Harry Ditchburne, assistant state's attorney, said it had been impossible to discover a policeman who could testify of his own knowledge that Capone was a frequenter of such places as speakeasies.

To reduce his shipping expense in 1883, he purchased a 168-foot vessel, the "Newsboy." Captain Dollar then went into foreign shipping, when he was more than 50 years of age, and since has acquired a fleet of twenty-one vessels. He is not a licensed captain, and never has made a trip as a sailor, though he has an excellent knowledge of ships and the sea.

Dear Mr. Fixit—We have a paved alley, yet we can hardly get in or out on account of mud. The alley in the rear of 2238 East Michigan street is so bad you can hardly get in or out. There is a manhole or catch basin, but it is too high and covered with mud which backs water up the paved alley. H. M. B. 545 North Jefferson avenue.

VETERAN GETS LOAN, FINED IN DRUNK CASE

"Drunk Ever Since He Got His Bonus," Asserts Wife.

Back to governmental coffers Thursday went $66 of the veterans' bonus loan made recently by Aubrey Carney, 1019 Ashland avenue. It was the price of an alleged binge that ended in juvenile court, where Carney was accused of having created a disturbance and poured a bottle of whiskey on the floor.

In Municipal Judge Paul C. Wetter's court, Carney pleaded guilty to drunkenness and resisting an officer, but when his wife explained that "Aubrey is a good man when he's sober, only he's been drunk ever since he got his bonus," Wetter dismissed charges of blind tiger and disorderly conduct. Fines totaled $66.

LONG LEASE RIGHT ON LAND DENIED STATE

Ogden Rules Conservation Department Can Not Make Deal.

Permission for the state conservation department to accept and lease for ninety-nine years 2,000 acres of southern Indiana land to be reforested and at a lease rent equal to the taxes, was denied today by Attorney-General James M. Ogden.

In an opinion to Director Richard Lieber of the department Ogden set forth his reasons. Under the lease plan the land eventually would have become the property of the state, he said.

According to Ralph Wilcox, state forester, the land has been purchased by an Ohio man who is going to classify it for a forest estate for his children. Under the lease plan the land eventually would have become the property of the state, he said.

'4 HORSEMEN' WERE NEAREST ROCKNE'S HEART

Loved to Reminisce About His Great Team of '22, '23 and '24.

He dove-tailed these four boys of strangely different temperaments into the best co-ordinated and most picturesque back field in perhaps all football history.

The "four horsemen" performed in 1922, 1923 and 1924, and lost but two games out of thirty, both in their first two years to the heavier Nebraska team. In 1924 they led Notre Dame to an undisputed national championship, defeating Stanford in the Tournament of Roses game New Year's day, 27-10.

Stuhldreher Among Greatest

After this game, Pop Warner, Stanford coach, mentioned that his team had made more first downs than Notre Dame, and Crowley remarked: "Next year in the majors they are going to count the men left on base, instead of the runs."

Stuhldreher was one of Rockne's three greatest quarter backs. The other two were Norman Barry, 1920, and Frank Carideo, 1929 and 1930. Rockne often said Stuhldreher made only one tactical mistake during his career, and that was to pass over the goal line on second down with the ball on the opponents' twenty line in his first year in 1922. That was Stuhldreher's first and only mistake, in Rockne's opinion.

Typical Rockne Philosophy

The "Four Horsemen" were off color in a game against North-western which Notre Dame barely was able to win. On the train returning to South Bend after the game the conductor asked a "drunk" for his ticket.

"Where are you going?" asked the conductor.

"I don't know," was the reply. "I guess I'm not going anywhere."

Crowley glumly turned to his teammates after listening to the conversation and said:

"He must be one of the 'Four Horsemen'." That reply was typical of Rockne philosophy.

Closest to His Heart

These were the boys closest to the heart of Rockne—"The Four Horsemen" and "The Seven Mules." Rockne perhaps had greater teams, but none as liked and loved as these who were with him from 1922 to 1924.

Rockne was a master psychologist. He had a knack of inspiring his players at critical moments. He did not have a peer at snapping a faltering and beaten eleven back into a fighting and winning mood.

Notre Dame played 10-0 at half time in the Northwestern game of 1923, and it seemed that the Irish were to suffer their first defeat in nearly a quarter of a century on old Cartier Field at South Bend. He stood silent before his men—then his staccato voice boomed out:

"You have the honor of being the first team to quit on me."

Different in Last Half

Then he left them to muse over the cattle remark. The final score of the game was Notre Dame, 13; Northwestern, 10.

Rockne seldom handled any two boys alike. He had a different method for each of them. Between halves of a Nebraska game he called one of his players aside and said: "Say, that big tackle is playing rings around you. Guess he doesn't know who you are. Better show him your clippings this next half." To another he would merely say: "Just play your best game, boy."

CAPITOL SEES 2-YEAR HOLIDAY ON LEGISLATION

Hoover Discards All Hope for Presenting Program to Next Congress.

By PAUL R. MALLON

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 3.—A two-year holiday from legislation and a two-year political lull are forecast for Washington.

President Hoover has discarded all hope of proposing a legislative program to the next congress, it is learned from his associates.

Mr. Hoover feels that both houses are so evenly divided that no controversial legislation can be expected before 1933.

Likewise, legislators are showing signs of bearing down for the 1932 presidential race rather than for any specific legislative activity.

The President's friends are not dismally about the outlook. They claim that all save three of the major recommendations which Mr. Hoover incorporated in his original message to congress now have been enacted.

The three remaining are the border patrol legislation, infancy and maternity protective measures and the power question—involving both Muscle Shoals and the Hoover plan to establish regulation of interstate power activities.

MINERS AND OPERATORS ARRIVE AT AGREEMENT

Contract Affecting Indiana Coal Pits Retains Former Wages.

By Times Special

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 3.—A new wage and working agreement for Indiana coal mines in which union labor is employed was signed here Thursday night by representatives of the Indiana Coal Operators' association and District 11, United Mine Workers of America.

Owing to the fact that the agreement cannot become effective until approved by a district convention of the miners, few details were known. It is known, however, that there is no change in the wage scale.

John L. Lewis, international president of the miners union, who conferred here Thursday with the union's district scale committee, is credited with having brought about the contract, after several weeks of negotiations had failed to produce one to replace the agreement which expired at midnight Tuesday.

BIDS ALL THE SAME, SO POLITICS DECIDES

Works Board Rejects Prison's Figure on 200 Tons of Crushed Stone.

Because William Cornelius, manager of the Frank M. Dell Coal Company, 1001 Southeastern avenue, is "a good Democrat," the company today holds a pork barrel contract for 200 tons, "more or less," of crushed stone.

It was found by the Indiana penal farm for the stone was the same as bids of five or six local bidders. The lowest bidder, who rejected the convict-made product in order to favor free labor.

All bids were for $1.65 a ton, so the board pondered over who should receive the contract.

Well, Cornelius is a good Democrat and he is the only bidder I know anything about," Jackiel W. Joseph, board president, laughingly commented.

CONVENTIONS POUR MILLION INTO CITY

These figures do not include the auto show or the state basketball tournament, officials said. According to the bureau, 16,352 delegates and visitors attended the conventions.

Sixty-three of the meetings were state-wide; seventeen, regional and eleven, national.
