

2 CENTS BRINGS TWO TO COURT

Customers, Grocers Fight Over Cheese.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Meyer Epstein's liveried chauffeur leaned over the counter of Joe Churgin's delicatessen, and said "10 cents worth of cheese, please."

Churgin's sharp knife sheared through the cheese, and Churgin slapped it on the scales.

"Twelve cents, okay?" said Churgin.

"I said 10 cents' worth," said the chauffeur. "It's for my boss. My boss is outside."

"Twelve cents," said Churgin. The chauffeur held a conference with the boss. Both of them returned to Churgin's shop.

"We wanted 10 cents' worth of cheese, not 12 cents' worth," they chorused.

"I cut 12 cents' worth, and if you don't want it—"

Witnesses who came to court today, when Churgin and his clerk, Daniel Zedano, were arraigned on charges of assault, disagreed as to the subsequent developments.

The delicatessen men were held in $300 bail each for trial in special sessions.

$300,000 IS SOUGHT IN CITY TRUST SUIT

Injunction, Special Receiver Are Asked in Court Action.

Collection of $300,000 from stockholders of the City Trust Company, now in receivership, is asked in a suit filed Thursday in superior court.

Appointment of a special receiver to administer this sum also is asked.

Filed by Mrs. Ruby Lipscomb, and authorized by Superior Judge Joseph R. Williams on behalf of all depositors and creditors, the suit is based on a statute which provides that stockholders in a bank shall be individually responsible to an amount over and above the value of their respective shares of stock.

The suit also asks an injunction to prevent individual creditors from bringing separate suits against individual stockholders.

COP IS 'GOAT' FOR PRANKSTER

Buckshot Startles Women; They Blame Officer.

CHICAGO, March 6.—Policeman Frank McNamara, on duty on fashionable Michigan avenue, was startled when a woman, passing him, suddenly cried out, jumped, slapped herself, gave him what he called a "dirty look," and walked on.

A few minutes later another woman shrieked, jumped, slapped, and McNamara got another "dirty look."

After two more such performances, McNamara was becoming very embarrassed. He began looking about.

In a second story window he found Beardsley, reloading a spring gun with buckshot, "just to see 'em jump."

Sperry was roaring with laughter.

He continued laughing even when Judge Daniel Trude fined him $31.
