What's in Fashion?

Jewelry as Color Accent

Directed By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, May 9.—Look to your other accessories when you choose your colorful costume jewelry. To your handkerchiefs, belts, scarfs and handbags. As well as to your dress and coat and hat.

Why? Because the fashion for color in the costume has many a pitfall for the unwary. It's all too easy to look like a brightly trimmed Christmas tree.

If the other accessories are brightly colorful, jewelry should take its color in small doses. In color combined with white or with silver. And in small, instead of heavy-looking, pieces.

Smart White Jewelry

White is one of the smartest colors you can use in your jewelry. . . an opaque white. White coral, white composition materials of a creamy tint.

You wear it with black, blue and brown costumes, especially when they have other white touches. And white is the logical color to use with the little prints that have sharp white accents in them.

Color combined with silver is a smart accompaniment of the tailored costume. Simulated sapphires, lapis, and deep red stones are effective with gray and blue costumes that have the tailored look.

Bright Color Contrasts

Sharp color contrasts can be made most interesting—if you're careful. Bright yellow or bright red can both be used with navy or brown costumes.

But the necklace—or whatever the jewelry is—has to be chosen to look as though it belonged with that particular costume. The point is not to have the necklace the first—the only—thing about the costume that you see.

All those Algerian colors you've been hearing about are the best thing you can choose to wear with white costumes. The bright blues and reds and yellows.

They're smart singly or in combinations. Flat collar effects made up of many strands of fine, small beads in groups display these bright colors perfectly.

Top to Bottom—Multistrand flat collar in several colors; stiff bangle bracelets in two colors; flat silver necklace combined with colored stone; multistrand evening necklace with baguette crystal motif.

All three colors can be combined in one necklace and one single color repeated in three or four bangle bracelets. Then your white costume needs nothing else to make it a smart picture.

Color is even getting into evening jewelry after the long reign of rhinestones and brilliants. A necklace to match the slippers, perhaps. Or earrings to match a handkerchief.

Earrings, by the way, are reviving. Flat double buttons are being worn in the daytime or very short drops that hang just below the wave of the longer-cut hair.

And often earrings, bracelet and a belt buckle are all you need to tell a smart color story. Gertrude Lawrence uses this method in her latest Broadway success.

With a gold and black lamp, a jama costume, she wears dark red button earrings and a belt buckle to match. And carries a dark red chiffon handkerchief.

Necklace, bracelet and handkerchief are another good combination. Or necklace, handkerchief and belt of a sports costume. Or slippers, bracelet and earrings of an evening costume. Or necklace, hat band and belt on a daytime costume.

And doing it this way, with a single piece of jewelry—or two at the most—it's easier to make different jewelry combinations for the same costume . . . and make it look like different costumes.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE THEME ANNOUNCED

"Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 10.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Book of Isaiah: "Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and shew my people their transgression, and the house of Jacob their sins. Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth as the dew; and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy reward" (Isa. 58:1, 2).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "It is not the purpose of Christian Science to 'educate the idea of God, or treat it for disease,' as is alleged by one critic. I regret that such criticism confounds man with Adam. When man is spoken of as made in God's image, it is not sinful and sickly mortal man who is referred to, but the ideal man, reflecting God's likeness."
