

SECOND CLASS STARTS FREE GOLF LESSONS

Ten Girls Get Instruction as Winners of Times Essay Contest.

There were blistered hands and tired arms, but high spirits, among the young women who began their six free golf lessons at the Smith-Nelson academy, second floor Board of Trade building, Monday night.

The ten winners of the second contest being staged by The Indianapolis Times for women who write the best essay on "Why I Would Like to Play Golf," were on hand promptly at 6 p. m. when the instructors, Dick Nelson, pro at Meridian Hills, and Roy Smith, pro at Avalon, assigned them in pairs to the five huge nets into which before the end of the week they will be hitting the ball with regularity.

One of the victors was unable to take advantage of her writing success because she is otherwise engaged at the hours of practice. Judges selected a substitute for her today, and Mrs. Margaret Haines, 1701 South Emerson avenue, will be hitting the ball with regularity.

The contest to pick the third set of ten lucky young women to begin March 16, opened Monday.

Those who have submitted essays and have not been declared winners still have two chances. Their essays will be left in the running through the two remaining contests, or they may submit new essays.

Third Contest On

The lesson Monday night was given over entirely to the swing at an imaginary ball. Wednesday night those who have mastered the swing best will be allowed to hit balls into the practice nets.

The contest to pick the third set of ten lucky young women to begin March 16, opened Monday.

Those who have submitted essays and have not been declared winners still have two chances. Their essays will be left in the running through the two remaining contests, or they may submit new essays.

No Expense Involved

There is not a cent of expense. Write an essay not to exceed 150 words on "Why I Would Like to Play Golf." Mail to the Golf Contest Editor of The Times. If you are declared a winner, you will be given six golf lessons, one hour each, Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights during two weeks.

The first class of ten completed the course last Friday night and every one of the young women showed surprising ability at the end of the six lessons.

At the end of the fourth class, the forty winning girls will gather on an outdoor course and a tournament will determine who has benefited most from the lessons.

HEFLIN BRINGS LAST ELECTION BEFORE SENATE

Subcommittee Wants All Alabama Votes Sent to Washington.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance
WASHINGTON, March 3.—Headed by Daniel O. Hastings (Rep., Del.), a subcommittee of the senate committee on privileges and elections, will begin consideration this week of the contest filed by Senator J. Thomas Hefflin of Alabama against John H. Bankhead, senator-elect.

Hastings called a meeting of the committee Monday to proceed at once to impound every ballot box in Alabama. Following this procedure, the committee will map its course of action in conducting hearings, taking evidence and examining the ballots, which will be brought to Washington.

With Hastings on the subcommittee are Senators Glenn of Illinois and Waterman of Colorado, Republicans, and George of Georgia and Bratton of New Mexico, Democrats.

Both Hefflin and Bankhead appeared before the full committee on elections and privileges Saturday. Bankhead pledged co-operation in obtaining the ballot boxes and it was at his suggestion that the committee passed a resolution requesting the state legislature of Alabama to instruct the county sheriffs to turn the boxes over to the committee.

The boxes are to be impounded under a certificate by each sheriff that they are being turned over to the committee exactly as they are today, whether opened or not, with no change in their condition.

A spirited clash between Hefflin and Bankhead over the question of the primary which preceded the last senatorial election, indicated that this issue would precipitate a very bitter controversy before the committee.

Poet's Grandson

Not poetry, but cricket, was the main concern of Lord Tennyson, grandson and namesake of the great English poet, when as shown here he arrived in New York from London.

Himself a cricket star, he indignantly denied that, as Lady Astor was reported to have stated in the British parliament, heavy drinking was to blame for the recent defeat of England's championship cricket team at the hands of the Australians.

WILD, WEIRD ARE VAMPIRE DRAWINGS

Amazing Creations Sent to Times in Theater's Prize Contest.

If The Times' "Dracula" editor didn't have any ideas of his own as to just what a "vampire" looks like, previous to today, he seems to be in for a liberal education in this respect. Monday's announcement in The Times that cash prizes would be awarded for drawings of "vampires" resulted in a rush of strange-looking creatures of every conceivable size, shape and color.

This contest is being run in connection with the showing of "Dracula" at the Circle theater, starting Friday. "Dracula" is the strange story of a "vampire" involved in a series of extremely strange romances. This vampire lived only at night, between sunset and sunrise. The story was written by Bram Stoker and enjoyed a wide circulation as a novel. Then it was staged and played for almost three years on Broadway.

The picture is presented by the principals of the New York stage cast and Helen Chandler, David Manners, Charles Gerrard and other well-known screen players.

Contestants are asked to draw a picture with pencil or pen and ink. This picture should be their conception of a "vampire." The contest is open to every one, and no one needs to be an artist to compete for one of the cash prizes.

The strangest looking drawing of all may be the one that wins the prize.
