CUTS SILK HOSE BILLS IN TWO

A New York fashion expert has found a simple, easy method to double the wear of silk hose and undergarments. These articles, worn next to the skin, wear out doubly fast because of the perspiration and other body excretions which soften and rot the silk.

This expert found that soap and water were inadequate for washing such articles. She recommends when washing silks to add a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Wash and rinse as usual. This method not only cleans thoroughly and quickly but makes silks like new with revived colors and pleasing freshness. With Energine the results over use of soap and water alone will amaze you. It means longer life—real economy.

Energine is unexcelled also for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, gloves and ties. Large cans 35 cents at any drug store.—Advertisement.

—WHAT'S IN FASHION?—

Cottons for Every Hour

Directed By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, April 22.—Let queens wear their velvets and ermines if they want to—many a fashionable this spring is going to queen it over those not-so-fashionable by wearing simple cottons.

Cottons were fashionable last spring and summer. You saw more of them worn than you'd seen for many years. And they're in fashion again this year.

Fashionable anywhere and any time, too. Morning, afternoon and evening. Around the home, on the beach, on the golf course and tennis court, at teas, dinners and dances.

Cotton Meshes Popular

Cottons for sportswear are the most important of all cotton fashions. And the most important sports cotton is a mesh. It's woven with little openwork spaces, ranging in size from pin points to about a sixteenth of an inch large.

We've had one sketched between the two prints. One of the simplest meshes. Some others are woven in designs that look like knitted fabrics.

Linens, which of course aren't cotton, but which do have the same effect. . . shantungs and piques are also used in some of the slickest sports dresses you've ever seen.

Lots of them jacket dresses, too. . . and you can always wear the jacket with some other costume.

Organdie and Eyelet

Cottons always seem particularly feminine. And, course, fashion is that way this year.

Two of the most feminine of all cottons—some that you remember from your little girl days—are organdie and eyelet embroidered batiste. And they're two of the most fashionable for the more formal type dress.

They're lovely for formal afternoon dresses, garden party dresses and summer evening dresses. So are printed voiles and dotted Swisses.

Quaint little flower patterns on batiste, percale or dimity are going to make many a cool summer dress to wear informally around the house or on the neighbor's porch.

Ginghams Also "In"

And you'll see some ginghams, too, particularly in plaids used in combinations with plain materials as plaid silk were used last winter.

There are lots of cotton blouses this spring. Blouses of sheer batistes, printed or plain, crisp dimities, eyelet embroideries and some very gay and youthful plaid ginghams.

Cotton neckwear is especially in fashion. All sorts of pique collars, cuffs and vests. Batiste ones, too, and eyelet embroideries.

There'll be cottons on the beach. Wide cotton trousers and pajama costumes, beach wraps of sponge and other rough effects, umbrellas of gray stripes.

Cotton Accessories Plentiful
You'll see cotton hats, too—believe it or not. Smart little brimmed things of pique to match a dress—some of plaid gingham—a few very feminine and dressy ones of eyelet embroidery.

Cottons are used in handbags—in beach and sports shoes—in sweaters—in separate jackets.

It's certain that you can't make a fashion mistake if you plan to include plenty of cotton in your wardrobe this spring and summer.

In the sketches we've shown two of the charming cotton prints, a cotton mesh that's used for sports outfits, and one of many patterns in the lovely eyelet embroideries. And on the figure is a good example of what the cotton sports dress will look like next summer.

It is natural...

You can Train your own hair into an alluring wave
that actually deepens
in dampness

IS YOUR hair "straight as a string"? Is it hard for you to keep a wave in? Never mind! Now, you can have a deep, natural, lasting wave of your very own!

For ten years, in Paris, the marvelous lotion, La Gerardine, has been cultivating lustrous waves in heads that formerly had straight hair. Then La Gerardine was brought to this country, and now 75,000 women have become enthusiastic users of it!

They have learned that a Gerardine wave actually deepens after a hot bath, a shampoo, a swim, and in rain.

During a short period of simple treatments, you can now train a deep, alluring wave in your own hair at home. Or your hairdresser can do it for you. More than 3,000 leading beauty shops are already endorsing and using La Gerardine for their patrons.

La Gerardine is absolutely harmless even to a baby's delicate hair. There is no alcohol, glycerine or oil in La Gerardine, nor anything sticky or drying. It is made from rare herbs, beneficial to the hair and scalp. For a "permanent," La Gerardine is an ideal setting lotion, as it benefits the hair and adds life and beauty to the wave. It does not affect the color of white, dyed or bleached hair.

Start today to develop your natural wave! La Gerardine is sold at leading department and drug stores everywhere at $2.00 the bottle.

Mr. V. E. Meadows, eminent beauty authority, says "Avoid setting the hair with water, alcoholic or sticky preparations."
