RAIL CONTINUES TO HAMPER TRIBE WORKOUTS

Hurlers Don Heavy Garments for Drills

Outfielder Clyde Barnhart Reports Three Days Early; Pitcher Frank Mulroney Ordered to Lighten Work by Manager Corriden.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 6.—Business of grooming the Indian battery men is becoming more difficult as the days go by. The weather again failed the Corridens Thursday, and although they went through a long drill there was no sunshine and the athletes were compelled to work out in heavy garments.

Outfielder Clyde Barnhart joined the training camp party, but passed up practice and rushed away to establish living quarters for his family. He said his exercise probably would begin today. The fly chasers are not due officially until Monday, but Barnhart has some important fishing engagements to fulfill.

Pitcher Frank Mulroney has been ordered to join Danny Boone and reduce his amount of pitching. He was bothered by a sore arm last season and will not be asked to take a turn on the mound every day during spring training.

Frank and Danny will hurl only every other day and build up their wind and less while resting their salary wings. Manager Corriden is making every effort to conserve and believes the staff will be in sound condition by the time the second squad reports to institute the batting sessions.

The biggest part of Thursday's practice was in the outfield with the fingers chasing fungo drives. It was a cold day and the Tribe pilot kept the boys on the go every minute.

Manager Corriden is eager to increase the training pace, but the weather is against him. Better conditions are expected for the next week.

Jack Vornholt, the Indianapolis sandlotter looks the part of promising talent after he receives some league experience out in the little minors. He uses a free and easy motion.

Tom Angley of the Tribe backstop department is displaying great form at the bat and his solid drives are a feature of the daily drills at Payne park. A few of the athletes are running hits, but so far the squad has been fortunate in the way of escaping injury.

Manager McCarthy said the line-up meant nothing so far as the regular season was concerned.

TAMPA, Fla., March 6.—Joe Stripp, regular first baseman, and Bill Wynn, regular second baseman, were the first to arrive at the practice field today. Stripp is bothered by a heavy cold, and Wynn by a lame back. The Reds enjoyed their first day of spring training.

Griffith continued to rule a favorite today, generally at 8-5, but as high as 2-1 in some quarters. Levinsky's supporters hoped for a knockout and asked 1-3 on that ticket.

As Griffith always has been known as "a sucker for a right hand," many believe that he will wind up sniffing the resin tonight.

Carnera Boomed After Victory Over Maloney

18,000 See Giant Italian in Tussle With Boston Vet; Primo Finishes Strong to Get Referees' Decision, Despite Loser's Early Lead.

MIAMI, Fla., March 6.—Primo Carnera, Italy's biggest, if not most handsome gift to the boxing business, still was in the heavyweight championship picture today as a result of his ten-round decision over Jimmy Maloney, second-rate Boston veteran, at the Madison Square Garden arena here Thursday night.

Judging by the boos which greeted referee Elmer (Slim) McClelland's decision, Carnera never would have received the verdict had the spectators (all 18,000 of them) been allowed to vote. The big Italian was cheered from the minute the fight was over until he disappeared from view in his dressing room. Maloney, however, was cheered vociferously, and was borne to his dressing room on admirers' shoulders.

Many of those around the ring-side were of the opinion that McClelland was unduly influenced by Carnera's strong finish. The Italian, after a sluggish start, won the last three rounds. In the eighth frame he smacked Maloney with two resounding rights to the jaw, the most effective punches of the fight. In the ninth and tenth he drove Maloney to the ropes and got in several hard cracks to the chin.

Maloney was most effective in the early rounds when his jab-and-run-away tactics worked to perfection. His jabbing kept his heavier foe from coming in close where the difference in weight would make such a difference, and the Carnera miss more than half his shots.
