CLAIMS HENLEY ASKED WEDDING BE KEPT QUIET

Also Wanted to Use False Name, Court Is Told by 'Wife.'

KEEPS CALM ON STAND

'I Know I Married Him,' She Testifies During Cross-Examination.

BY BEN STERN

Times Staff Correspondent

GREENFIELD, Ind., March 18.—While they planned their wedding in Toledo, O., in September, 1929, Adjutant-General Manford G. Henley asked that the ceremony be kept a secret and that she consent to his use of a false first name, Mrs. Ethel Williams Henley related in circuit court here today.

Seeking support on a limited divorce action, Mrs. Henley calmly narrated bickering she said preceded their nuptials, and chronicled the procedure of obtaining a license, the marriage, and a motor trip to Elmore, O., near Toledo.

"How do you fix the time of the wedding?" she was asked by Floyd Christian, attorney for Henley, on cross-examination.

"Colonel Henley was captain of the life team at Camp Perry. They had no shooting that day, Sept. 12, but he had to be back in camp to see the team was there and not drinking, because they were shooting the next day."

Challenged by Attorney

"Where did you get the information that the rifle team was not shooting Thursday, Sept. 12?"

"Colonel Henley told me this, and that is why we selected Thursday to get married."

"A moment ago you said you did not want to marry him, and now you say you deliberately selected the date," Christian challenged.

"I intended to marry him until he began to talk to me about marrying secretly and wanted to use the name of William or George."

"You wouldn't let him use a false first name, but still he signed the license 'Grant,' didn't he?"

"His name is Grant," Mrs. Henley said.

She also testified that Henley told her he was $16,000 in debt.

Can Not Tell Age

"He said he was paying the indebtedness, and would have it paid in two years in the adjutant-general's office," she testified.

Mrs. Henley could not tell Christian her age, but said she married once before, at the age of fifteen. Finally, as Christian insisted, she said she was either thirty-six or thirty-seven.

A deposition from Dr. Mary Carpenter, who said she met Henley with Mrs. Henley in Toledo, said that Mrs. Henley before the wedding wrote daily to the adjutant-general at Camp Perry, and one day talked with him over long distance telephone for six hours.

With none of the nervousness displayed on her first appearances in Marion county courts in her efforts to force the adjutant-general to acknowledge her as his wife, Mrs. Henley was composed when the hearing before Judge Arthur C. Van Dusen began today.

Dressed modestly in black, with a touch of white in her close-fitting black hat, she took the witness stand confidently to continue her battle against Henley's denial of their alleged marriage at Toledo.

Henley Takes Stand

Specifically, she is seeking a limited divorce with $600 for attorney's fees and $200 monthly support money.

Henley first was called to the stand to testify he receives $5,000 annually as adjutant-general and an added $500 as drill pay as lieutenant in the reserve corps. This, he said, is all he receives. He was not cross-questioned by Mrs. Henley's attorneys, Sidney Horn and Edward Little, Indianapolis.

Under their questioning, Mrs. Henley related that after she and Henley were married he gave her $200 a month for several months, then $150, and last November, $75, the last money she has received from him.

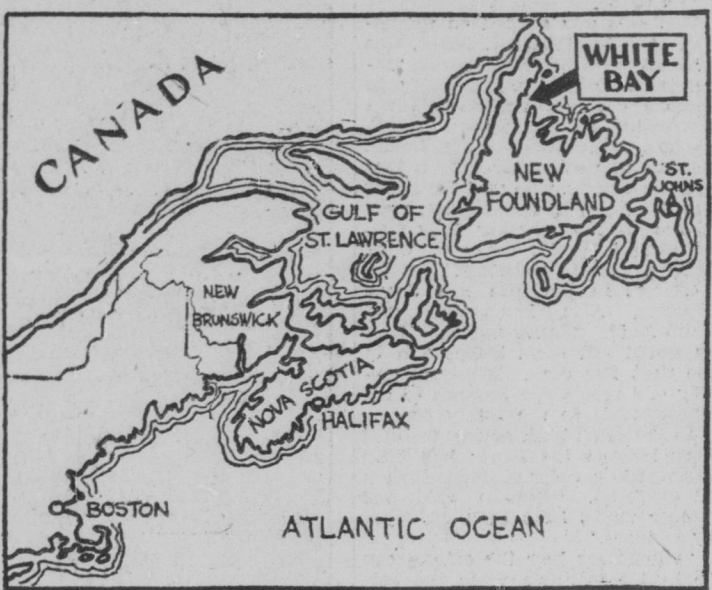

Then Henley's attorney, Christian, who is associated with Garrett Olds and John Becker, cross-examined her, dwelling on the question of her residence at the time the alleged marriage certificate was obtained at Toledo.

Over objections of her attorneys, Mrs. Henley admitted she had given her residence as Detroit when the license was issued.

"Do you claim to be the wife of Manford Grant Henley?" asked Christian.

"I know I am," Mrs. Henley replied without faltering.

HOPE OF SAVING SHIP SURVIVORS ON ICE FADING

Map shows scene of Viking explosion far out in White bay.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, March 18.—Chances of survival of any men missing since the explosion that wrecked the sealer Viking, lessened today as a northeaster began breaking up ice floes.

Varick Frissell, young motion picture producer and explorer of New York, and Arthur E. Penrod, his cameraman and aid, are among the missing.

Operations of six rescue ships seeking survivors were made difficult by the movement of the ice floes.

The steamer Eagle searched a district fifteen miles south of the scene of the disaster in hope some survivors might have drifted there, but found no sign of life.

Henry J. Sargent of Boston, the only American accounted for, was picked up by the steamer Sagona and was resting aboard the vessel today, apparently not in a serious condition after forty hours of exposure while clinging with two companions aboard a piece of the Viking's wreckage.

From a doctor aboard the Sagona, the United Press learned that Sargent held very little hope for the survival of Frissell and Penrod.

Sargent, the doctor said, talked but little Tuesday night but said today that he remembered speaking to Frissell ten minutes before the explosion. Frissell had a book in his hand and appeared to be ready to settle into his bunk to read before going to sleep. He was in a happy mood, Sargent said.

Ice Impedes Progress

Penrod had gone to his bunk half an hour before the explosion. Sargent never saw either of the men again. The quarters were in the part of the ship torn to pieces by the blast.

Sargent was making good progress today, the doctor reported. He was slightly blinded by the ice and suffered wounds in his scalp and numerous bruises.

The change in the weather on the northeast coast increased the difficulty of getting food and supplies to the Viking survivors and their injured skipper, Captain Abram Kean Jr., who reached Horse Island. The outside fringe of the ice pack broke up rapidly and made travel over the ice impossible even for able-bodied men.

Fishermen along the St. John section of the coast, made frantic efforts to haul boats over the ice, but were forced to give up when the ice began to drift and progress was impossible.

Rough Sea Hampers Rescue

The ice pack was too rough even for the travel of light hauling boats. Volunteers from the rescue ships Ungava and Beothic prepared to make a dash across the breaking ice to Horse Island with supplies for the survivors unless the ships were able to make their way through the ice.

One hundred thirty men aboard the Viking had been accounted for, either at Horse Island or aboard rescue ships.

Owners of the vessel said originally that 143 men were aboard at the time of the explosion, but it later was reported that the number might have been increased to 156 by the addition of men who jumped aboard as the vessel was leaving its pier.

TWO AMERICAN WOMEN ARE MURDERED IN CHINA

PEIPING, China, March 18.—Two American women missionaries were killed last Sunday at Yunnan-Fu.

They were: Mrs. Vera M. White of Battle Ground, Wash., and Mrs. Victoria M. Miller, daughter of Mrs. Martin of 1108 Olympic avenue, Spokane, Wash.

The women were killed in their sleep. Two children in the house were not harmed.

The husbands of the women were absent, and it was believed that the murders were committed by a servant who had been discharged. No arrests have been made, however.

The women were Seventh Day Adventist missionaries. Earlier messages from Yunnan-Fu had said two unidentified American women had been killed in rioting during "a coup d'etat," which was not mentioned in the later dispatches.

CHUCK WIGGINS SENT TO JAIL FOR 30 DAYS

Drunk Driving Charge Lands 'Hoosier Playboy' of Ring Behind Bars.

ASSESSED $35 IN FINES

Stopped by Cop, Fistic Star Threatens to Slug Him.

"When the bell rang in municipal court this morning, Chuck Wiggins, the 'Hoosier Playboy,' who recently has fought more battles on street corners than in the ring, had lost a decision to the law."

Judge Paul C. Wetter sentenced Wiggins to thirty days in jail and fined him $25 for conviction on a charge of operating a vehicle while drunk; fined him $10 and costs for drunkenness and revoked the fighter's driver's license for a year.

It seems that Traffic Patrolman Rudolph Price halted Chuck March 10 when the boxer was driving his car along Georgia street, at Illinois street, in what he said was anything but a straight line.

Price said Wiggins threatened to slug him, but that he informed Wiggins he would shoot if Wiggins as much as "made a pass" at him. Price said that since the case has been pending Wiggins had threatened to "get" Price's job if he was "hooked" in the case.

'OUST JIMMY WALKER,' DEMAND TO ROOSEVELT

Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York City is under fire in what may become one of the major political scandals in the history of our large cities.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 18.—Removal from office of James J. Walker, serving his second term as mayor of New York City, was demanded today on charges of misfeasance and incompetence in office, and an investigation involving ten departments in his administration was asked by the city affairs committee, headed by a rabbi and a minister.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, in Albany, made public the accusations brought against Walker by the Rev. John Haynes Holmes and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, chairman and vice-chairman respectively of the city affairs committee.

Roosevelt gave no intimation whether he would order an investigation of Walker's administration.

The mayor himself was a continent away—at the Palm Springs, Cal., estate of Samuel Untermyer, noted attorney, where he went to recuperate after illness.

The charges against him came after a series of investigations, started here by Samuel Seabury, an authority of Governor Roosevelt. Already Seabury has been ordered to investigate the official conduct of District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain, Tammany ally of Walker.

Misfeasance Is Charged

The specific events which led to the demand of the city affairs committee for an investigation came out of Seabury's inquiry into the magistrates' courts.

At that investigation evidence was adduced designed to show that policemen had framed women on vice charges and extorted money from them.

The murder of Vivian Gordon, described as an "expert racketeer," just when she was preparing to testify before the Seabury investigation, also accelerated demands for the inquiry.

Subsequently Benita Bischoff, Miss Gordon's daughter by a marriage that was dissolved by divorce, committed suicide because of the notoriety surrounding her mother's name.

The charges alleged misfeasance, and said Walker had failed "properly to administer the government of the city."

"He has ignored conditions of inefficiency and corruption, and if under public pressure he has initiated investigations he has allowed such investigations to lapse without report or result," the charges say.

Ha has appointed unworthy men to public office and kept in office unworthy men subject by law to his removal. His conduct of the office of mayor since he took office on Jan. 1, 1930, has been incompetent, inefficient and futile with the result that the local machinery of government has failed to function properly and the administration of the city has been brought into disrepute."

Thurston Attacked by Son-in-Law, Jane Says

Jane Thurston Harris

DETROIT, March 18.—A warrant charging assault and battery was issued here today for Harry Harris, son-in-law of Howard Thurston, nationally known magician.

The complaint was signed by Jane Thurston Harris, wife of young Harris and Thurston's daughter.

The warrant charged the assault occurred Tuesday in the Thurston's suite at the Statler hotel, when Harris came into the apartment and demanded $1,500 from the magician.

"We have had trouble for nearly a year with Harris," Mr. Thurston said, "but Tuesday's affair was the last straw. We've tried to keep our troubles quiet, but there is no use. Jane did love him, and she has taken him back several times, but now she will take immediate steps to secure a divorce."

Mrs. Thurston said she heard young Harris enter a room of the hotel last Tuesday.

"I heard him threaten to kill my husband, uttering an oath as he did so," she said. "He demanded $1,500, and when Mr. Thurston refused he rushed to Jane's room, with Mr. Thurston following. He turned and swung on my husband, and as he did so, Mr. Thurston fired his tear gas gun. A few minutes later hotel attendants carried him out."

Harris was reported in a hospital today.

Mrs. Thurston charged Harris had one time kicked her, and had abused her daughter.

Admit Girl Disappears

Friends of Miss Pollock on the campus said they were not aware that she dated any boy on the campus with great regularity, and to friends the members of the sorority admitted she was not at the house, but said they were unable to account for her absence.

Bloomington police also were asked by parents of the missing girl to search for her there.

However, it was learned that both school authorities and campus police have admitted the girl has disappeared.

Mr. Pollock said her daughter has a sweetheart at the university and that she always returned promptly to her home when she made week-end trips.

The girl is described as being 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing 115 pounds. She is blonde and was wearing a gray fur coat, red waist and hat and black skirt, black shoes and stockings.
