

ABANDON CASH FOR WORKMEN ON 'MADE' JOBS

Move to Broaden Plan to Care for All Relief Applicants.

Broadening of the "made work" plan to make it apply to all applicants for relief in Marion county was begun today, following a meeting of relief workers in the Chamber of Commerce Monday afternoon.

Co-operation of city, county and school city officials to create more jobs than when they were called upon to create last winter is assured, according to William H. Book, secretary of the general committee on stabilization.

Through the winter, the emergency work committee has been making small cash payments in addition to providing baskets to laborers. Under the new plan, the cash payments will cease.

Mounting expenditures that have nearly exhausted funds of township and city relief agencies is forcing the relief administrators to turn to the "made work" program in which, it is expected, all able-bodied men applying for relief will be given work.

"We are broadening the emergency work plan because it has proved a success," Book declared.

Herman Lieber is chairman of the special committee inaugurating the program and is assisted by Walter Clarke, attorney for the Center township trustee; Bowman Elder, W. A. Hacker, assistant superintendent of the city schools; Charles Holtman, Center township advisory board member, and Walter Boetcher, council member.

OKLAHOMA CITY AT POLLS TO PICK MAYOR

Bitter Walton-Blinn Race Expected to Draw 30,000 Voters.

By United Press
OKLAHOMA CITY, April 7.—More than 30,000 voters were expected at the polls today to ballot for the mayoralty candidates, J. C. (Jack) Walton, impeached Governor of Oklahoma, and Clarence J. Blinn, an attorney.

In the campaign of bitter personalities, both men were accorded the support of strong factions. Each was confident of victory.

The campaign was Walton's first political effort since he was ousted as Governor in 1923 at the time of Klux Klan agitation. He was mayor of Oklahoma City before he was Governor.

LEGGE DENIES FARM BOARD DEATH NEAR

Reports of Dissolution "Premature," Says Former Chairman.

By United Press
CHICAGO, April 7.—Reports that the federal farm board might pass out of existence are "premature," Alexander H. Legge, who resigned recently as chairman of the board to resume the presidency of the International Harvester Company, said Monday night.

While Legge was speaking, the Farmers' National Grain Corporation, affiliated with the farm board, issued a report showing that its net profits from operations for the fiscal year ending Feb. 28 were $666,266.84. "I have been called a rat deserting a sinking ship, but I'm not a rat and the ship is not sinking," Legge told the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

ALTHOUGH it seems to be a foregone conclusion that Governor Harry G. Leslie will reappoint to the highway commission its chairman, Albert J. Wedeking, Dale banker, whose term expires April 17, much criticism is being aroused because both the chairman and the director, John J. Brown, Rockport, are from the same county.

Critics of the highway commission point out that practically all western and central Indiana is without representation on the board. The three members, besides Wedeking, are Jess Murden (Rep.) of Miami county; Arthur P. Melton (Dem.) of Lake county, and Robert B. Boren (Dem.) of Wayne county.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders of the western and central sections are urging that they be given representation on the commission.

PROTESTS will, of course, be of no avail. Leslie is sure to reappoint Wedeking, who helped engineer the ouster of Director John D. Williams in 1929, and thus paved the way for the appointment of Brown, who temporarily was acting as secretary to the Governor and, sometimes, it is said, as Governor.

Incidentally, despite the lambasting he got from the senate highway probe committee for his alleged "ignorance of everything connected with the operations of the highway department," Brown's deep bass continues to reverberate undiminished and his self confidence has in no evident manner been weakened.

It did, however, seem to put a quietus on the persistent story that Brown was being groomed by Leslie to be his successor.

HOME SHOW TO BEGIN SATURDAY

Realtors Make Final Plans for Exposition.

Virtually every convenience and contrivance for the modern home will be inspected by crowds that attend the tenth annual home complete exposition of the Indianapolis Real Estate Board at state fairground, beginning Saturday.

Workmen today were engaged in setting up booths, arranging exhibits and completing the Germantown colonial type house which forms the centerpiece of the exposition. Furnishings will be moved into the house Thursday or Friday.

Realtors from Louisville, Detroit and Milwaukee will visit the show, April 17, according to Lawrence G. Holmes, executive secretary of the real estate board. Dan W. LeGore, home show committeeman, is chairman of the entertainment committee.

Special days are planned each day of the show.
