—WHAT'S IN FASHION?—

New Ideas in Blouses Unusually Clever

Directed By AMOS PARRISH

Left, high collar tuck-in with bow tie. Center, short surplice blouse with scalloped edging. Right, short sleeved overblouse with bow trim.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Anybody who wears a spring suit this year can have a lot of fun choosing blouses to go with it.

First there's the matter of making up color combinations—something much-in-fashion right now.

Then there's the idea of entirely changing the looks of the suit—and the looks of yourself—by the type of blouse you wear.

There are certain things you'll notice on this year's blouses to mark them 1931. Many have the surplice line. That is, they go on like a jacket and tie or snap over to one side—usually the collar bone.

Surplice Is Prominent

Incidentally—you're going to see a great deal of this surplice or diagonal closing this spring—in dresses, coats and suits as well as blouses.

Another is that lots are in double-breasted effect—extending below the waistline and fastening with four buttons, two on each side of the center.

Still another 1931 mark is the tendency to higher necklines. Some of them really are high—such as the blouse sketched at the right. Others aren't high, but merely higher than they have been. Nearer the collar bone.

Sleeves Are Shorter

Fine handwork—or trimming that looks like handwork—is something else to watch for—if you want to be in fashion. Fagotting, edge treatments like scalloping or saw-tooth or lace, hand-rolled hems.

Shorter sleeves are appearing in blouses just as they are in dresses—three-quarter sleeves, just-above-the-elbow sleeves and even shorter ones, such as in the blouse sketched at the right.

The white blouse still is fashionable, of course—and it's one of the smartest combinations you can make with a navy or black suit.

But pastels make the newer color combinations. Soft colors like slate blue worn with a gray tweed suit, flesh pink with a suit in bittersweet, golden beige with a brown suit.

Your new suit has the new three-quarter sleeves, a good blouse to ensemble with it is one whose sleeves are wrist-length and full above a close fitting cuff.

If you new suit is collarless, a blouse with a scarf that ties at the side with ends hanging outside the suit neckline is smart. So is one with a high collar like the one sketched, or one with a frilly feminine jabot.

Overblouse or tuck-ins—both are

THE ONE PLACE WHERE IT PAYS TO PLAY WITH FIRE

THEY'LL build you a huge fire at a certain place in Chicago—they'll heat a door or wall red-hot and turn a hose on it—they'll do all sorts of striking and ingenious things to see how long a certain device will stand up under punishment or how soon it will burn up or blow up or break.

It's a dramatic place—the great buildings of Underwriters' Laboratories—where they "play with fire" in testing building materials, electrical devices, gases, chemicals, hose, extinguishers, home utilities, and endless other things.

Symbols of Safety

Everywhere the exhaustive tests of Underwriters' Laboratories are accepted as authoritative and its labels of approval recognized as Symbols of Safety.
