

MANY PROJECTS ENGAGE PUPILS AT HIGH SCHOOL

League of Nations, State Legislature Being Studied.

Varied projects engage attention in classes at Warren Central high school where teachers supplement regular instruction with activities designed to develop initiative in pupils.

Most important of the projects for this month will be a model league of nations assembly conducted by history classes.

An attempt is to be made to duplicate the assembly of the league held at Geneva last September, it is announced. Pupils will deliver addresses, elect assembly officers and transact business.

Will Invite Public

An invitation for the public to attend this assembly is to be issued. The auditorium of the high school will be decorated with flags of various nations belonging to the league.

Senior government classes, during the state legislature, have gained actual practice in legislative affairs by organizing into a general assembly, one class representing the senate and the other the house of representatives. Bills are introduced, discussed and acted on similarly to those presented in the Indiana legislature.

Making objects out of soap is another project done by freshman pupils in vocational information classes.

Hold Practice Meetings

Debating and oratory has featured outside activities of seniors this semester. The class has studied the subject at the Indianapolis library and held meetings to practice best methods of speech making.

An insight into duties of weather bureau has been gained by the physical geography class which is studying atmosphere, winds, rainfall and temperature by means of graphs. The class also is studying geological development of the Great Lakes.

Use of negotiable papers, including checks and notes, is being studied as a project of the commercial arithmetic class.

Organization of guidance agencies at Technical high school is set forth in a new book prepared by DeWitt S. Morgan, Technical principal, and Milt H. Stuart, assistant superintendent of Indianapolis schools.

Twelve agencies for guidance of the high school pupil are listed and their functions explained in the book entitled "Guidance at Work," published by the McGraw-Hill Book Company.

The theory of the book is that the secondary school is primarily for guidance and that the personal development of the pupil should be developed. This is accomplished by the twelve co-operative agencies with which all Tech pupils are familiar. These agencies are:

The home room and the guidance organization for beginners, freshman conference, presentation of formal courses in vocational information, try-out courses in industrial processes, a system of check-up of all failing pupils, department of research record, student government, a system of record of personal traits, special opportunity for exceptional pupils, and analysis of occupational interest and purpose of those about to graduate, with side to employment opportunities.

Morgan in presenting the book quotes its preface as follows: "Technical high school at Indianapolis has committed itself to the thesis that guidance of youth is its major function, and an endeavour has been made to turn every resource of school to this all important task."

KREUTZBERG TO DO SOME NEW DANCES

Famous Dancing Team Is Being Greeted by Capacity Houses on Present Nation-Wide Tour.

YVONNE GEORGI, who with Harold Kreutzberg will be presented in a dance recital at English's, Sunday afternoon, is one of the outstanding modern dancers of German and was a member of the original Mary Wigman ensemble of Berlin, from which have come many of Europe's leading dance artists.

Mlle. Georgi was born in France of a Franco-Arabian mother and a German father. As a child she was trained for the career of a concert pianist, and at the age of 10 became known as a child prodigy in Germany.

Because of her natural ability as a dancer she was asked to substitute in a festival for a dancer who had fallen ill. This was the beginning of her brilliant career.

Harold Kreutzberg is German. As a child he attended the opera with his mother which filled him with a desire to sing and dance after the manner of the great artists he saw. After the study of painting, costume design, and primary dancing at the Mary Wigman school, Kreutzberg appeared in the ballets of the Hanover and Berlin operas.

Later he was engaged by Max Reinhardt for the Salzburg festival plays. He was eminently successful as the master of ceremonies in "Turandot" and came to America for the first time in 1927 to appear in Reinhardt's production of "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Returning to Germany he began to dance with Yvonne Georgi, whom he had met at the Mary Wigman school. These two young dancers began to originate dances which have since made them world famous.

Now they are fulfilling their third season of American engagements. Several new dances have been added to their program, including a "King's Dance" by Kreutzberg, described as "wild and barbaric."

Mrs. Nancy Martens is bringing the dancers to English's as a part of her winter offering. Prof. D. D. Nye is the director.

Indianapolis theaters today offer: "My Past" at the Apollo, "Reaching for the Moon" at the Palace, "Scandal Sheet" at the Circle, James Hall at the Indiana, "Body and Soul" at the Lyric, "Ex-Flame" at the Ohio, movies at the Colonial, and burlesque at the Mutual.

Guy A. Wainwright, a son, qualified as administrator, providing bond of $1,000,000, estimated amount of the estate. One-third of the estate is to be set up in a trust fund for Mrs. Wainwright, and the remaining two-thirds will go directly to the son.

Through the story of Judith, the author shows how much of the real work of pioneering life was done by young people of 15 to 20, and how great an asset to the new community was their strength and enthusiasm.

Other stories highly recommended by the children's department at the public library are:

"JUDITH LANKASTER" by Marjorie Hill Alice; "A TOADSTOOL TABLE" by Rowena Bennett—A book of verse which will be read at all ages.

"RAVENSBURG THE WORM" by Esther Darline—The story of an Alaskan team-dog.

"HOW THEY CARRIED THE MAIL" by Ross MacPhee—A story from the old King Arthur three thousand years before Christ, down through the ages to the development of the mail.

"FAMOUS GIRLS OF THE WHITE HOUSE" by Kate Sweter—Not a serious history, but a good one, and an attractive gallery of girls who at one time or another lived in the White House.

Douglas MacLean Is Wedded at Bedside of Stricken Father.

HOLLYWOOD, March 4—Douglas MacLean, former motion picture star, and his bride, the former Lorraine Eddy, actress remained here today for their honeymoon, after their marriage at the bedside of MacLean's father, the Rev. C. C. MacLean, Presbyterian minister.

By JOSEPHINE HALBING

Believe that a pupil who does nothing but grind at his books will fail in life the same as the idle youth who does not study at all has led teachers of Washington high school to adopt definite rules for regulation of extra-curricular activities.
