry in deep hot fat until a golden brown and drain on crumpled paper. Turnips filled with green peas are most attractive to look at and delicious to eat. After washing and paring turnips, boil in salted water to which lemon juice has been added until tender but firm.

Remove from water and scoop out the center, making cups. Fill with buttered green peas and serve piping hot.

'Pickup' for Beauty Easy to Achieve

BY ALICIA HART

Beauty, quite like your spirits, often needs a pick-me-up late in the afternoon.

Sometimes you feel the need for it and have time for it just before going home from the office.

Other times it is when you are staying in to dinner with some one you would like to bewitch with your beauty and charm.

The most effective thing in the world to do is to remove your frock and blouse and use warm water and soap to wash your face, neck, arms under the arms and hands. This freshens you second to nothing!

Cleansing Cream Better

If you can not do that, if you must effect your pick-me-up where you can not get your frock, then cleansing cream is often far more effective than dabbing water on gingerly.

After removing the day's soil, sit down simply in a chair for ten minutes if you can make it. Just slump.

If you could stretch out that is all the more effective. But slumping in a chair, entirely relaxed, is something.

When that ten minutes' grace is over, try this simple exercise and see how it revives your fallen psychology.

Take your fingers of both hands and lightly pick up your features. Start at Cheek Bones.

Begin with your thumbs planted firmly on your cheek bones and with your fingers very straight, lift the face under the eyes, run the fingers firmly up over the bridge of the nose, massage it slightly between the eyes and then continue clear up, keeping up that lifting motion, clear to the hair line.

Then take your hands and push up your scalp from the back of the neck up onto your head. Begin down on your shoulders, work upward firmly and in between strokes, bend the neck down and try to relax it.

Then go back to your face, pick up the face the same way, concentrating your lifting between the eyes and smoothing out over the forehead. Stroke firmly up the sides of the face towards the temple. Massage the head slightly to make it tingle.

If you do it right, it is surprisingly refreshing. Finish this in about ten minutes and then apply cold cream if you have time, vanishing cream if you haven't.

Dash on an astringent, apply make-up, tidy your hair and see how much younger and prettier you feel.

This is literally a beauty pickup. I will be surprised if you are not pleased with what it does for you.
