

LIQUOR SOURCE DAMMED WITH STILL SEIZURE

Daily Output of 125 Gallons of Whisky Is Stopped in Raid.

A generous source of Indianapolis liquor was wiped out late Thursday when deputy sheriffs raided a residence in Lafayette Heights and confiscated a 300-gallon still with a daily output of 125 gallons of whisky.

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.

Darnell was not at home when the raid was made. Today he is the object of a wide search.

Mrs. Edith Darnell, who was at home with her three small children, admitted to deputies that the still had been erected six weeks ago and had been in operation daily since then, they said.

According to deputies she told them that the 125 gallons of whisky manufactured daily by her husband was sold wholesale in barrel lots to retailers. Ninety-eight gallons of barrelled corn whisky were found in the basement, deputies said.

In addition to the whisky, deputies said they found 3,500 gallons of mash.

PRIVATE GROUNDS ARE OPENED BY HOOVERS

Precedent of Thirty Years' Standing Broken for Easter.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—A precedent of thirty years' standing was broken by President and Mrs. Hoover today to welcome the thousands of Easter visitors to Washington.

The President issued an executive order to open the gates of the private south grounds of the White House from 12:30 to 1:30 p. m. each day. The gates have been kept closed to the public for thirty years except on special occasions such as the Easter Monday egg rolling festival.

It was indicated at the White House that Mr. and Mrs. Hoover probably would step out on the south portico during the noon hour each day to extend their welcome to the visitors in person.

STOLE CAR TO KEEP DATE; GETS 90 DAYS

Youth, 17, Must Go to Farm for Theft of Auto.

How a 17-year-old youth stole a car and forged a check to keep a date with his girl was told Special Judge Earl R. Cox in criminal court Thursday afternoon.

The youth, Howard Hoyt, alias Howard Points, said he stole an automobile belonging to Paul Karnes of Westerville, O. March 17, from near the statehouse, drove to Bedford, and, finally visited a girl in Peerless.

A ninety-day sentence on the Indiana state farm was meted by the court.

Dime Debt Runs 60 Years

By Times Special
KEWANEE, Ind., April 3.—Henry D. Howell of this city, only surviving member of a family which once operated a general store at Marshtown, has received 10 cents from George B. Lease, now a resident of Missouri, in payment for a plug of tobacco purchased at the store sixty years ago.

'DYE EARLY,' EDICT OF BEAUTY EXPERT

But Watch Your Henna, She Tells Women of Nation.

BY ARCH STEINEL
Women's road to perdition has ceased to be a cigarette, a lipstick and dyed hair.

And when you come to dye—dye early!

These mandates were issued today by America's queen of a land which she dubs "Beautistry," Miss Florence E. Wall of New York, editor of the Chemist.

Miss Wall is "The Authority" on hair dyes, cosmetics and beauty culture.

Others may know how to turn a bulldog mouth into a Cupid's bow with a lipstick, but Miss Wall knows the "why" of it.

Attending the annual meeting of the American Chemist Society in this city, Miss Wall took time out to debunk some old superstitions about hair dyes and hair marcelles.

The superstition of women that hair dyes will soften the brain is foolish. Dyes have nothing to do with the brain. They change only that which they touch," she said.

She gave henna dye a spank with the comment, "they say it is not dye and that because of its vegetable origin it is good for the scalp. Neither of these notions is correct."

"Henna is a dye—an orange-red dye—why then should beauty operators act mysteriously about it and deceive patrons. Henna can be used on very few persons because red hair goes naturally with fair complexion," she said.

"Until hairdressers have sufficient strength of mind to stand up and tell a patron that she will look like Old Nick's wife if she persists in having her hair dyed with henna, we shall continue to see freaks with a sallow complexion, coal black eyebrows, brown eyes and hair that shows a variety of weird shades from eggplant purple to carrot red."

Miss Florence E. Wall

Synthetic organic dyes with the permanent developer is woman's other choice in dye, she says.

"The use of cosmetics is no longer a moral question, but is a restorative art."

She avers the three rules for good permanent waves are: The state of the hair at the time the wave is given; the skill of the operator on the machine chosen, and the care of the permanent by the woman following the permanent.

Miss Wall began work as a chemist during the war. She was assistant to Dr. Von Sochocky of the United States Radium Corporation.

HUBBY STAGED A 'WILD PARTY,' SAYS JOCELYN

She Caught Director With Another Woman, Avers Red-Haired Star.

By United Press
LOS ANGELES, April 3.—When Jocelyn Lee and a private detective went to a house on Kings road to see what her former husband, Luther Reed, was doing, they found him in a bedroom with a strange woman, the red-haired film actress testified at the trial of their cross suits for divorce.

Miss Lee said that she and the detective peeped in windows and listened to voices until they finally reached a room with French doors.

"I heard my husband's voice from the darkened room and a woman's voice and the sound of kissing," the actress said. "The detective broke down the door, and we went in."

"A girl I didn't know, who completely was unclothed, was sitting on a bed. My husband, also unclothed, was standing in the room. He cursed me and wanted to know what I was doing there, and said I had a nerve breaking in on him."

Reed, a prominent screen director, had been living in the house with Ivan St. John, a friend.

"Mr. St. John came in, also in a state of undress. Later, another man entered and tried to appear nonchalant.

R. D. Knickerbocker, Reed's attorney, inquired on cross-examination if the "other man" lit the brand of cigaret prescribed for embarrassing moments.

The Reeds are opponents for divorce and the custody of two minor children.

Reed previously testified Miss Lee used profane language so loudly after a scene in the Aqua Caliente casino that they were ordered to leave the resort.

Slain American Brought Home

NEW YORK, April 3.—The body of Fred Nixon-Nirdlinger, shot by his wife at Nice, France, arrived today on the Fabre liner, Providence, and was sent immediately to Philadelphia.

SOVIET OPPOSES WORLD FLIGHT

Denies Americans Right to Fly Over Russia.

By United Press

MOSCOW, April 3.—The Soviet government has refused permission to Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon Jr. to fly over Russian territory on their proposed trip around the world, the United Press was informed today at the foreign office.

Officials declined to reveal the reason for the foreign office action.

OUR PRICES
Gold Crown	$4 per tooth
Bridge Work	$4 per tooth
Artificial Sets	$1.50
Painless Extractions	$4.50
Extracting Free	Free When Painless
Bridges Are Ordered
THE PEOPLES DENTISTS
36½ W. Wash. St. Examination Free

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.

Darnell was not at home when the raid was made. Today he is the object of a wide search.

Mrs. Edith Darnell, who was at home with her three small children, admitted to deputies that the still had been erected six weeks ago and had been in operation daily since then, they said.

According to deputies she told them that the 125 gallons of whisky manufactured daily by her husband was sold wholesale in barrel lots to retailers. Ninety-eight gallons of barrelled corn whisky were found in the basement, deputies said.

In addition to the whisky, deputies said they found 3,500 gallons of mash.

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.

Darnell was not at home when the raid was made. Today he is the object of a wide search.

Mrs. Edith Darnell, who was at home with her three small children, admitted to deputies that the still had been erected six weeks ago and had been in operation daily since then, they said.

According to deputies she told them that the 125 gallons of whisky manufactured daily by her husband was sold wholesale in barrel lots to retailers. Ninety-eight gallons of barrelled corn whisky were found in the basement, deputies said.

In addition to the whisky, deputies said they found 3,500 gallons of mash.

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.

Darnell was not at home when the raid was made. Today he is the object of a wide search.

Mrs. Edith Darnell, who was at home with her three small children, admitted to deputies that the still had been erected six weeks ago and had been in operation daily since then, they said.

According to deputies she told them that the 125 gallons of whisky manufactured daily by her husband was sold wholesale in barrel lots to retailers. Ninety-eight gallons of barrelled corn whisky were found in the basement, deputies said.

In addition to the whisky, deputies said they found 3,500 gallons of mash.

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.

Darnell was not at home when the raid was made. Today he is the object of a wide search.

Mrs. Edith Darnell, who was at home with her three small children, admitted to deputies that the still had been erected six weeks ago and had been in operation daily since then, they said.

According to deputies she told them that the 125 gallons of whisky manufactured daily by her husband was sold wholesale in barrel lots to retailers. Ninety-eight gallons of barrelled corn whisky were found in the basement, deputies said.

In addition to the whisky, deputies said they found 3,500 gallons of mash.

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.

Darnell was not at home when the raid was made. Today he is the object of a wide search.

Mrs. Edith Darnell, who was at home with her three small children, admitted to deputies that the still had been erected six weeks ago and had been in operation daily since then, they said.

According to deputies she told them that the 125 gallons of whisky manufactured daily by her husband was sold wholesale in barrel lots to retailers. Ninety-eight gallons of barrelled corn whisky were found in the basement, deputies said.

In addition to the whisky, deputies said they found 3,500 gallons of mash.

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.

Darnell was not at home when the raid was made. Today he is the object of a wide search.

Mrs. Edith Darnell, who was at home with her three small children, admitted to deputies that the still had been erected six weeks ago and had been in operation daily since then, they said.

According to deputies she told them that the 125 gallons of whisky manufactured daily by her husband was sold wholesale in barrel lots to retailers. Ninety-eight gallons of barrelled corn whisky were found in the basement, deputies said.

In addition to the whisky, deputies said they found 3,500 gallons of mash.

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.

Darnell was not at home when the raid was made. Today he is the object of a wide search.

Mrs. Edith Darnell, who was at home with her three small children, admitted to deputies that the still had been erected six weeks ago and had been in operation daily since then, they said.

According to deputies she told them that the 125 gallons of whisky manufactured daily by her husband was sold wholesale in barrel lots to retailers. Ninety-eight gallons of barrelled corn whisky were found in the basement, deputies said.

In addition to the whisky, deputies said they found 3,500 gallons of mash.

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.

Darnell was not at home when the raid was made. Today he is the object of a wide search.

Mrs. Edith Darnell, who was at home with her three small children, admitted to deputies that the still had been erected six weeks ago and had been in operation daily since then, they said.

According to deputies she told them that the 125 gallons of whisky manufactured daily by her husband was sold wholesale in barrel lots to retailers. Ninety-eight gallons of barrelled corn whisky were found in the basement, deputies said.

In addition to the whisky, deputies said they found 3,500 gallons of mash.

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.

Darnell was not at home when the raid was made. Today he is the object of a wide search.

Mrs. Edith Darnell, who was at home with her three small children, admitted to deputies that the still had been erected six weeks ago and had been in operation daily since then, they said.

According to deputies she told them that the 125 gallons of whisky manufactured daily by her husband was sold wholesale in barrel lots to retailers. Ninety-eight gallons of barrelled corn whisky were found in the basement, deputies said.

In addition to the whisky, deputies said they found 3,500 gallons of mash.

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.

Darnell was not at home when the raid was made. Today he is the object of a wide search.

Mrs. Edith Darnell, who was at home with her three small children, admitted to deputies that the still had been erected six weeks ago and had been in operation daily since then, they said.

According to deputies she told them that the 125 gallons of whisky manufactured daily by her husband was sold wholesale in barrel lots to retailers. Ninety-eight gallons of barrelled corn whisky were found in the basement, deputies said.

In addition to the whisky, deputies said they found 3,500 gallons of mash.

Deputies had gone to the home of W. Darnell on information a small still was in operation. The one found, which occupied most of the basement of the house, is one of the largest ever confiscated and dismantled in or near Indianapolis.