

HOOVER CLINGS TO MAINTAINING OF HIGH TARIFF

No Favor Shown to Kicks in Own Party Against Present Rates.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Criticism from within Republican ranks against the party's own tariff law has failed to win sympathy from the White House.

Bold suggestions for a downward revision at the coming session of congress find no favor with President Herbert Hoover.

The President intends to keep on with the slow adjustment of rates through the tariff commission, his associates maintain.

By the time congress comes back in December a dozen or more rates may be changed, but so far as tinkering with the general rate structure, it is out of the question, it is asserted.

There have been three significant developments which have indicated a change in tariff policy might be in prospect.

1. The speech of W. W. Atterbury, Pennsylvania railroad president, to the effect that the high rate structure undoubtedly prolonged the business depression.

2. The statement of Representative Bertland Snell (N. Y.), candidate for Speaker of the house, indicating he also considered the rates were too high.

3. Direct complaint of an automobile trade journal editor during the round table discussion at the White House. He told Mr. Hoover the automobile industry's foreign trade had been ruined by the tariff because of reprisals instituted by other countries.

LASHES G. O. P. 'HANDS-OFF' ON BIG BUSINESS

La Follette Says Modern Economic Machinery Calls for Change.

By United Press

BOSTON, April 24.—The "hands-off" policy toward business pursued in the administrations of Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover were criticized here Thursday night by Senator Robert La Follette (Rep., Wis.), in a speech at Ford Hall Forum.

La Follette also questioned President Hoover's policy of leaving unemployment relief to individual charity.

He attacked proposals to improve the economic situation by wage cuts and mergers.

The aim of the progressive group in congress, he said, is "to contribute permanently toward greater economic stability, and toward a richer and fuller life for all the people."

"It is impossible," he said, "to manage present economic machinery on the basis of ideas developed in a predominantly agricultural and individualistic society of 150 years ago."

REBEL REVOLT IS SUPPRESSED IN HONDURAS

Official Notification Tells of Decisive Victory in Engagement.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The government of Honduras informed its legation here today that the rebellion in that country has been suppressed. The Honduran secretary of state in a dispatch timed 8:40 a. m., said:

"Revolutionary movement quelled."

This message followed an earlier one from President Colindres, who said the government forces won a decisive victory in an engagement with rebels Thursday at Cammelcon.

Honduran representatives in this country, nevertheless, are proceeding in their efforts to buy munitions for use against insurgent elements.

Ten Lewis machine guns have been bought in New York, it was said, and shipped to Honduras.

The Honduran government also is seeking to buy quantities of bombs to be used in aerial attacks.

It has six military planes, and five more are under construction at an aircraft factory in Kansas City.
