

GUINAN TROUPE BIDS FAREWELL TO FRENCH SOIL

"Too Many Managers," Avers Night Club Hostess of Deportation.

By United Press
LE HAVRE, France, June 3.—Surrounded by a group of disappointed beauties, Texas Guinan waved what she called her "last farewell to France" as the liner Paris departed for America today.

It was the return voyage of the same ship on which Miss Guinan, twenty show girls and a white show horse had set forth with high hopes of making France more night club conscious.

The girls seemed most happy with the new freedom of luxurious staterooms and broad promenade decks after the comparative hardships of the Le Havre hotel in which the French government had installed them while deliberating on the final decision to deport as a means of protecting home industry.

Three Girls Escape Guard

They started their trip home in the same staterooms occupied on the west-to-east voyage.

Only three girls who made a break for liberty Tuesday night could boast of any sort of a tour of France, although they told police at parting that "we ate lobsters all night."

"Are you sure, Texas?" some one shouted as the ship moved off.

"I'm not such a cheap sport," called Miss Guinan. "At the same time, I would hardly accept a job as press agent for France."

The two missing "little girls"—Norma Taylor and Mabel Swor—lost somewhere in France overnight, returned at 4 a. m. and announced they were ready to go.

They said they had seen all of France that they could on their one night of freedom from police surveillance.

"Could Have Changed Things"

The girls got away during the confusion incident to the taking of a talking motion picture of the group in the grounds of the heavily guarded hotel where they had been detained since their arrival last Friday.

As Miss Guinan counted her girls passing up the ship's gangway she said:

"They're all here, my chain gang. I seem to have had too many managers."

"I know I could have changed things if I had only two minutes alone with Laval (the premier) in Paris."

"Fiance" Disappointed

The most disappointed spectator of the Guinan sailing was an Englishman, Harry Aslett. He had missed a chance to be Tex' husband.

"She told me to come and sent five pounds ($24.30), but she let me down badly," mourned Aslett. "I would have made such a good husband! I expect the captain of the Paris to marry us, but Miss Guinan didn't feel like marrying."

"I've been through lots of trouble before. I was the youngest member of the British army during the war. Now I have just enough money to get home."

MICHIGAN STUDENTS JAILED FOR DRINKING

Freshman Class President Faces Charges, After "Wild Spree."

By United Press
ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 3.—Two University of Michigan students—one the president of the freshman class—and an alleged bootlegger, whom they accuse of selling them liquor, faced prohibition charges here today.

The two students, James L. Slocum, Pittsburgh, freshman class head, and Lawrence L. Heideman, 18, of Laurium, Mich., were at liberty under $500 bond, after spending nearly all of Wednesday in jail.

The reputed bootlegger, Frank L. Smith, was in jail awaiting arraignment today.

The two boys were taken to police headquarters Saturday, after their landlord complained of a so-called "wild" party in their rooms.

JEFF DAVIS IS RETURNED TO CAPITOL GLORY

Statue of Confederacy Chief Placed in Halls He Left 70 Years Ago.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, June 3.—Jeff Davis is back in the national capitol.

Some seventy years ago, with head high and an imperative call ringing in his ears, he walked out ... in the domed structure where he had served as senator and secretary of war.

The love and trust of millions lay ahead. The hatred and revilements of more millions lay behind. He did not falter.

Years of glory and years of despair and defeat, shouts of soldiers led by men who had been his friends and subordinates, singing "We'll Hang Jeff Davis on a Sour Apple Tree."

Years of ignominious imprisonment, of loss of citizenship, of indictments for treason.

Statue Is Unveiled

Arthur Dunham, Chicago, (top photo) and Harold L. Heeremanns, Seattle, and Miss Louise Carol Titcomb, St. Louis, (below) will be among the distinguished organists who will be heard in recital here during the tenth general convention of the American Guild of Organists of United States and Canada next week. Long prominent in Chicago music circles, Dunham twice weekly is heard in recital in Chicago's Methodist Temple—the church which "nestles" in the heart of one of the Windy City's tallest office structures. Heeremanns is organist and choir-master of University Temple, Seattle, Wash., and Miss Titcomb is organist of the Church of the Holy Communion, St. Louis.

To the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" and of "Dixie," the Star Spangled Banner was drawn aside Tuesday from a bronze figure of Jefferson Davis, who suffered for a principle.

The statue stands in Statuary Hall in the capitol, where in Davis' time the house of representatives held its deliberations.

States' Bitterness Ends

Nearby is another new statue—James Z. George, also of Mississippi, who with Davis cast his lot with the south.

Four hundred and fifty people applauded tumultuously when the marine band played the battle song of the confederacy. Pat Harrison, Democratic senator from Davis' state, speculated on possible historical reversals had Abraham Lincoln's family migrated to Mississippi instead of Illinois, and Davis' forefathers to Illinois.

Dramatic proof that the war between the states had ended.

FEEBLE-MINDED TERMED PERIL

Startling Figures Cited by Dr. Thurman Rice.

Indiana, with crime increasing daily, is spending as much to care for insane and feeble-minded persons as it is to advance higher education.

This assertion was made Tuesday by Dr. Thurman B. Rice of the Indiana university school of medicine, in an address before members of the Universal Club. Rice warned that, with the increase in mental defectiveness, the race is in danger of degeneration.

"Our insane hospitals and homes for feeble-minded are crowded to overflowing and yet we are permitting intermarriage of persons totally unfit to bring normal children into the world," Rice declared.

"We are spending as much on our insane and feeble-minded as we are for higher education in this state. Crime is on the increase.

"What can we expect of feeble-minded parents, other than burden society with more and worse unfortunate? There is a real danger that the people of real merit will die out and leave this nation a wreck and a prey to some virile people."

City Engineers to Conference

Electron Heads Power Firm
NEW YORK, June 3.—William Randolph Hearst believes that if the federal government would make five billion dollars immediately available for public improvements, the present depression would be solved and prosperity restored to the United States.

Hearst criticised President Herbert Hoover for abandoning his own program of gigantic public improvements.

Now is the time, Hearst believes, to increase both the national debt and the expenditures of the government in the employment of labor so as to restore prosperity.

He said he is not in favor of any plan to reduce the national debt now through taxation.

He criticised Treasury Secretary Andrew W. Mellon as being more concerned about his record than about the "far greater question of restoring prosperity."

SLEEP-WALKER TRIES TO FLY; HE CRASHES

Dream of Being Expert Aviator Leads to Wrecking of Plane.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 3.—Alberto Wolkoff, who would like to be an aviator, was wide awake and alive today after an unusual experience with an airplane.

Wolkoff walked in his sleep. He strode onto an airfield near his home, climbed into the cockpit still asleep and attempted to fly. He wrecked the machine before he could get it off the ground.

Mechanics who ran to the wrecked plane found Wolkoff climbing out uninjured. He said he had dreamed he was an expert aviator.

HOOVER THRIFT DRIVE SAVING U. S. MILLIONS

Near-Billion Deficit Found With New Economy of $107,500,000.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, June 3.—President Hoover's private economy drive reached a theoretical high-water mark of $107,500,000, with four departments pared to the bone and others yet to come under the presidential knife. The navy will be next.

A White House tabulation of the savings claimed and expected as a result of economy conferences with department chiefs showed:

Agriculture department (two years), $31,000,000; Interior (three years), $18,500,000; post office department (one year), $53,000,000, and the war department (one year), $5,000,000, a total of $107,500,000.

This ray of sunshine came as the President was looking over the prospect for the end of the fiscal year, June 30. He found what his statisticians estimated as a $900,000,000 to $950,000,000 deficit.

In a statement last night, the White House explained that the deficit was caused by a decrease of $80,000,000 in government revenues and an increase of $540,000,000 in expenses.

Normally this would make the deficit $1,430,000,000, but the White House mathematician counted as credits to the taxpayers $180,000,000 in deferrals and economies during the year as well as $305,000,000 put to retirement of the public debt in excess of the amount required by law.

Election of Lucius B. Andrus of Indianapolis, president of the Northern Indiana Power Company as president of the Great Lakes division of the National Electric Light Association was announced today. He succeeds Eugene Holcomb of Jackson, Mich., whose term expires June 30.

Hearst spoke over a network of the Columbia Broadcasting Company Tuesday night, declaring the chief executive had adopted the plan of international bankers.

Now is the time, Hearst believes, to increase both the national debt and the expenditures of the government in the employment of labor so as to restore prosperity.

He said he is not in favor of any plan to reduce the national debt now through taxation.

He criticised Treasury Secretary Andrew W. Mellon as being more concerned about his record than about the "far greater question of restoring prosperity."
